THE LATE PRIZE FIGHT.

Buffalo Express which, to its credit [illegible], refused to insert an account of the fight, has the following paragraph [illegible]:—Mr. Sloan of Point Abino, owner of the ground on which the battle took place was fought last Thursday, [illegible] yesterday, and we were informed by him that the conduct of the parties present and engaged in the fight, to himself and his family, was most [illegible]. They trampled down his fields, [illegible] hay and fed it freely to their horses, [illegible] his house and insulted his family, took every liberty with his property [illegible] that his premises that their lawless [illegible] prompted, replying to all [illegible] with insolent language and [illegible] and by their numbers making it [illegible] to resist any of their proceedings. [illegible] the fight came off, when the prudent were waiting in the vicinity, Mr. [illegible] applied to the Justice at Fort Erie (forget his name) for their arrest; but [illegible] refused to take any steps in the [illegible].

It is evident that something must be [illegible] by our authorities to prevent such occurrences in future. If the law is not sufficiently clear on the subject, an act should be passed for the suppression of pugilism, [illegible] the Government be fully prepared when [illegible] necessity for action arises.

Albany, Oct. 7, 1859.

A large robbery was committed in this city last night, Hood & Tobey's jewelry store having been completely stripped of its contents. It is said to have been effected by entry through the back cellar door, through the flooring into the store. The [illegible] stolen consists mainly of watches, [illegible] and diamonds. Most of the watches [illegible] name on. The worth of the [illegible] stolen is estimated by the proprietors at from $20,000 to $30,000. The [illegible] are engaged in throughly sifting the [illegible].

Quick Time.—Probably the best time ever made between Chicago and Oswego by a lake, belongs to the propeller Ogdensburg, Capt. Richardson. The round trip was made in fifteen days; stopping at all ports, landing in and discharging cargoes, and lying up three days for repairs included in the time. The N. T. Company are obliged to put all the propellers of the line on the shortest time in consequence of the increase of business of the Fall months. We should think the Ogdensburg encountered heavy seas, and was loaded to her utmost capacity.

Oswego.—The appearance of the harbor for the last few days has been truly pleasing to all who desire the steady increase of business. The scenes this morning were animated, and the prospect flattering.—Steamers, propellers, brigs, schooners and canal boats, have been in constant motion, [illegible] the arrival and departure of a number [illegible] added life to the scenes. Heavy [illegible] vessels are lying at every elevator, and all the lumber yards are receiving large additions to their monstrous piles of lumber, and they will have but little lost time for weeks to come. We are told by business men that business will steadily increase until the close of navigation, and many have no doubt that the sudden end to it by reason of the close will be the means of making it lively when navigation opens in the spring. We trust they are not mistaken in their conclusions, nor do we believe they are.
