TUESDAY EVENING, JAN. 30.

THE DIAMONDIFEROUS COUNTRY.

Such is the local name given in the Cape of Good Hope to the country where each new "rush" and "pan,"—words equivalent to the Californian "diggings,"—yields its wealth in diamonds to a great horde of adventurers. A copy of the Port Elizabeth Herald of December 1st ult., furnishes in advertisements and news, matter from which we may glean some intelligence of the life of men who speak our English speech in this remote colony.

The very get-up of this journal, printed in clear heavy type on thick paper, gives an air of Dutch solidity to the concerns whose double-columned advertisements in very large letters announce their various enterprises. The trade between the United States and the Cape must be extensive, as may be seen by the conspicuous announcement of American wares and "Yankee notions:" "American axes, hatchets (claw and axe pattern,) best American corn starch, pick-axe handles, wheelbarrows, chairs, American cut nails, 3-tie brooms." We find also quotations of American flour, and Baltic lumber and flooring,—the latter at 4d sterling or 8 cents the superficial foot; prices also of American lard and Paraffin oils, colonial soap, and the statement that "bulk ales are very scarce. Case porter wanted." Blue and scarlet blankets, and cheese of various kinds are advertised. From all which the hint may be taken that between this and that country no inconsiderable trade might be done.

In the matter of home production, professional business, and other subjects advertised, there are many queer things to be noted. Immediately under a notice to return a dressing table taken from the buyer at a sale, may be seen advertisements commencing thus:—

DIED, through injuries received from a fall from his horse, &c.,

DROWNED at Port Elizabeth, &c.,

A sale of a magnificent herd of breeding cattle, 65 in number, is prominently displayed. The calves "in symmetry of form excel even their maternal progenitors. The cows are splendid milkers, and may be guaranteed to live and thrive in any part of the colony. None of the cattle will be sold previous to the sale, and they will then prove themselves to be superior to anything said of them by the Auctioneer." There is also advertised a sale of "One hundred and ninety-six, or fourteen spans, each of fourteen well-trained Zuurveld oxen, in matched spans," from the Langekloof and Sea Coast Veld, concerning which it is announced that "the longest and strongest bidder will get them. Terms made to suit purchasers." In fact credit seems easy in the colony, and insolvency matters occupy a considerable space in the news columns. With the freshness of these advertisements that of the following is quite in keeping: "Veigt & Vels, Bloemfontein, Orange Free State, having taken over the office of Mr Advocate H. A. L. Hamelberg, at Bloemfontein, offer their services as Attorneys and Notaries, General Agents, Administrators of estates and auctioneers. The confidence Mr H. A. H. Hamelberg reposed in them, they hope, by their conduct towards all who entrust them with business to prove themselves worthy of." Things are called bluntly by their names. Adendorff and Co. announce that they have a "magnificent new punt at the junction of the Orange and Vaal River and an efficient man is engaged to work the same." Dordredcht and Co., advertise a "passenger cart to the diamond fields." An advertisement for a salesman is thus:—"Wanted, for a country business, a first class hand who thoroughly understands the Dutch trade, must be a single young man, and produce first-class testimonials." The relations between the press and the public are indicated to some extent by the business-like style of announcing deaths. The fact of ten births having occurred in one day at King William's Town furnishes to the column of local items a very rude joke. A professional short-hand-writer inserts his card, stating that he will report verbatim at moderate charges cases in the law courts, public meetings, &c. It is evident that if a man wants newspaper notoriety at the Cape, he must pay for it. Stereotyped advertisements of "Epps's Cocoa," and "Lea and Perrin's Worcestershire sauce," show that the British epicure is everywhere, and along with him the quack-doctor calling the attention of "diamond-diggers" to a nostrum for dysentery.

The yield of diamonds appears to be considerable but of the aggregate results there are no returns. The particulars are given of a sale of 421 diamonds for about $8,000, and of a lot withdrawn valued at $12,500. An auction sale is advertised of twenty-five thousand pounds worth of diamonds. Some lucky finds in such places as the "New Rush," "Du Toits Pan," are chronicled. The discovery of gold is announced. The trade in ostrich feathers seems to offer to hunters prizes hardly less tempting than those of the diamond fields. The prices range from $180 to $6 a pound. Real estate is advancing in value; with the tide of immigration the fertile land and fat pastures of the colony are coming into notice. The sale is reported of 10,000 acres of the finest grazing and agricultural land in the colony at £3,650 sterling. The same property was offered two or three months previous to public competition, when the highest bid made was £2,100 sterling. The trade in wool, hides and skins is enormous. The exports of these products together with mohair, horns and ostrich feathers from one of the seven shipping ports of the colony, amounted, during the month of November last, to the value of half-a-million of dollars.

But with all the evidence this paper affords of flourishing commercial enterprise, of fortune hunting and fortune getting, of a rude civilization in the diamond fields forerunning a better day, of loyalty to Great Britain and attachment to the Queen, there is also before us evidence that neither fertile soil nor magnificent climate can forward the great South African Colony to anything like the position attained or to be attained by "this Canada of ours." The rigors of our winters, the labour of making the forest fruitful fields, the equality of social conditions and the spread of education are all here operating to rear a race of vigorous, independent men who perhaps in less than a quarter of a century will stand before the world second to none in well divided wealth, intelligence and virtue.

AGRICULTURAL MEETINGS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE DAILY NEWS.

A meeting of the agriculturists was held at the Finger Board School House on Wednesday, 24th January, at 12 o'clock.

Mr Benjamin Whitney was called to the chair, and Mr Alfred Brown was requested to act as secretary.

Mr Whitney briefly stated the object of the meeting, which was to discuss the subject of co-operative action on the part of the farmers.

Mr R. J. Milton was called upon to address the meeting, and briefly noted the losses resulting to the producer from the combined action of grain buyers in monopolizing the purchase of grain, and keeping down prices, thus making out of the earnings of the producer speedy and large fortunes. The co-operative system, so successfully carried out in the cheese factories, was held to illustrate the benefits of co-operation, and the same system could be enunciated with respect to other farming pursuits.

Remarks were made by Messrs John Wilmot, H. McCaugherty, Charles Hysop, J. Ferguson, T. C. Stark and A. Brown.

It was the unanimous opinion of this meeting that the farmers of Pittsburgh should form an association to co-operate in carrying out some arrangement for the better management of their affairs in general.

Moved by T. C. Stark, and seconded by R. J. Milton, that a meeting be held on Friday evening, 2nd February, at Cowan's School House for the purpose of calling attention and discussing the above matters. Carried.—Yours truly,

ALFRED BROWN, Secretary.

In accordance with the above resolution the second meeting of farmers was held at the same place on Friday night last, the object of which was to take into consideration the best means to be adopted for some co-operative action on the part of the producers, with the design of disposing of their grain to better advantage in the autumn than hitherto, and placing on the market barley of a uniform good quality. These subjects were carefully discussed, and the opinion of the meeting was in favour of extended and co-operative action to attain these results. It was stated that the barley produced in this township was of a very superior quality, as many of the brewers and malters in Kingston could testify. It was also shown that losses to the farmers in consequence of the fluctuations in this article, last fall, amounted to a very large sum, caused by the heavy deliverers early in the season by farmers, who were induced to sell with the offer of the rise to a certain period, which period elapsed before the rise or advance in the value of the article took place. It was stated that at Napance, Bath and other points not so accessible to vessels as Kingston higher prices were paid continously, thus drawing away the legitimate trade, and that one should be fostered from Kington to an injurious extent. It was resolved to hold another meeting with the same object in view in another part of the township at Cowan's School House on Friday evening, 2nd Feb. next.

MONTREAL TELEGRAPH COMPANY—NEW ARRANGEMENTS.—The above Telegraph Company have lately made arrangements by which Peterboro, Lindsay and other offices in the district of country, which have heretofore been working on the branch line, will be placed in direct communication with Toronto and Montreal and other intermediate offices, thus avoiding the transfer and consequent delay of messages in repeating which has hitherto been necessary. The work will be completed during the winter, so as to be in time for the resumption of the spring increase of business!

THE BACHELORS' BALL.—The bachelors, forgetful that this is "leap year," have issued cards for a ball at the City Hall on the 9th of February. We should not be surprised if the ladies took it into their heads to resent this infraction of their privileges and take the wind out of the gentlemen's sails.

THE SIXPENNY READINGS.—The last of the Sixpenny Readings in connection with the building fund of St. Paul's Church takes place at Victoria Hall to-morrow (Wednesday) evening, and from the large number of tickets which have been sold, must prove a decided success. A programme of more than ordinary promise appears in another column, from which an interesting evening's amusement may be expected. We understand that ample arrangements will be made to preserve order. The choice of seats will be of course to those who go early.

WOOD MARKET.—We understand that it is the intention of the City Council to cause the removal of the temporary wood market, at the corner of Princess and Barrie streets, at an early date—a step contemplated for some time, though the authorities have never taken decisive action in the matter. At first in consequence of the convenience it afforded persons living in the upper portion of the city, who found it difficult to seek the purchase of fuel at a distance, no attention was paid to the infractions of the by-law in that behalf; but complaints have at length become so rife, regarding the obstruction of the public highways by loaded farmers' sleighs, that an abatement of the nuisance as speedily as possible is urgently required. Place d'Arms is the place set apart by the authorities for the sale of fuel, and no other site will be recognized as legal.

WINTER ASSEMBLIES.—Another of those happy, sociable meetings, known by the term of winter assemblies, so characteristic of the present season, came off with eclat last evening at the residence of Mr John Elliott, Grand Trunk Railway Depot. About thirty-five couples were present—some hailing from the city, a few from the surrounding rural district, and the remainder from the station—and that the select company enjoyed themselves immensely, appeared beyond question of doubt. The young folk, when gathered together to trip the light fantastic toe, always do spend a pleasant time, and there was no exception to the rule on this occasion. From an early hour in the evening till an early hour in the morning, the mazy dance was indulged in—no cessation occurred in "hop, step and swing" (to the lively strains of Montgomery's band) apart from the intermission for supper, which was served in excellent style, reflecting credit on the committee of management. These winter assemblies, are becoming very popular in Kingston, and are appreciated by all classes alike.

PARLIAMENTARY DEBATE.—The Alma Mater Society, in connection with Queen's University, held a meeting on Saturday evening last, at which a very interesting debate occurred. It was decided to resume the discussion on Saturday evening next, Mr John McIntyre being selected as the "member" to introduce a bill on Income Franchise, for parliamentary debate; Mr T. Alexander conducting Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition.

SHEEP.—Messrs W. & J. Elliot shipped today for Albany, over one hundred and fifty prime sheep, purchased in this district. They find a ready sale in the American market.

POLICE COURT, TUESDAY.—(Before Mr Strange, P.M).—Adeline West and Ann Moran, "two smiling beauties," entered on the charge sheet as vagrants, were returned to their familiar quarters in the County Gaol for sixty days—the place from whence they were liberated only yesterday. Adeline received the sentence of her doom with a forced laugh, and the remark that "that was nuffin' in dese here war times." They were removed below. Frederick O'Connor was accused of driving on the public highway without bells, contrary to law. He was dismissed with a reprimand.

SOIREE.—There will be a social or tea-meeting in the Sandhill School House, Pittsburgh on Wednesday evening the 14th of February. Addresses to be delivered by a delegation—several clergymen and other prominent speakers. Music, vocal and instrumental, will enliven the proceedings.

THE DUNKIN BILL.—The voting on the Dunkin liquor law, the purport of which is to prohibit the procuration of licenses and sale of alcoholic spirits by the hotels and saloons, and which has been the cause of quite a furore of excitement in the little town of Napanee during the past week, took place yesterday, and resulted in the defeat of the Dunkinites and the victory of the Oppositionists by a majority of twenty-eight. In the early portion of the day the advocates and supporters of temperance reform rallied to the polls, and bid fair to carry off triumphantly the laurels of the day; but those holding an adverse opinion to these principles, seeing that a desperate effort was inevitable in order to maintain their present position, summoned all possible assistance and attained their object—its defeat.

SIXPENNY READINGS.—The next of the series of Sixpenny Readings, to be given in aid of St. Paul's Church Building Fund, comes off, as will be seen on reference to our advertising columns, to-morrow evening in the Victoria Music Hall. The popularity of these entertainments is already sufficient firmly established as to require no commendation from the press to ensure a large attendance. Care has been exercised to prepare an attractive and pleasing programme, and we are confident that it will give entire satisfaction, representing as it does some of the most prominent and acknowledged musical and literary talent of the city. We hope then to see a full house. By all means let our readers attend, and thus contribute their quota to the very desirable object for which these entertainments are destined to accomplish.

We have to thank H. M. Deroche, Esq., and H. S. McDonald, Esq., M.P.P.'s for late bills and Parliamentary papers.

Professor Dupuis' second lecture on Photography will be delivered at Queen's University this evening. As these lectures are very popular, an early attendance will be necessary to secure a good seat.

WESLEYAN LITERARY ASSOCIATION.—The public meeting of the above association last night was attended by a crowded audience in the lecture room of the Queen Street Church, Rev. G. R. Sanderson, President of the society, in the chair. After the usual opening exercises, the time of the meeting according to previous arrangement, was wholly occupied by a debate, the topic for discussion being presented in the following form:—"Resolved,—That woman, as an intelligent and responsible being, is entitled to the elective franchise." The debate proved to be very spirited, the affirmative being sustained by Drs. Jarvis and Clarke and Captain Crawford, and the negative by Messrs B. M. Britton, W. Tandy and Dr. Lavell. The decision of the audience, to whom the question was submitted by the President, was awarded to the gentlemen who had sustained the negative side, and the proceedings were terminated at a later hour than usual by the doxology and the benediction.

THE MARKETS.—The market this morning at the square was an average one. The supply of meat was, as usual, very good, but in no other edible was there anything especial to note. Small quantities of fresh herrings were offered at rates avaraging from 12½ to 20c per dozen. Grain is coming in very slowly, and in small quantities, and from this fact it is judged that the greater peation of last year's produce has been delivered. No change in quotations. There has been an abundant supply of hay, which readily brings $15. Wood continues to arrive briskly, but in nearly every instance, notwithstanding the quantities on sale, the prices are a little too "brisk" to suit purchasers—from $4,25 to $5; quality inferior.

ROSA D'ERINA.—This favourite young Irish balladist, who has been delighting the Western people with the exceeding sweetness of her vocalism and brilliancy of piano accompaniments, will visit Kingston it is expected in a few days, and afford our citizens a treat such as they have not experienced for many a day. A correspondent of the New York World writes of the vocal abilities of this lady:—"The same providence that has filled the throat of the wild wood-bird with almost heavenly harmonies, and taught the ocean shell its spirit song has given to this velvet-throated lady a voice as sweet and as full of liquid melodies as the love notes of the feathered songsters caroled when the first shafts of rosy dawn begin to drive night's misty shadows from out the leafy bowers used by them as sleeping rooms." What language can speak more eloquent!

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE AT BELEVILLE—A CHILD BURNED TO DEATH.

The Belleville Intelligencer says the ravages of the fire-fiend in our midst had been great this winter, up to the morning of 29th inst., but on that date they culminated in the destruction of the beautiful Marchmont which had been transformed into a "home" for otherwise homeless children, whom the benevolent Miss Macpherson and her co-labourers brought out to this country, and the death of one of its inmates. The fire broke out about 2½ o'clock a.m., in the wooden building in the rear of the kitchen, which was used as a wood-shed. It is supposed that the conflagration originated in the ash-house, which stood immediately in rear of the wood shed. The conjecture is that the ashes had contained coals, which, resting against the door sill or the wooden door, had caused it to ignite, and a gale of wind prevailing at the time, the flames spread with such frightful rapidity that nothing could be done to extinguish them or save the property, although the firemen were present as soon as it was possible for them to reach the spot. The inmates being compelled to flee into the bitter night air with no other covering than their ordinary night dress. All were speedily roused, and the whole of the children (11 small boys, and two larger boys) and 5 adults, were got safely out. The boys, on being taken out were directed to go to the various houses in the neighbourhood to seek shelter. This they did; with, it afterwards turned out, one unfortunate exception. This was one of the smallest of the boys—Robert Gray aged between 6 and 7 years. He with the rest, was taken out, and told to go with the others; but being slightly deaf, it is supposed that he had not heard the admonition given to the other boys, and had returned and entered the burning building. His charred remains were found this morning, in the rear part of the dining room. All that was known of this child was recorded in the Books of the "Home as follows:—"Robert Gray, aged six or seven, a happy little man who can say little or nothing about himself,—June 1871." He was one of those picked up in London, unknown and uncared for by the millions of the metropolis except by the kind and charitable.

An inquest was held on Monday afternoon by Coroners Roy and J. P. McDonnell, and a verdict returned in accordance with the facts. The destruction of the building and its contents is complete; nothing was saved; and the late inmates of Marchmont are now dependent upon the kindness of their friends for shelter, food, and wearing apparel. Miss Bilbrough was peculiarly unfortunate in having lost her gold watch, clothing, and $200 in money. The building, which was the property of the Murney estate, was insured in the Liverpool and London and Globe.

The Hon. Billa Flint makes an appeal through the columns of the Intelligencer to give substantial aid to replace as far as practicable what has been lost in the way, of clothing, bedding, furniture, cooking utensils, &c., at once in order to enable Miss Bilbrough to get at work once more.

We trust that Mr Flint's appeal will be generously responded to.

It is proposed to issue 16,000 tickets for the Thanksgiving festival at St. Paul's, on the occasion of the offering of national prayer in gratitude for the recovery of the Prince of Wales.

ROYAL INSURANCE.—In accordance with their usual custom, the managers of the Royal have issued a large number of beautifully printed almanacs, which have been widely circulated in Canada. The management of this company have always been noted for their free use of printer's ink, and the rapid growth of the business to its present immense proportions will illustrate what results may be expected to follow the adoption of such a policy. In this respect the experience of the Royal differs not at all from that of any other institution which has sought in the same enlightened manner to extend the sphere of its operations.—Monetary Times.
