PLIMSOLL WANTED.

A Sensible Suggestion Very Sensibly Described and Put.

(Owen Sound Times.)

The foundering of the "Simcoe," with the sad loss of life connected with it, brings up again a question often coming to the surface when this or some similar calamity has aroused public attention, but only to die away till it is brought up by some fresh disaster—the question of whether some system of vessel inspection could not be devised which would prevent many of these catastrophes and save the lives of brave men now annually sacrificed through the foundering of old scafts at sea. We have no wish to reflect on owners, many of whom, even were they to make a personal examination, have not the necessary skill to know whether a vessel is seaworthy or not; and stockholders, while a vessel floats and a crew are willing to go on her, may not be aware that she is really unsafe, but nevertheless there is a strong feeling in the public mind that more than one vessel lost on the lakes within a short time has been unfit for sea, and men have been sent to their graves through lack of proper inspection to prevent vessels of this character going out heavily loaded. To take the case of the "Simcoe," for instance, we believe it was a fact tolerably well known amongst seafaring men that, although with powerful engine and well equipped in other respects, she was totally unmanageable in a sea with a heavy load on, and it is current rumor that captains of other boats gave her a wide berth in passing because they knew this peculiarity. That being the case, she should never have been allowed to leave port at this tempestuous season with the heavy load she carried on her last fatal trip.

We have, it is true, a Board of Steamboat Inspectors, but their inspection is confined principally to the boilers and machinery; while the hull is not looked after unless it may be by the underwriter, anxious to take a risk and often not too particular if the owners have other vessels whose insurance he would lose if he were critical about one which appeared to be not so good a risk. It is contended by some that sailors may be safely left to look after themselves, as they have the remedy in their own hands, and need not ship on vessels they believe to be unseaworthy. But it must be recollected that men have their living to earn, that they cannot be certain that the vessel is going to go down, that if they refuse to go, others will take their places, and if the vessel comes through all right they will be looked on as cowards, with their situations gone and diminished prospects of getting another berth. And so brave men take their lives in their hands and go on venturing till they find a watery grave.

Will not some member of the Dominion Parliament take up the cause of "them that go down to the sea in ships," and secure such a system of inspection as will in a great measure prevent the appalling loss of life we witness every season?

HERO OF CANDAHAR.

Given the Freedom of London—Its Honors and Peculiar Privileges.

The honor of the freedom of London proffered to General Robert's is quite rare, and the ceremony is an impressive one. Citizens meet at the Guildhall and vote to give the invitation, after which the person concerned, being notified of the warrant, appears before the City Chamberlain and receives his formal permission. His name is placed in a book kept for the purpose, together with the names of various officials who vouch for his good citizenship. The Chamberlain administers an oath of fidelity and gives him a gold box containing a parchment promising the "franchise of freeman of London" to him and to his children dwelling within seven miles of the city. Nor is this a barren privilege, for the holder of it has certain valuable rights and prerogatives if he chooses to insist on them. He may engage in retail trade without being taxed; if his children become orphans they may be made the wards of the city. Among the persons who have been invested with the freedom of the city are General Blucher, M. Thiers, the Emperors of France and Russia, the Shah of Persia, the Sultan of Turkey, General Grant and Lords Beaconsfield and Salisbury. The latest name set on the distinguished roll is that of a clergyman's son from Waterford. General Roberts is not yet fifty years of age. Less than two years ago he was an artillery officer in Bengal, with the practical rank of Major. Now he is a Lieutenant-General, a Knight Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath, and a Companion of the Order of the Indian Empire. As soon as he arrived in England last month he was called to pay a visit to the Queen of Windsor Castle, and was pressed with invitations to a round dozen of complimentary banquets, one of which is to come off at Dublin on the 6th inst. His great achievement in Afghanistan was his brilliant march from Cabul to Candahar in August last. The force for the relief of Candahar which he led mustered 3,636 Europeans, 7,150 natives and 8,000 camp followers. He reached Candahar on August 31, having marched 345 miles in 21 days, or more than sixteen miles a day, and he accomplished this remarkable feat with the loss of one British soldier and less than a dozen natives. Military critics have declared the performance to have been the most brilliant military operation successfully undertaken since General Sherman's March to the Sea.

SHEEP RAISING.

A United States Opinion of the Business in Canada.

Unless we mistake the signs of the times the farmers of Canada West do not intend to fall into the mistake that has been made by the agriculturists of the Eastern States of the Union. The idea has somehow gained ground among our American farmers that sheep raising cannot be profitably pursued as a department of agriculture except upon the the mammoth farms of the West, and Eastern farmers consequently neglect a department of stock-raising which, thanks to the high tariff on wool and the opportunities for a market for fresh mutton, should be the most profitable and remunerative branch of farm industry.

If the sandy downs that cover the upper portion of Long Island, with their magnificent adaptability for the raising of root crops, were in the hands of Cheviot sheep farmers, Long Island mutton would command its own price in the New York markets and the wool supply would be a sufficient source of revenue to make the farmers rich. In Greene and Ulster and Sullivan counties, New York, there are thousands of acres of rich uplands that could easily support immense flocks of sheep, where now a sheep is rarely seen. Even the land that in Vermont is freely offered to any settler bold enough to pay the taxes upon it is not one whit more sterile than the hills that in Scotland are made to return a rich revenue to the owners of the fleecy flocks that graze upon it, and in the hands of Scottish shepherds it could be made more valuable than the fertile praries of the west. But what can be expected of agriculturists who are content to read in their agricultural journals as a great Ohio discovery the fact that turnips offered good winter fodder for sheep!

The Canadian farmers, without our advantages of an exceptionally high duty on wool and an unfailing market for mutton, have been wise enough to discern the opportunity that awaits them in the department of sheep-raising. They understand that in wheat production they cannot compete with the virgin prairies of Manitoba, and they are shrewd enough to understand the course by which they can command fortune. During the past season large purchases of good stock have been made in Scotland for the Canadian market, and there is every reason to anticipate that within a few years this will be one of the most important sources of revenue in the older portion of Canada. Even with the existing high tariff, but with the advantage of cheaper transportation to the United States, Canadian wool-growers might find a profitable market here, while in the not improbable event of the establishment of a reciprocal treaty between Canada and the United States—an event which the existing tariff on European imports in Canada is designed to facilitate—the door would at once be thrown open to Canadian wool growers to the most profitable market in the world.—*N. ARCTIC EXPLORATION.

At a meeting of the New York Naval Institute, held recently, Lieut. Schwatka, of the United States Army, read an interesting paper relating to his search after the relics of Sir John Franklin's expedition. The Lieut. described the North-West Passage, saying that in the fifteenth century Venice, "mistress of the sea," leagued with the Turks against Rome and the Grecian Empire, held the Indian commerce through the clutches of the Mamelukes upon Egypt. Vasco Da Gama, in 1498, doubled the Cape of Good Hope and discovered a new route to the Indies, which the Pope, by a bull, gave to Portugal in order to humiliate and crush his Eastern enemies. With a voyage of John Cabot began the exploration of the North-West Passage. Since then Great Britain has prosecuted a long series of Arctic explorations, which, commencing with Cabot, culminated in the terrible and mysterious fate of the final discoveries and the heroic efforts to succor them. These experiences fully prove the worthlessness of this thoroughfare, guarded by a chilly castle, with its countless bastions of bristling bergs and ceaseless curtains of eternal ice. In prosecuting the search for this and the sister passage over fifty ships have been employed, and out of this number ten have been lost, crushed in the ice, and five fully equipped expeditions have been completely swept from existence, losing all their ships and men, the last of which was that of Sir John Franklin, who sailed from England in May, 1845. In speaking of the different Franklin search parties Lieut. Schwatka said that among those which achieved success were those commanded by Dr. Rae, Admiral Sir Leopold McClintock and Captain Hall. The Lieut. entered into a history of the expedition with which he had been connected.

MANHOOD RESTORED.

A victim of early imprudence, causing nervous debility, premature decay, etc., having tried in vain every known remedy, has discovered a simple means of self-cure, which he will send free to his fellow-sufferers. Add. on J. H. REEVES, 43 Chatham st., N.Y.

Oct. 8.

The Great American Remedy for COUGHS, COLDS, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, LOSS OF VOICE, HOARSENESS AND THROAT AFFECTIONS.

Prepared from the Sweet Red Spruce Gum. (Dedicated many years ago by King Heath, Esq., formerly of this place, to his friends and the public.) Combining the medicinal properties of the Gum which exudes from the Red Spruce Tree with that of Wild Cherry, it is the most valuable cough medicine that has been dedicated to public purposes.

Every one who has heard of the wonderful effects of the Spruce and the Pines in cases of Lung Disease, will be surprised at the simplicity of the materials of which this syrup is made, when they read the following. In fact, so many persons have been in the habit of making a tea or gum drink from the Spruce tops, that it is thought by many to be a simple remedy, easily prepared. This syrup, only more powerful, is prepared in the same way, and is as pleasant to take as any syrup. Every family should have it in the house, ready prepared. Give to children as a preventive, on the first appearance of a cough, or cold, and they will not be troubled with Croup, Whooping Cough, or Bronchitis. In this preparation, the virtues of the Spruce are combined with other ingredients, equally as powerful in their curative effects, but entirely different in character. This syrup, only more powerful, is prepared in the same way, and is as pleasant to take as any syrup. Every family should have it in the house, ready prepared. Give to children as a preventive, on the first appearance of a cough, or cold, and they will not be troubled with Croup, Whooping Cough, or Bronchitis.

CRAY'S SYRUP OF RED SPRUCE GUM.

Its remarkable power in relieving certain forms of Bronchitis, and its almost specific effect in curing obstinate hacking Coughs is now well known to the public at large.

Sold by all respectable chemists. Price, 25 and 50 cents a bottle.

The words "Syrup of Red Spruce Gum" are duly our Registered Trade Mark, and our wrapper and labels are also registered.

It operates on the system without exciting any of the pains upon the individuals to the process. It nerves the lungs, liver, bowels, kidneys, stomach and intestines with a harmony, vigour, yet sublimity, unparalled in medicine.

The Vital Restorative

gives back to the human structure, in a suitable form, the phosphorus or animating element of life, which has been wasted, and exerts an important influence directly on the spinal marrow and nervous system of a nutritive tonic and invigorating character, containing that buoyant energy of the brain and muscular system which renders the mind cheerful, brilliant, self energetic, enthusiasty overcoming, that dull, sluggish disposition which many persons experience in all their actions.

Finally, the Vital Restorative maintains a certain degree of activity in the previously debilitated nervous system, its action enables all debilitated organs to return to their normal state and perform their natural functions.
