SPECIAL TELEGRAMS

(Per Montreal Telegraph Line.)

Five Years in the Penitentiary for Stealing Postal Matter.

Berlin, May 9.—The unfortunate lad, William H. Rogers, recently arrested by Mr Armstrong, Post Office Inspector, for stealing the contents of certain letters at Bloomingdale, in this county, in the Post Office of which village he was assistant, was yesterday tried before his honour the County Judge. The prisoner confessed his guilt, and was sentenced to five years' imprisonment in the Kingston Penitentiary. It is to be hoped this will prove a salutary lesson to all in charge of the postal matter of the country. Crimes of this nature, for which the lad Rogers now suffers so great a punishment, may be practised for a while, but detection ultimately follows.

From Toronto.

Toronto, May 9.—Captain Prince having dismissed a constable for being a few minutes late on his beat, though detained by the discharge of his duties, the members of the force have decided to hold a meeting this afternoon to consider the action. The sergeants were called before the police commissioners this morning in consequence of some remarks on the subject in the papers, but what passed has not yet transpired.

Dr. Hallowell yesterday held an inquest on the body of a woman confined at the jail for the last two months who was a lunatic. Verdict—died from nervous debility and exhaustion.

A hotel in the western end of the city has been ordered to be closed in consequence of a death from small-pox in it.

Markets are dull, and inactive. Nothing doing on 'Change.

From Ottawa.

Ottawa, May 9.—Mr Blake's speech on the treaty yesterday is regarded as a fine piece of special pleading and nothing more.

The division on the treaty will probably take place to-morrow.

To-day being Ascension day it is observed as a holiday.

Seven thousand militia are to be assembled at Niagara on the 12th of June.

Locomotive Boiler Explosion.

Watertown, May 9.—The engine Charles Millar exploded its boiler this morning at the depot of the Black River Railroad in this city. Augustus Uncer engineer and Jacob Ingerson fireman were both on the engine the former escaped unhurt and the latter was blown through the window to the ground, but was not injured seriously. The depot and other buildings near were badly shattered fragments of iron penetrated the roofs of several dwellings and the inmates rushed in a panic into the street. Pieces of the boiler ten feet square and weighing fully half a ton came down in a gentleman's door yard forty rods from the scene of the explosion. The bell fell in another yard some rods beyond. The engine is a total wreck.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Tuesday, May 7.—Several new bills were introduced in the House of Commons—one of which, introduced by Mr Gibbs, was to incorporate the Wesleyan Mission Society of Canada.

Sir F. Hincks made the gratifying statement that the Government had decided to repeal the duties on tea and coffee—to take effect on the first of July next. He said he would introduce a bill on Friday for that purpose. The announcement was received with cheers.

Sir John Macdonald stated in reply to Mr Mackenzie, that the bill for the redistribution of seats of constituencies would not be broght down this week, as the Government was considering suggestions from various parts of the country.

Sir John A. Macdonald introduced a Bill respecting Trades Unions, and in doing so explained that the object of the bill was to assimilate the laws relating to strikes and to the civil and common laws on the same subject now in force in England.

Mr Pope's Patent Bill was introduced and read a third time.

Sir F. Hincks moved the third reading of the Bill to amend the Act regulating the issue of Dominion notes.

Mr Holton moved an amendment, but it was rejected—Yeas 54: Nays 107.

Mr Young also offered an amendment, but it shared the same fate.

After a long discussion, the Committee reported the resolutions without amendment; after which the House adjourned.

THE BISHOP OF EXETER AND THE PUBLICAN.

Dr. Temple recently held a visitation at Torrington (North Devon), and while his carriage was being harnessed for the return journey to Barnstable intimated that he would "walk on." The Bishop took the old, hilly road, which is now but little used, and the coachman unaware of this fact drove off via Bideford, quite in another direction. For five miles his lordship trudged on, and becoming fatigued, and seeing no sign of his carriage, on arriving at Newtown Tracey he asked a respectable publican and farmer there to give him a "lift." Boniface had a cart, but the cart was unlicensed, and he pleaded this objection against complying with Dr. Temple's wish. But the Bishop was equal to the emergency; he was desirous to proceed and would pay the cost of a licence. This anxiety aroused the publican's suspicions, who rejoined that if his visitor would "sit down and take a drop o' summat," he would go to Barum and get out a licence. But for this preliminary the Bishop could not wait, and urged his host to harness his cart at once and take out a licence on reaching Barnstaple. More convinced than ever of the character and occupation of the pedestrian, Boniface broke out emphasising his denunciation with sundry strange oaths, "I know thee. Thou'rt one of they supervisor fellows that are always going about the country trying to trap poor folk about their carts." The astonished prelate mildly endeavoured to assuage the wrath of the irate publican by the statement that he was the Bishop of Exeter. "Nothin' o' the sort," retorted the other, "you won't trick me as you did my neighbour t'other week, and get me fined £5." So the Bishop had again to sally forth, until he was picked up, about four miles from his destination, by the carriage which had, in the meanwhile, been sent out in quest of him from Barnstaple. The publican has since been chuckling over his own 'cuteness in "doing" the supervisor, and to a friend who called on Saturday he narrated the incident with great glee. "I know'd un," said he. "He wor got up like a sort o' gentleman varmer, wi' a pair o' gaiters or breeches, and a rummy sort o' hat, but he wor one o' they Excise chaps, and I wasn't goin' to be done, 'cause you see my neighbour was fined t'other day for taking his wife out for a drive." His lordship may be induced after this to aid the agitation for the exemption of farm carts from taxation, simply becase now and then they may be used either for conveying the family to church or giving a timely lift to a Bishop who visits them unawares.
