OVER THE TEA CUPS.

On Wednesday morning Kingston's social world received a distinct surprise when it became known that arrangements had been made for a quiet wedding to take place that afternoon at the residence of Mr. John McIntyre, K.C. The news of the engagement between Miss Etta Macpherson and Mr. Bruce Carruthers had so lately been received that many in town had not even had an opportunity to offer congratulations upon that pleasant announcement and the hasty marriage was unlooked for. But the further news of Mr. Carruthers' appointment as one of the officers of the third Canadian contingent, proved itself the raison d'etre of the unexpected event. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John Mackie, and the groomsman was Mr. H. H. Gildersleeve. The bride looked particularly well as she entered the drawing room with Mr. McIntyre. Her gown was dotted white crepe de chine and she carried a shower bouquet of American beauties, the deep crimson contrasting richly with the soft white wedding gown. Two little nieces of the bridegroom, Misses Phyllis and Charlie Shortt, acted as maids of honor. The only others who were present at the ceremony were Mrs. McIntyre, Mr. and Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Mackie, Misses Annie and Edith Macpherson and Miss Mabel Gildersleeve.

Mr. Carruthers has since received word from the war office to await further orders before proceeding to Halifax, so he did not leave with the soldiers on the troop train as was expected, but he and his bride leave tomorrow for Ottawa, where they will visit Colonel and Mrs. Rutherford. The best wishes for happiness go with them from a host of loyal and true friends, for both bride and groom are in very truth "a popular couple." As sorrow is so often akin to joy there is a strong tinge of regret in this case that the groom must go to Africa, while his bride awaits his return from the war, but all who know Mrs. Bruce Carruthers admit her to be of the true sort for a soldier's wife, brave and strong and courageous, and the thought of the parting will be softened by the knowledge that her husband is one of those chosen to lead the Canadian soldiers to their duty on the field, for they are going straight on to Pretoria. May he have a save return covered with honor.

"Lady Gay" in Toronto Saturday Night writes thus of the Carruthers-Macpherson marriage:

Captain Bruce Carruthers, the handsomest man in Ontario, and Miss Etta Macpherson, a very popular and delightful lady, were very quietly married this week, before the social world had recovered from the announcement of their engagement. Not that the social world wasn't delighted, but when an announcement is just what everyone would call a perfect match, it so seldom is made. In this case, the marriage followed so soon, "a l'Anglais," because the bridegroom was off to the war this week. A honeymoon in Halifax will be spent while the contingent outfits, and then with added bonds to come back safely, handsome Bruce Carruthers will sail away with his men. The bride is descended from a stock which never whimpered over giving its best to its country and its king, and Mrs. Carruthers is a true and loyal Macpherson.

After spending the early part of last evening at the Foresters' dance at the city hall, a jolly party adjourned to Tete de Pont barracks, where a most tempting supper was spread in the mess room. The table was prettily arranged and from every point of view the supper reflected great credit upon the mess caterer, Captain Leslie and Captain Lafferty presided at either end of the long table around which were seated Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. Hudson, Lieut.-Cols. and Mrs. Hunter Ogilvie, Captain and Mrs. Eaton, Mrs. Carruthers, Mrs. Mackenzie, Mrs. Leslie, Miss Clements, Miss Edith Drury, Miss Mabel Gildersleeve, Miss Frances Macaulay, Miss Grace Kirkpatrick, Miss Etta Callaghan, Mr. Arthur Macnee, Mr. Hart, Mr. Caldwell, and Mr. Almon.

Captain Leslie proposed the King's health, after which any adjournment was made to the reading room and the party dispersed shortly before one o'clock, thanking their hosts for a delightful evening.

Miss Macaulay was "At Home" at the tea hour on Thursday in honor of Mrs. Stafford Kirkpatrick and the Misses Kirkpatrick, who are her guests. Mrs. Garrett and Miss Deacon poured tea and coffee, and Mrs. Pense served ice cream, while a bevy of girls passed in and out among the guests seeing that all were served. The tea table was a thing of beauty, handsome old family silver glistening upon the polished mahogany table with its softly arranged centre of white silk, and floral decorations of green and white.

The announcement of Miss Nettie Barwick's engagement to Mr. Ewart Osborne, of Toronto, is calling forth many wishes for happiness from her Kingston friends. Miss Barwick was one of the bright girl visitors at the Military College ball last June when she spent a week with Mrs. A. T. Ogilvie.

An extraordinary social event, in which three generations were represented, took place this week at Springfield, Ohio, when grandparents, celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary, parents, their twenty-fifth, and the granddaughter and daughter were married. The central figures in this event are Mr. and Mrs. John Welier Brown, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Hoover, and Miss Annie Hoover and Charles McPherson. The three brides of different periods wore white, and part of the scheme of decoration was the dates of the various weddings. The Brown wedding, 1851, in yellow carnations, the Hoover wedding, 1876, in white, and the McPherson, 1901, in delicate silk. Mr. and Mrs. Brown have eight grandchildren, all of whom were present.

REWARD FOR BRAVERY.

Decorated With The Distinguished Service Medal.

Calgary Herald

Very soldierly, very proud of his duty looked Col. Sanders yesterday as he stood in front of his men paraded in the barracks square, reading the royal order, "given at our court at Sandringham," conferring the distinguished service medal upon Capt. Cartwright.

The stalwart captain looked as if he would have liked to dispense with the parade part of the performance, but he stood the ordeal well and at a sign from the colonel advanced to where his commanding officer was standing and brought his hand to the salute.

Then Corpl. Brankley advanced and handed Col. Sanders the medal, which he pinned upon the captain's breast. The sergeant-major stepped forward and led the men in a ringing three times three, and the spirit with which the cheers were given showed that Capt. Cartwright was popular with the men.

There was not a great many members of the force present, many of the men being absent on detachment duty and the affair, was not much as a military display, but the real British spirit was there. There was more of the business than the sentiment of arms about it. Col. Sanders, the officer in command, had faced death in a foreign land and acquitted himself like a British soldier, with skill and gallantry. Capt. Cartwright was receiving the medal for bravery in action, while among the little band of men paraded there was more than one who came very close to death where Boer bullets were flying.

After the close of the parade, Capt. Cartwright received the congratulations of his brother officers.

Christmas Cheer.

"Not what we give, but what we have,
The gift without the giver is vane."

It is hoped this year many people will interest themselves in sending Christmas dinners to poor families. If, instead of giving a dollar for Christmas cheer they'll put love and sympathy with material things for a Christmas dinner into a basket. After the festival the sympathy may remain. Will those willing to send a dinner to a poor family kindly send their names and addresses to Mrs Chown, 187 Brock street? She will send by return mail the name of a family needing a Christmas dinner.

The annual St. George's society distribution will be dropped this year. It has been carried on through the personal work of a very few, and distributed with kindest of feeling by those who have ever striven in charitable and philanthropic matters to do the right and the generous thing. This did not spare them from repeated criticism, from those who have never helped as well as those who did help.

Omit The Fifth Verse.

An English clergyman had married a young woman with a reputed dowry of about £10,000, while he himself had "great expectations." Needless to say every soul in the village knew about it. It was the first Sunday after their return from the honeymoon, and when the sermon was finished, the parson proceeded, as usual, to give out the hymn, verse for verse, to his rustic congregation. All went well until the fifth verse was reached, and the parson began: "Forever let my grateful heart," when suddenly and with some confusion, he exclaimed: "Omit the fifth verse!" and immediately began to recite aloud the sixth verse instead. Those who had hymn books promptly read the fifth verse:

Forever let my grateful heart
His boundless grace adore;
Which gives ten thousand blessings now,
And bids him hope for more.

'CAUSE MAMMA CRIED.

Magistrate Forgot Law And Sent Prisoners Away Happy.

New York, Dec. 14.—They stood trembling yesterday morning in the Newark police court—Joe and little Dick—and when judge Lamber asked asked them why they had stolen a loaf of bread Joe spoke up, for he was eleven, two years older than his brother:

"We was all so hungry, so me and Dick started out to get somethin' to eat—and we took the loaf of bread, coz mamma and baby cried," Joe answered, striving to fight back the tears.

"It was this way," Joe continued, as he took Dick's hand. "We had no fire in our house since Friday. Papa couldn't find any work, and yesterday we didn't have only a little to eat. All of us was awful hungry when we went to bed, and little sister cried all night for the cold, and when daylight come me and Dick got up and went out.

"We walk along the street and saw the baker leave a big basket of bread in front of the grocer's. 'My!' says Dick to me, 'if we had a loaf of that to take home to mamma!' I just couldn't help grabbing the bread, but the grocer saw us and yelled to the policeman and he arrested us."

Truant officer Haynes had investigated the boys' story and found that the family, consisting of parents and six children, lived on the top floor of the tenement, No. 407 Washington streets. Father Carroll, of St. Bridget's church, said that Conway was an industrious man, but was unfortunate in not being able to obtain employment.

Judge Lambert called Mrs. Conway to him and slipped a bill in her hand. The policeman who had arrested Joe and Dick took up a collection, and the family was sent home happy.

IN HIS MEMORY.

Masons Place A Wreath on Washington's Grave.

Fredericksburg, Va., Dec. 14.—A delegation representing lodge No. 4, of masons, of this city, went to Mount Vernon, to-day, and on behalf of the lodge, placed a wreath of evergreens on the grave of George Washington. This tribute is an annual custom on the part of the lodge on December 14th, the anniversary of Washington's death. In June of each year a messenger to bear the wreath to the tomb is chosen and permission obtained to place the offering upon the sarcophagus in the vault. The first president was a member of this lodge, and the records showing his initiation, passing and raising and bearing his signature to the constitution, and the bible on which he was obligated, are sacredly preserved among the treasured relics of the lodge.

CURBING TRUSTS.

They May Be Brought Under Federal Supervision.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 14.—The industrial commission ceases to exist to-morrow and much interest is manifested in the report it has prepared for congress. According to a reliable forecast the commission will recommend that the trusts should be brought under federal supervision similar to that exercised over the national banks. The commissioners think that the books of the great corporations should be as open to inspection of federal officers as are the books of national banks. In the opinion of the commission federal supervision would prevent the trusts issuing more stock than their actual assets warrant.

How It Is Done.

The first object in life with the Canadian people is to "get rich"; the second, how to regain good health. The first can be obtained by energy, honesty and saving; the second, (good health) by using Green's August Flower. Should you be a despondent sufferer from any of the effects of dyspepsia, liver complaint, appendicitis, indigestion, etc., such as sick headache, palpitation of the heart, sour stomach, habitual costiveness, dizziness of the head, nervous prostration, low spirits, etc., you need not suffer another day. Two doses of the well-known August Flower will relieve you at once. Regular size, 75c. For sale at Wade's drug store.

CHARLES CLARKE,
Clerk Legislative Assembly.

Toronto, 10th December, 1901.

A VALUABLE REPORT.

On The Ore Deposits In The County And District.

John Donnelly, M.E., has received through the courtesy of Robert Bell, M.D., D.Sc., F.R.S., assistant director of the geological survey of Canada, the first annual report of the survey of the iron ore deposits along the line of the K. & P. railway, in eastern Ontario. The report is the outcome of a careful survey made by Elfric Drew Ingall, M.E., some years ago. The report is exhaustive in its completeness and deals with that portion of Ontario tributary to Kingston, covering part of the counties of Frontenac, Lanark, Renfrew and Leeds. It comprises the detailed results of field work done in 1895 and 1900, supplementing a previous condensed report on the subject. In this work Mr. Ingall was assisted by A. M. Campbell and T. Denis.

The general map accompanying the report is the work of James White, F.R.S., attached to the staff of the mines section. It was originally undertaken with a view to illustrating the location of the many scattered deposits of phosphate, mica, etc., in this district, and is now used as an adjunct to this report to provide a means of showing the location of those deposits examined in the course of the work of the surveyors.

The chief surveyor, Mr. Ingall, returns thanks for information, among others, to the officials of the K. & P. railway company, Joseph Bawden, A. T. Drummond, John Donnelly, A. J. Macdonnell, M. Grasty, J. G. Campbell and others.

Mr. Donnelly says the report is most complete and he is of opinion that those in this district who are interested in mining owe Mr. Ingall a debt of gratitude for the exhaustive information he has compiled. The map, itself, is of inestimable value, but its worth is greatly enhanced by the information which accompanies it in the report. To Mr. Bell much credit is due for the expediency he has shown in having printed and distributed the report and map. Together they form a valuable source of information to all interested in mines in this district.
