STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Six party tickets will be printed on the official Illinois ballot for the general election on November 6. The number was announced a few days ago by Secretary of State Louis L. Emmerson when the time limit for filing of independent petitions expired. The tickets to be placed on the ballot are the Republican, Democrat, Independent Republican, Socialist, Labor, Socialist and Workers (Communist) Party of America. The Prohibition party did not file a ticket. It is probable that the state ballot will be certified to county clerks of the state by the secretary of state on October 17. The official ballot will be much smaller this year because of the passage of a law providing that the names of the 29 Presidential electors were not to be carried. The names of candidates of the respective parties for President and Vice President will head the ticket. The width of the ballot also will be reduced because parties which have filed in former years did not present petitions.

Illustrated books on the trees and wild flowers of Illinois are being prepared by the state department of registration and education for use in public libraries, high schools, normal schools, and colleges, it was announced recently, by Dr. Stephen A. Forbes, chief of the state natural history survey. The new books are the first of a series planned by Doctor Forbes to make available to schools the scientific information that has accumulated in the records of the state natural history survey during the fifty-two years of his active work on the natural life of Illinois. The one on trees, a book of 325 pages, including 124 full-page photographs of the different species, besides maps to show in what counties each species has been found, and keys to aid in the identifying of specimens, was written by R. B. Miller, now chief forester of the state department of conservation, and L. R. Tehon, botanist of the state natural history survey. This book is now in press and will be ready for distribution in December, Doctor Forbes said. The wild flower handbook, intended as a guide to the study of the common flowering plants that grow in Illinois, will contain descriptions and drawings of more than 340 species. Specimens have been collected in all parts of the state, and drawings of 300 species have been finished. This work is being done by Dr. W. B. McDougall and Miss Charlotte Liebtag, both of the department of botany in the University of Illinois.

Ox-warble, cattle warble, or in barnyard parlance, "Wolf-in-the-back," is to be investigated with the object of finding some practical preventive, according to plans outlined in the office of the director of agriculture recently. Representatives of the federal bureau of animal industry, with full co-operation of the state department of agriculture, will carry on experiments in Knox county. A similar investigation is to be carried on in Colorado.

Adj.-Gen. Carlos E. Black will hold examinations in Springfield and Chicago on November 8-10 for Illinois guardsmen applying for admission to West Point. Applications for the examination must reach the office of the adjutant general before October 31. Any guardsman is eligible for the examination if he enlisted before July 1, last, is between nineteen and twenty-two years old and more than five feet four inches tall.

As the growing season advances, nursery inspectors in the service of the state department of agriculture are well along with their investigations for the control of plant diseases. In September, they took on the inspection of 40 nurseries, and conducted the season's second inspection of 78 others, covering in all, 1,190 acres of nursery area.

Construction of an addition to the state centennial building which will cost approximately $750,000 will be provided for in a bill to be offered to the next session of the Illinois general assembly. The addition adjoining the memorial building will be used for offices to relieve the present congested condition of departments now located in the capitol building. The bill was passed by the legislature four years ago. After plans and specifications had been considered the project was laid aside because of a shortage of state funds and the amount was not reapportioned. Senator Earl B. Searcy, who fathered the old bill, is expected to introduce the new measure which is expected to meet with the approval of assemblymen from downstate.
