or president: Theodore Roosevelt New York For vice president: John M. Parkof Louisiana.

Chicago.—Charles E. Hughes of New York and Charles Warren Fairnks of Indiana are the nomine of the Republican party according to the verdict of the delegates in convention assembled in this city on Saturday. Hughes was named on the third ballot and the voting was halted to make the nomination unanimous be fore half of the states had been polled. Fairbanks was selected as the running mate on the first ballot. His name was placed in nomination by John Wanamaker of Philadelphia. Almost at the same time Theodore Roosevelt was unanimously named as the Progressive candidate for president at the "Bull Moose" convention a few blocks away. For two days George W. Perkins and other Progressive leaders held the delegates in check, hoping that a compromise candidate might be agreed upon by the two parties, but they would no longer be stayed when it was seen that the nomination of Hughes was to be effected by the Republicans. John M. Parker of Louisiana was named as the candidate for vice president. The naming of the associate justice of the Supreme court of the United States was the signal for a wild outburst of cheering in the Coliseumthe scene of many demonstrations during the convention. Likewise the naming of the "big chief" of the Progres sives permitted his followers to le loose their pent-up enthusiasm that fairly rocked the Auditorium.

Named on Third Ballot. Two unsuccessful ballots were taken by the Republican delegates before they adjourned Friday night. When indications pointed to the naming of the New York man and the vote was overhelmingly Hughes from the moment the first state—Alabama—was called upon. He was given 9491/2; Roosevelt, 181/2; DuPont, 5; Weeks, 3; Lodge, 7, and LaFollette, 3. Only 494 votes were necessary for the nomi nation.

Compromise Candidate Refused. The nomination of Hughes came after the Republicans turned down the proposal of Col. Theodore Roosevelt that United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts be named as a compromise candidate.

The action of the Progressives in tabling the suggestion of their leader was read before the Republican delegates and Chairman Harding announced that the message would be recorded in the proceedings of the convention.

Roosevelt in a telegram to the Progressive convention received in the morning suggested the name of Senator Lodge as a compromise candidate upon whom both Progressives and Republicans could unite.

Mr. Roosevelt said that at about five he was notified by the Progressive conferees that they had come to no conclusion with the Republican conferees and that the Republican conferees had again asked for any, suggestion of a name as a candidate from the Progressive conferees.

He then wrote to the Progressive the convention met at noon Saturday, preciated their loyalty to him and their efforts to get him nominated, but that he thought the time had come when carrying out the spirit of the statement of the Progressive national committee in January and the statement made by him in Trinidad in February, it was their duty to present an alternative name on which he hoped the Republicans and Progressives could unite. He presented the name of Henry Cabot Lodge. He quoted the three paragraphs of his telegram to W. B. Jackson of Marv-

> He stated that Mr. Lodge had been member of the lower house of congress and of the senate of the United States for thirty years: that he was a man of the highest integrity, great farsightedness, and of wide vision as to national needs, and qualified in every way for the high office of president.

> The Republican convention opened at the Coliseum at 11 a. m., June 7. Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio was elected temporary chairman, and he delivered a speech setting forth conservative Republican principles. Following this the regular committees were appointed and organized and routine convention business went for-There was only moderate expression of enthusiasm at any time. With the hope of agreeing an a presidential candidate whom both parties might support, the Progressives, in convention at the Auditorium, and the Republicans appointed a joint conferconferees stating that he deeply ap ence committee Thursday, and this Nominating speeches began in the Republican convention about three o'clock Friday afternoon, and nominations were closed before eight o'clock. Balloting began at once. Two ballots were taken before adjournment for the night.

The Progressive convention opened at exactly the same time the Republicans started their meeting. Temporary Chairman Raymond Robins delivered the Progressive policy speech. Routine business followed-but it wasn't routine in the same way as the Republican session was. The Progressives, with such men as William Allen White, Victor Murdock and Hiram Johnson, were loudly enthusiastic. This convention was really an explosive affair—cheers, table pounding. radical talk and all that.

It is said that George W. Perkins and some others of the Progressive group had a hard time keeping the radical element from nominating Colonel Roosevelt shortly after the show started. Offended Her Taste.

Apropos of the amusing comments on academic costume that so often reveal popular ignorance of the symbolism of hoods and gowns is the following story, told by a contemporary:

"A friend of mine," says the narrator, "is a curate in a local suburban parish. Some little time back he went up to Oxford to take his master of arts-degree, and the following Sunday appeared in the pulpit resplendent in his new master of arts hood. A few nights later he was dining in the house of a prominent parishioner, and was amazed to hear his hostess pleasantly remark: "'Mr. X., that new hood of yours doesn't suit you at all. I can't imagine why you, with your complexion, chose red of all colors in the world. A myrtle green or an old gold would have suited you much better, and would have been far more effective. You men never know how to dress yourselves.'"
