AN AWFUL RAILWAY WRECK

TWO WRECKED AND MANY INJURED.

Train Jumped The Track—Thought The Rails Spread—Cars Were Thrown Into a Ditch.

Newark, N.J., Aug. 30.—The accommodation train leaving Sodus Point and which arrives in this village at six o'clock, was last night derailed at the station at Fairville, about ten miles north of here. Two were killed and twenty-eight injured.

The train was made up at Sodus Point and consisted of four coaches, a baggage car, and engine with William Meagher at the throttle. Chester Flagler was fireman. Conductor H. S. Merriam of Sodus Point, was in charge of the train.

The train was running at nearly forty miles an hour. Approaching the station at Fairville there is a curve and gravel pit. For some unknown reason the engine jumped the track while passing the gravel pit. The force of the accident turned the engine completely around, throwing the five cars on their side.

The train load of some 150 passengers was thrown into the ditch and it is a wonder that the number of fatalities is not greater. The engine and all of the cars were badly broken up and the steam pipes running under the cars were broken in many places. This accounts for the large number of people scalded.

The private car of superintendent Spencer Mead was attached to the train. His wife was seriously ill. The car was derailed but the occupants were not injured.

The cause of the wreck is not known exactly, but it is thought the rails spread. There have been heavy rains recently and probably in this way the tracks were loosened.

The dead are: William Meagher, of Sodus Point, engineer, dead when picked up, and Howard Tubbs, station agent at the Lake Shore station, scalded, and died later.

About twenty-five passengers were seriously injured, most of them being scalded by escaping steam. Rev. Dr. Burgess, one of the injured, may not recover. His right leg is broken and he is badly scalded. Mrs. Burgess is also among the seriously injured.

The Line Blocked.

Rochester, N.Y., Aug. 30.—The entire four-track system of the New York Central railroad was wholly blocked for several hours this morning by the derailment of four cars of a west bound freight train, half a mile west of the Lincoln park.

Band In The Park.

An unusally large attendance greeted the 14th regimental band in Macdonald park last evening on the occasion of the last open air concert of the season. A harvest moon illuminated the surroundings with poetic possibilities and a soft breeze swept shoreward over the bosom of Lake Ontario, cooling the heated atmosphere and making pleasant the two hours spent in the park. The musicians played under great disadvantages, as the breeze played havoc with their music sheets, blowing them over in all directions. However, the concert was one of the most pleasant yet produced. A feature was a song by bandsman John Parle, "Bring You Money Home." The song was capably rendered and an encore demanded, which was accorded. By request the "Miserere," from Trovatore, was repeated. A selection from the opera "Maritana," was a pleasing item, as was also a selection of United States airs.

Quebeckers To Attend.

From present indications the classes at the dairy school will be well filled this winter. Principal Hart has received applications from quite a number of English-speaking Quebec citizens. Heretofore no students have ever come from that province. The instructor in butter-making has not yet been appointed; the other instructors will return this fall.

Typos In Session.

The typographical union met last evening, and initiated one new member. J. J. Hunter was appointed to succeed E. Ball as representative to the trades and labor council. Arrangements were made for turning out on Monday to participate in the labor day parade; it is expected that the printers in line will number between thirty-five and forty.

GREATEST CAMP GROUND.

Rise of Orange Grove, New Jersey, Meetings.

Ainslee's Magazine.

In 1869 ten families joined in a camp-meeting on the shores of what is now Wesley lake, New Jersey. Rev. Dr. Ellwood H. Stokes was chosen president of the Ocean Grove camp-meeting association then and held that office for thirty-two years, until 1897, when he died and went home to glory. Under his direction, it grew from its small beginning until it is now the biggest camp-meeting in the world. The old preaching platform with the straw around it has been gone this good while. (There never was such a harbor for fleas in the round world as straw is). The old backless seats where the congregation sat, only slightly sheltered from sun and shower by strips of canvas, vines and pine branches, are all gone. There was quite a struggle against erecting a permanent roof, but the old fogies were outvoted, and now there is an immense auditorium where 9,000 may take their ease in Zion in comfortable folding chairs. The roof that springs overhead in one parabolic arch is lighted by 1,200 incandescent lamps. The "mourners' bench" is 114 feet long and cushioned.

There are tents still to live in, but not many. They are on raised board floors, carpeted as at home. Centre tables, each adorned with a chenille cover and bearing an easel photograph of that Madonna with the rolled-up eyes, stand in the parlor of every three-roomed tent. Square holes are cut in the side walls, barred with strips of duck and glazed with netting so as to look like real windows. Each has a frame kitchen at the back and a front stoop with a porch-like awning and rocking-chairs. Each had a honeysuckle bush beside it. There are more honeysuckles at Ocean Grove than anywhere else on earth. The air is sticky with their perfume.

By far the greater part of the summer population of Ocean Grove live in hotels and jig-saw cottages, bearing romantic titles and situated in streets with such names as Pilgrim's Pathway, Mount Tabor Way, and Heck avenue. The people are all plain, unaffected folk that do not try to put on style, no matter how rich they are. They all look like "fried potatoes for breakfast and dinner in the middle of the day" people. The architecture of the auditorium, the young people's temple, the tabernacle and Thornley chapel is that of a freight car. They are painted yellow ochre with red-brown trimmings. Near the auditorium is a pavilion that shelters a model of modern Jerusalem and its environs.

In all the world there is not such a chorus as one may hear at Ocean Grove. Among the 500 choristers in the big choir, which is divided into two sections, a morning and an evening choir, that none may have to go to church too often, there are representatives from every state in the union. All is systematized and every ten of the chorus is in charge of a captain that sees that his ten get to rehearsals five nights of the week. In this way oratories like "The Messiah" are put on in six weeks, every singer letter-perfect, though many of them never sang in chorus before, so precise in attack, so responsive to indicated light and shade and giving such volume and beauty of tone that musicians like Walter Damrosch are amazed that such things can be with so large a body of singers.

When Pa Begins To Snore.

James Barton Adams in Denver Post.

My pa's got somepin' in his nose that's fastened there to stay,
That all the neighbors wishes he would lose or give away,
Some sort o' bellerin' affair, like bulls has in their throats,
Or, like a big bass horn, except it never plays no notes,
Ma says it's sleepin' on its back, he says it is natarr,
But you can tet your bloomin' life whatever it may are,
It's there fur doin' bizziness, and it does it, too, fur sure
As all the neighborhood kin tell when pa begins to snore!

Ma says if she'd a' ever knowed that he was sich a fright,
A tryin' to skeer the livin' out an' rise the dead at night,
She'd never have consented fur to be his lovin' wife
An' share his sorrows an' his joys an' load a skepless life.
It's hard on me the same as her, fur when I get asleep
An' dreamin' I'm a hunter bold out in the forest deep:
I feel my hair a risin' up to near a lion roar
An' then wake up in fright to hear it's pa begun to snore!

Ma says that someday when we git to heaven afterwhile,
Where every prospect's goin' to please an' only man be vile,
If people there is jest the same as people here below
She can't imagine how she's goin' to bear the load o' woe!
She thinks that at the usual time up there amongst the blest
The angels 'll be broken o' their sweet celestial rest,
An' tumble 'round a while an' then git up an walk the floor
An' wish he'd never bin redeemed, when pa begins to snore!

Remanded For Sentence.

A young citizen, charged with being drunk, was before the police magistrate this morning. He was arrested yesterday after the scrap with a street railway motorman. He pleaded guilty, and was remanded for a week. The magistrate stated that he had given him a good many chances, and would this time have to deal more severely with him. It is probable that his sentence will be a heavy one.

A Fine Display.

SAVORY DINNER FOR 4 CENTS.

Company in London to Supply 2,000,000 Persons.

London, Aug. 30.—Nearly 2,000,000 Londoners will be given the opportunity of enjoying a daily dinner at a cost of two pence (four cents) by means of a co-operative scheme—"The Agricultural organizing agency (limited)." Its promoters claim that their operations will bring the consumer and the farmer into direct contact, enabling British producers to meet their foreign competitors on equal terms. The company has built an extensive, complete and central steam bakery and kitchen at Millwall dock, covering more than an acre of ground, and connected with the principal railways. Here meat, flour, eggs, vegetables and fruit will be received direct from the farms. Prime joints will be sold to consumers. The boiling parts will be converted into dressed provisions, soups and beef teas to compete with the large importations of foreign meats.

The kitchen will prepare family meals in the form of stews or pies, consisting of a pound of meat without bone, six pounds of vegetables, cereals and dried fruit, sufficient to provide a savory dinner for six persons at a cost of one shilling (twenty-four cents).

Arrangements have been made with more than 3,000 bakers to cook these dinners and deal them out to families. Monthly bills of fare have been provided, showing particular meals for fixed days. Payment in cash is taken in advance weekly from members, monthly from non-members. Dinners are supplied five days in the week. Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays being omitted.

The meats used are beef and mutton only. The vegetables range from potatoes to spinnach. Of cereals there service of the dinners will be on lines are twenty-three varieties, including several American breakfast foods. The similar to those which workmen have already proved to be successful. It is expected that housewives will be equally willing to escape the trouble of cookery, to say nothing of the satisfaction they will have of saving money.

POLITICS EXPENSIVE.

Sir E. Ashmead-Bartlett Tells How He Spent £35,000.

London, Aug. 30.—Some information from Sir Ellis Ashmed-Bartlett, M.P., ... one of the divisions of Sheffield, that will be read with interest.

Before registrar Giffard in the London bankruptcy court, Sir Ellis stated that he did not fully understand the nature of the provisions of two deeds which had entered into with creditors prior to the present proceedings.

The senior official receiver: In the face of the two deeds I have mentioned can you say that you have any interest in the concessions at all, and in which the creditors can benefit under the scheme they have assented to?

On Mr. Ellis' behalf Mr. Willis submitted that the question involved the legal construction of documents, and that he ought not to be expected to answer it.

Sir Ellis said that he must respectfully decline to define his interest under the deeds, but it was the intention that creditors should benefit in the Turkish concessions.

Mr. Seal, a creditor, asked the debtor as to his financial position when he presented himself for election at Sheffield in October last. Debtor said that he had not taken this matter into consideration and could not give the desired information.

The bulk of his creditors already explained Silomo, had received 810s. in £1 and many of them 12s. 6d., and some as much as 16s. in the £1. He estimated that his expenditure in connection with political work and the paper England, had amounted to about £35,000. In consequence of that expenditure, he had been obliged to go into the city to make money.

He had always been at the call of his constituents, he had in respect of travelling and other expenses incurred an outlay of several thousand pounds.

Apart from his expenditure, estimated at £16,000, in connection with England, for which he received no return, he had given eighteen years' hard work to the paper gratuitously.

Eventually the examination was concluded.

Counterfeiter Caught.

Baker City, Oregon, Aug. 30.—In eastern Oregon, on Snake river, deputy United States marshal A. A. Roberts, Portland, and a special agent of the secret service of the treasury department, have captured a complete outfit for making counterfeit money. E. R. Coon was captured while in the act of repairing his tools. An accomplice, a young man named Bud Butts, also was taken. Coon is a jeweller by trade, and a fine machinist. His dies, milling and reeding machine are perfect, and it is said that the gold coins he turned out would pass anywhere. Coon has made a confession.

A Compliment To Canada.

Ottawa, Aug. 30.—A delicate compliment was paid to Canada by the appointment on the staff of the duke of Cornwall and York, to accompany him during his present tour, of a son of the late earl of Albemarle, better known in this country, perhaps, as viscount Bury, and as the son-in-law of the late Sir Allan MacNab, one time prime minister of Canada.

Civic 'Phones In Glasgow.

Glasgow, Aug. 30.—The municipal telephone system was inaugurated yesterday, with all the latest improvements, exceedingly cheap rates, wires, underground, and 16,500 miles of wire. Provision is made for 20,000 subscribers. The service is designed to be as perfect as possible, affording the public every facility for cheap and convenient communication.
