KINGSTON'S DECORATIONS.

THE CITY WAS GAYLY DRESSED IN COLORS.

Chief Decorations Were the Arches And City Buildings—A List Of Buildings And Residences Particularly Noticed.

Kingston's thoroughfares were dressed in bright colors. Never was the old limestone city more gayly decorated. Many places were heavily draped, while others simply fluttered forth a few bright flags, many people saying: "Let their royal highnesses see us as we are."

The chief decoration, of course, was the big arch which spanned the four corners of Princess and Wellington streets, and which rose high in the air, the mass of drapery, flags, shields and other decorations, presenting a brilliant scene.

The city buildings was also prettily decorated. From the dome to the ends of the roof extended long streamers of flags and colors. The front was covered with flags, bamers, shields, bunting and maple leaves. From the niche of the buildings projected the reception pavilion beautifully done in purple and pink. Surrounding the school children's platform were shields, banners and flags. Ontario street was brightly colored, the G. T. R. station, Robertson's, Frontenac hotel, and Folger's office being particularly noticeable. King street was also in bright dress. The buildings facing the market square, including the Whig and Ontario bank buildings were heavily draped. On the corner of Clarence street the customs house, Swift's office and the British American hotel showed artistic decorations. Along residential King street, the chief decorated places were Regiopel college, Montreal bank, heavily done; residences of W. D. Hart, B. W. Folger, Dr. Curtis, Dr. Herald, Miss Ferguson, Rev. R. J. Craig, W. J. Fair, Dr. Strange, W. Bamptield, H. A. Calvin, J. McParland. At the foot of Sir John A. Macdonald's monument in the city park a Canadian flag was draped. The other King street mansions which showed forth in splendour were those of James Hendry, mayor Kent, Mrs. Martin, Edw. J. B. Pense, W. F. Nickle. In Macdonald park, the huge Canadian flag on the 150 foot pole floated.

On Barrie street, the decorations noticeable were on the houses of Jas. Swift, George Y. Chown, A. B. Cunningham, Robert Crawford, the latter three houses being uniformly decorated; Prof. Cappon, city engineer Kirkpatrick, M. Flanagan, Mrs. Shaw, W. G. Kidd, canon Macmorine.

On Stuart street, the arch of maple leaves at Queen's entrance gate, made by the students, was the most natural portion of all the decorations. The general hospital front was beautifully draped with maple leaves, flags and bunting. Continuing out Stuart street, the houses of H. W. Richardson and G. M. Macdonnell were in bright colors. University avenue was a pretty thoroughfare, the residences of George Richardson, T. Mills, hatter, T. Mills, banker, George Mills, F. A. Chown, Dr. Sparks, P. Brown, Prof. Dupuis, alderman White and A. Malone being all a mass of colors. On Union street the orphans' home, houses of E. C. Dean, J. C. Patterson, W. Dunlop, E. Crumley and others were all prominent.

There was drapery from the dome of the court house to the main pillars, and also from the side entrance between the trees to the registry offices. Sydenham street was specially attractive, the residences of judge Britton, John McIntyte, K.C., Miss Folger, F. A. Folger, D. Robertson, Lieut.-Col. Ogilvie, J. B. Carruthers, Mrs. Robertson, Mrs. Ward, being most attractive. The brick row on Johnson street below Clergy, including J. Smith's, R. S. Dobbs and F. Steacy, and Rev. Mr. Crummy's house at the corner shone forth.

At the corner of Barrie and Brock streets, the firemen's canopy arch was a pretty spectacle. It was built of palms at the four corners of the street and draped overhead with bunting.

W. G. Craig's large fence at the corner of Ontario and William streets was banked with palms, interspersed with colors. All along the harbor front, flags floated from vessels and wharves.

Princess street was a bower of beauty. Never before in the history of the ancient limestone city has that famous thoroughfare looked so gay. The merchants generally arose to the importance of the situation and "did themselves proud." The street was really beautiful, being a mass of flags, bunting and appropriate designs from head to foot. The decorations extended westward from Barrie street, but the main portion was included in that portion of the street lying to the east of Barrie street. On either corner of Barrie and Princess streets F. J. Hoag and H. Lougher had their stores beautifully decorated, the first named being deserving of special mention. In the block intervening between Barrie and Clergy streets the stores worthy of mention as being exceptionally beautiful were: G. Hentig, D. Cooper, R. J. Carson, Hong Lee, L. Abramson, Beaupre house, and J. Carson's residence. From St. Andrew's church floated a huge union jack and the flag of St. Andrew.

Between Clergy and Sydenham streets the stores prettiest decorated were: E. R. Welch, B. McConville, J. Thompson, S. S. Corbett, Thomas H. Johns, R. D. Baker, W. Pipe, J. Reid. The decorations of S. S. Corbett and J. Reid were especially beautiful.

From Sydenham to Montreal streets the stores decorated above the average were: T. J. Harrison, Windsor hotel, F. Sawyer, Times office, Ockley Bros., Harrison's stores were handsomely decorated. From the Windsor hotel to Sawyer's shoe store extended a streamer of flags. The Times office also looked very pretty, and the Windsor hotel was beautiful.

Between Montreal and Bagot streets the places worthy of mention were: J. B. McLeod's drug store, A. Strachan's hardware store, J. Crawford, S. J. Horsey, Dalton & Strange, J. Laidlaw & Son, M. Kirkpatrick, Rees Bros., J. Hiscock, G. Mahood, A. O'Brien. The decorations on the stores of S. J. Horsey and A. O'Brien were especially good. From J. B. McLeod's drug store across to the Sons of England hall extended a banner bearing the welcome words: "The Sons of England welcome their future king and queen." The hall windows were profusely and beautifully decorated.

From Bagot to Wellington streets the principal decorations were in front of these stores: Macnee & Mines, Standard bank, Crumley Bros., Randolph hotel, J. Twedell, A. Rooney, A. Abernethy, Starr & Sutcliffe, Lockett's shoe store, Sutherland Bros., Steacy & Steacy, Worthy of mention were the stores of Starr & Sutcliffe, Randolph hotel, and the Standard bank. The last mentioned place was especially worthy of mention, being composed of flags, artistically draped, large busts, in bas relief, of the duke and duchess of York and artistically draped bunting.

On Wellington street George Mills had the front of his store handsomely beautified. Between Wellington and King streets the stores which were beautified were: W. A. Mitchell, C. L. Bass, H. Angrove, I. H. Breck, J. C. R. Dobbs, H. D. Bibby, Elliott Bros., hotel Imperial, Daily News, W. J. Paul, Howland Bros. The Daily News, W. A. Mitchell and hotel Imperial were the prettiest decorated. From Howland Bros.' to Hon. senator Sullivan's residence was a handsomely constructed streamer. Another streamer of flags extended from the stores of G. Thompson and L. W. Murphy, and still another one from Moberly & Green's shop to the south side of the street.

On King street the main decorations were in front of H. Wade's drug store and the Canadian express office. On Brock street, leading to Ontario street, the places which looked beautiful were the stores of T. Pelow, W. Tait, T. Sullivan, American hotel and O. K. house. Peter Devlin also had his hotel prettily fixed up.

The Ontario street fire hall was artistically beautified. Streamers were draped from the high tower to the sides of the hall, while the front was one mass of flags and bunting. Over the two main doors were suspended these mottos: "Kingston, Loyal and True," "Welcome to Kingston." The building was really beautiful and reflected much credit upon the loyal firemen.

Capt. Gaskin came to the front with handsome decorations. He had a huge lion and a gun taken from the walls of Derry mounted on a platform, which showed great taste in the manner of its decorations. The front of his dwelling was also handsomely draped and bore suitable mottoes. Over the street, between Oldrieve & Horn's and A. Maclean's stores extended a beautiful streamer of flags. The Ottawa hotel was artistically draped. The Rathbun company's office also displayed much taste in the character of its decorations.

The Victoria creamery company, of Lindsay, received the order for the supply of butter to be used at government house, Toronto, and was partaken of by their excellencies the duke and duchess of York. It is made by Mr. Downer, a graduate of the Kingston dairy school, and is on sale at Gilbert's three stores.

Severe Cases of Indigestion.

Cannot Be Cured By Ordinary Stomach Medicines—The Kidneys, Liver and Bowels Become Deranged—Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills Cure.

By far the most important part of digestion takes place in the intestines and has been repeatedly shown in cases where the stomach has been removed and the patient has lived and digested food without the aid of the stomach.

It frequently happens that people who continually dose the stomach for indigestion and use pepsin and various kinds of digestive tablets and powders can obtain no relief from such treatment, because the real trouble is in the intestines, the liver and the kidneys.

There is fulness and pains after meals, coated tongue, headache, loss of appetite, pains in the limbs and in the back and shoulders, flatulency and constipation, frequently alternating with diarrhoea.

In cases of intestinal indigestion the liver and kidneys usually become clogged and sluggish in action, and poisonous impurities are left in the blood which should be removed by these filtering organs.

There has yet to be a remedy discovered that is so prompt and thorough in curing intestinal indigestion as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. And as this is the most common and severe form of indigestion it can well be claimed that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the most successful treatment extant for indigestion and dyspepsia.

It is not unusual for persons who have long been suffering from chronic indigestion, biliousness and constipation to be thoroughly cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which have by far the largest sale of any similar remedy. You may be skeptical, as others have been before you, but a single trial of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will convince you of their unusual medicinal value.

Joseph Blackwell, Holmesville, Ont., says: "I derived more benefit from the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills than from any other medicine I ever took and can highly recommend them for stomach troubles. I was in a terrible state and could hardly work at my trade. I tried most every kind of medicine, and doctors, until I was tired of doctoring, and before I used one box of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I could see that they were helping me, and after taking a box and a half found that I was cured."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose. 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

ROYALTY VISITS R. M. C.

THE DUKE OF YORK REVIEWS THE CADETS.

Gave Expression of His Gratification — Splendid Gymnastic Drill—The Royal Party Visits The Cadets' Quarters And The College.

If there is one place in all Canada which a representative of the throne of Greater Britain should visit—outside of the capital city and that Gibraltar of North America, Quebec, where was fought the decisive battle of the Plains of Abraham by which Canada became a British possession—that one place is Kingston; and, if for no other reason, then because it is located the Royal Military college of Canada, an institution that has furnished scores of splendid officers who have won undying names and immortal fame in the imperial service. The names of Stairs, Girouard, McInnes, Kirkpatrick, Robinson, McKay, Sloggett, Nanton and of many another brilliant graduate are known throughout the British empire, as Canadian soldiers who have bled—yes, died, some of them—for the honor and glory of the mother country.

Capt. Stairs died in Central Africa, whither he went with the great explorer, Henry M. Stanley. McInnes of the engineer forces, laid out the strong defences at Kimberley during the memorable siege by the Boers in 1900; Robinson, McKay and Sloggett, after valiant service for the flag, died on west coast of Africa. Capt. Nanton, of the Royal engineers, was made a brevet major for work done in South Africa. These are only a few of the many whom Canada has given to uphold and advance the empire's greatness.

Surely, it was eminently befitting that the duke and duchess of York should visit the institution which gave these men, trained and well disciplined, to the world. This their royal highnesses were pleased to do. And so to-day, at the close of the ceremonies at Queen's university, a visit was paid to the institution. After leaving Princess street, the royal procession moved along Ontario street to Cataraqui bridge, over which they crossed to the military college grounds. From 11.50 a.m. until fifteen minutes after the royal procession had passed, the bridge was closed to vehicular traffic. Arriving at the college grounds the ducal party was received with a royal salute of twenty-one guns, fired by the military staff and cadets on the command of the commandant, Lieut.-Col. R. Reade.

A handsomely decorated stand had been erected in front of the gymnasium, directly facing the college. This was reserved for their royal highnesses. On their left ample accommodation was provided for the mayor, the city council, and Col. Twitchell, United States consul, who had been invited to attend. As the royal party entered the college grounds the royal standard was raised on the tower, and floated there, in the loyal winds that love it well, until their departure, when it was lowered, and the ensign substituted. The buildings, with the exception of the stands erected to accommodate the visitors, were not decorated. This was not the intention. Rather, the commandant desired to present for the inspection of England's future king, a properly and well-kept barracks. In this he succeeded, for no tidier, neater grounds could be found anywhere.

The cheers of the assembled people joined with the reverberating roll of the guns up to the saluting point. When the duchess took up a position on the reviewing stand the cheers broke out afresh, and they were good, hearty, loyal cheers, such as free-born Anglo-Saxons alone can give. A half squadron of the 4th Hussars, kindly furnished by Col. Montizambert, D.O.C., did excellent service in keeping order. The duke remained at the saluting point, with his staff.

The next moment the cadets' opportunity came, and they proved themselves equal to the occasion. Their red coats and polished accoutrements flashed in the bright sunlight of the lovely October day, as they marched briskly across the square till they came in front of the royal stand. And how splendidly they looked—with heads erect, lithe form and graceful bearing—soldiers, every inch of them! No wonder the duke gazed at them in admiration, and a pleased expression stole into his generally impassive features. The cadets were in review order, with the exception of the recruits, who were in drill order, and, to the number of eighty-seven, in column of cadet battalion they marched past the saluting point under command of Maj. Logan. Their movements were accomplished with a wonderful precision and business-like briskness, which earned for them the plaudits of the spectators. Then the gymnastic squad, comprising over thirty cadets, fell out, and the remainder formed a fine-looking guard of honor under Maj. Hewett.

In their white uniforms, the squad gave a most creditable display of free gymnastics, consisting of pyramid building, etc. They were closely and attentively watched by their royal highnesses. "That's good," exclaimed the duke, as some particular exercise pleased him. The forming of the human pyramid was done in a manner that would move a king to applaud, and the royal visitor clapped his hands and exclaimed: "Fine, that's fine," and pounded his cane on the floor.

A happy event of the visit was the presentation to the duchess of a handsome bouquet of white roses, tied with a satin bow, from which dangled a bunch of prettily tinted maple leaves. The presentation was made by the little daughter of Col. and Mrs. Reade. The royal party afterwards inspected the cadets' quarters and the college—an item that was not included on the programme.

The drill squad then manned the guns, showing his royal highness that the cadets are practised in gun drill as well as in infantry drill. Owing to the college's nine-pounder being at present in the arsenal at Quebec for repairs, four of "A" field battery's twelve-pounders were kindly loaned by Col. Drury for the occasion, and with these the gymnastic squad fired a salute, under command of Maj. Van Straubenzee, as the royal party took their departure. The commandant regretted that the duke's visit was not of sufficient duration to permit of an exhibition of engineer work, in which the cadets are thoroughly drilled.

At the conclusion of the exercises, which occupied about half an hour, Mrs. Raymond Reade and the wives of the professors were presented to their royal highnesses.

Col. Reade much regretted that the contract for the new gymnasium had not been awarded in time, so that his royal highness might have been asked to lay the foundation stone. The money has, however been voted, and it is probable that the R. M. C. will soon have a much-needed new gymnasium. That the government takes a great interest in the college is evidenced in several ways. A new hospital has been erected at the east end of the main building, and a new electric lighting plant has been installed, both of which works will be completed by Christmas, and will be a great improvement. The finest type of a six pound, quick-firing gun has just been presented to the college by the militia department, and some heavy ordnance and a modern field gun have been promised. A fine sailing boat, built by Bowman, of the city, is another recent acquisition and in honor of to-day's royal visit it will hereafter bear the old, historic name of "York."

FROM OTTAWA VETERANS.

Presented To The Duke At The City Hall.

Among the addresses presented to the duke to-day was one from the United Service veterans' regiment, of Ottawa, which was presented by Capt. R. J. Wicksteed, of that city, he having received the necessary permission from Maj. Maude after a considerable delay, which necessitated his coming to Kingston. The address follows:

"To his royal highness, etc. May it please your royal highness:

"Holding rank, as your royal highness does, in the navy and army of our most gracious sovereign king Edward, the United Service veterans' regiment, of Ottawa, Canada, deem it most peculiarly appropriate that they are permitted to welcome and say farewell to his eldest son and heir.

"The members of the regiment are soldiers and sailors of his majesty's service, honourably discharged, and militiamen of the empire, duly enrolled, and who have served actively. In its ranks are his majesty's soldiers and sailors, who have served in the wars of the empire from the Crimean war downwards in date; and Canadian volunteer militiamen, who have served their country at various times since the year 1863. The United Service veterans corps, thus representing in miniature the armed forces of the British empire, desire to give a royal salute to your grace and her highness, the duchess of Cornwall and York.

"The objects of the association are surely commendable: For although not a military nation, the British nation is a warlike one, and should substantially reward its soldiers and sailors after they have ceased to serve actively their country. Other European and American nations, kingdoms and empires encourage their citizens and rulers to give the preference in civil employments—of suitable character—to honorably discharged military and naval men. It is, mainly, for the purpose of thus pressing the claims of its old soldiers and defenders on Canadian citizens, and in this and other ways watching over their interests, that this organization has been formed—and with some success.

"The veterans trust that your visit and inspection of the other colonies and Canada has been as pleasant to you as it has been to your royal father's subjects. They hope that the short Atlantic voyage, now close at hand, will be uneventful and endured in safety, and that your royal highnesses will be given back in good health to your family and friends.

"In fine: That your experience of the extent and value of the British empire, its climates and peoples, and their laws, customs, habits, virtues and shortcomings will be, from the exertions of your royal highness, of great future benefit to the empire as a whole, and used understandingly for the advantage of the loyal communities you have by your presence and gracious words encouraged and stimulated, is the confident trust and prayer of your humble and devoted servants and the crown's reliable and loyal supporters, the United Service veterans of Ottawa.

"Dated at Ottawa, Canada, this 10th day of October, 1901. Signed on behalf of the corps, R. J. WICKSTEED, captain and commander."
