CLOSE THE SHUTTERS.

Close the shutters—Willie's dead,
Whom we loved so dear—
Like a dream his spirit fled
From our home, now sad and drear.
When the spring-time flowers were blooming
And the happy birds sung sweet,
Angels called him to their home,
Up in Heaven where we shall meet.

Close the shutters—Willie's dead
Hope with him has fled
From our home, now sad and lone
Close the shutters—Willie's dead.

Close the shutters—Willie's dead;
Gone in childhood's bloom,
Pillow'd now his little head
In the cold and silent tomb
O'er his grave the daisies blossom,
Where his little form is laid;
And the murm'ring streamlet plays
Neath the willow's quite shade.

Close the shutters—Willie's dead
Hope with him has fled
From our home, now sad and lone
Close the shutters—Willie's dead.

Close the shutters—Willie's dead;
Death has claimed him now;
Never more his smile will shed
Sunshine on poor mother's brow.
She is almost broken-hearted,
And our home is sad to-day;
Life has lost its hope and joy,
Since our Willie's gone away.

THE EQUALIZATION APPEAL.

Judge Henderson's Dismissal of It.

"I consider that the County Valuators' report, under section 210 of the Municipal Act of 1873, when adopted by the County Council, and until set aside or modified by a subsequent report, is the only legal basis of the equalization of real property in the County for the next five years. In hearing and determining the matters of these appeals under the third sub-section of section 71 of the Assessment Act of 1869, my duty is to ascertain if the sums set opposite each municipality in the by-law passed by the County Council in equalizing the assessment of the County of Frontenac for the year 1877 as far as relates to real property, are the result of an increase or decrease, or of the refusing to increase or decrease according to the valuation made and arrived at by the County Valuators, and I do not feel at liberty to go behind that report to ascertain from evidence proposed to be adduced that the valuators have not performed their duty in the manner required by law, or in other words, to consider the value of every lot or part of lot, if separately assessed, in the seventeen municipalities of which the county is composed, and so possibly be compelled to revise the valuators' report and vary it, though adopted by the Council. The statute has left it to the option of the County Council to ascertain and declare that which shall be the basis of equalizations. The Council have exercised that option, and as the statute says they are bound by it, can I have it possibly in my power to declare in effect they are not? I am convinced that on these appeals I can only vary the equalization made by the by-law of the County Council if I find they have not proceeded to equalize, or refuse to equalize the aggregate valuations of the real property in each municipality on the basis of equalization founded on the valuators' report. It is, I believe, admitted that the County Council have as near as possible proceeded on that basis so far as the real property is concerned.

"Should the appellants' contention be correct, could any County Judge within the short space of a month be able to receive and investigate all the evidence on which he could safely revise, set aside or confirm the report of the County Valuators? (The County Council has until the 1st July to equalize the assessment, and the County Judge must equalize the whole assessment by the county by the 1st of August.) In this case it appears it took from the 12th of October to the 7th of December—nearly two months—for the valuators to do their work, which is now complained of. I may remark that in the few reported cases of appeals from the equalization, no reference is made to any valuators' report made under the 210th section of the Municipal Act, for the reason, I presume, that the County Councils interested in these cases had not availed themselves of the provisions of that section.

"It was asserted during the argument, and not absolutely denied, that a great hardship has been inflicted on a few municipalities by that report and its adoption. I have only to say that however much a minority in the County Council may feel aggrieved, yet when acting within the scope of the statute the will of the majority duly expressed must govern, but beyond the limits of their statutory powers the will of the majority cannot make their acts valid. The difficulties which occur in my not being able to redress on these appeals an alleged grievance in the manner in which the valuators' report was arrived at, can only be remedied by persistent efforts in the Council or by Legislative enactment. It having been been stated by counsel that if I continued in the same opinion as I expressed when these appeals first came on before me the appellants would not further proceed, my only course will be, as I have not changed my opinion, to dismiss the appeals. Order accordingly.

—Who is there that has not sat on the front steps with a certain one, while the whole landscape was bathed in a flood of silvery light, and dreamed that the fabled Utopia had been given to the earth. Yet what a commonplace prosiness surrounds the same spot when she is soon engaged in scrubbing them the next morning, her skirts all suds and wearing a pair of gum shoes, with her little brother's straw hat.

—The editor of the Butler, Pa., Eagle isn't so much to blame. It was the intelligent compositor who mangled his copy and brought him to the verge of the grave by a terrible horsewhipping. That is, he made the editor's report of a tony wedding read, 'The bride's trousers were the loveliest we ever saw.' He wrote trousseau.
