RATES OF ADVERTISING.

We announce liberal rates for advertising in the PLAINDEALER, and endeavor to state them so fully that they will be readily understood. They are as follows:

1 inch one year	50c
2 inches one year	1.00
4 inches one year	2.00
5 inches one year	2.50
6 inches one year	3.00
7 inches one year	3.50
8 inches one year	4.00
9 inches one year	4.50

One inch means the measurement of one inch down the column, single column width.

Yearly advertisers, at the above rates, have the privilege of changing as often as they choose, without extra charge.

Regular advertisers (meaning those having standing cards) will be entitled to insertion of local notices at the rate of 5 cents per line each week. All others will be charged 10 cents per line the first week, and 5 cents per line for each subsequent week.

Transient advertisements will be charged at the rate of 10 cents per line, (nonpareil type, same as this is set in) the first issue, and 5 cents per line for subsequent issues. Thus an inch advertisement will cost $1.00 for one week, $1.50 for two weeks, $2.00 for three weeks, and so on.

The PLAINDEALER will be liberal in giving editorial notices, but, as a business rule, it will require a suitable fee from everybody seeking the use of its columns for pecuniary gain.

OLD SETTLERS' MEETING!

The meeting of the Old Settlers' Association of McHenry and Lake counties, was held in this village on Thursday last and while not as large a gathering as some in former years, it was pronounced by all as one of the most enjoyable held by the Association for years. While there was an absence of many of the younger element, the Old Settlers were well represented, and that they had a good old fashioned visit goes without saying. Owing to the threatening weather in the morning the crowd was slow in getting in, but by noon they began coming from every direction and the result was that nearly every town in both counties was represented here and took part in the exercises.

The committee of arrangements had engaged no set speaker for the occasion, but had decided that it should be Old Settlers' Day exclusively and that they would call upon those present to make a few remarks appropriate to the occasion, and they made no mistake in this matter as the speeches were all of the happiest kind, putting the crowd in the best of humor, and all went away expressing the one sentiment that they never had a better time at an Old Settlers' meeting.

The meeting was called to order about 11 o'clock by J. H. Johnson, Vice President, who after music by the band, and prayer by Rev. J. Straub, made a few appropriate opening remarks, after which the Hon. F. K. Granger, chairman of the committee appointed at the annual meeting to draft resolutions on the death of Hon. Richard Bishop, President of the Association presented the following.

WHEREAS, Since our last reunion five years of time have passed, and in their flight have closed the earthly career of many of the old settlers of Lake and McHenry counties, and

WHEREAS, Among the number who have passed to the other shore occurs the name of Hon. Richard Bishop, President of this Association. Therefore be it Resolved, That we, the remaining old settlers of Lake and McHenry counties sincerely mourn his death.

Resolved, That, cherishing the memory of his life, we extend to the surviving members of his family our heartfelt sympathy, trusting that they, with us, in the flight of time, may be safely landed in that future that gathers all old settlers to an unbroken reunion.

Dr. H. T. Brown then arose, and in seconding the adoption of the resolution, made the following remarks:

Mr. President, Members and Friends of the Old Settlers' Association, of Lake and McHenry Counties:

Five years have passed away and been added to the long roll of time since our last meeting here as an association. The frosts of five more winters have still more whitened our locks and lengthened our shadows. Five more mile-stones have been planted along our path to remind us that time, the great remorseless reaper, is on our trail, and with tireless steps and ceaseless swing of his scythe is almost upon us, and looking over this assembly we miss many faces that were with five years ago, telling us in language not to be misunderstood, that the race has gone against them, that time has done its work, that they have given up the struggle and gone to their rest.

And turning to the President's chair we miss the familiar features of Brother Bishop. He is not there. He also has gone to his rest. Another is at the head of the table, at your left, and, presiding at your family gathering.

And now in rising to second the motion for the adoption of those resolutions, I am quite sure they voice the sentiment of every man in Lake or McHenry counties who had an acquaintance with Brother Bishop. And with the adoption of those resolutions we might, under ordinary circumstances, be content. But in the case of one so long and so closely identified with the interests and material growth of the county, so interested in every movement to add to its prestige and advancement, so favorably known among its business men, and so long the presiding officer of this Association, a few words as an acknowledgment that such traits of character and such achievements are appreciated and considered of value to the community, would seem to be not only proper but an encouragement and an incentive to the young men who are to follow, who are to grasp the reins that have fallen from old and trembling hands and carry on the work and make the history of the coming time.

It is comparatively an easy task to trace the prominent traits of character of one with whom we are only acquainted through the general reports of his leading public actions and only known by published speeches and public records.
But the conclusions in such cases are often far from correct and lead to erroneous judgment from the fact that such reports reach us from afar and are so often warped and biased one way or the other, by strongly prejudiced political, religious or pecuniary interests. But here in speaking of Brother Bishop, we speak of a neighbor whom we knew intimately for more than forty years, whom we met daily and continuously, whose roof-tree was first planted beside our own and whose children, from childhood to youth and from youth to manhood, kept time and step together with my own, and, while differing widely with him in political and many social questions, no bitterness was ever borne, and a mutual confidence through all those years was never broken or materially disturbed.

Knowing him then so well I say without hesitation that had his lot been cast in his youth where he could have received the education, the want of which he so often and so much deplored, he would have taken his place among the leading men of his day. First and foremost in his character was his wonderful, almost inexhaustible energy. Coming to this town in its earliest days, poor in pocket, unfriendly and unknown, having for his full and only stock in trade a limited knowledge of blacksmithing, we first find him in the employ of N. S. Bitt (also one of our noble and early pioneers) swinging the hammer over the anvil from earliest dawn to late at night, day after day, month after month, with a grim determination depicted in his face that said plainly to an onlooker, "Here I will hammer my way to success.
These flying sparks shall light me on my path. I will yet build a forge of my own and be the arbiter of my own fortune." How well he succeeded you all know. He did build a forge of his own, and long after it was built, through his whole life in fact, that same tireless industry, that same determined energy was ever his guiding spirit. It may be said by the captious and would-be critics that such continued exertion was only for the love of the dollars and cents, the acquisition of wealth. Granted, if you choose, but let us remember that wealth acquired by real honest labor of muscle and brain, and not devoted to a bad or immoral purpose is never detrimental to the interest of the individual, the community or the nation, but should in all cases have our approval and hearty encouragement.

Another strong characteristic was his wonderful faith in himself, that great lever that sometimes may prove but a broken reed, but without which a man is a mere puff ball, blown hither and thither by every passing breeze, with no fixed purpose, no settled convictions or aim in life, scheming first in one direction then in another, and all at last eluding his grasp, because, dazzled by a multiplicity of lights he involuntarily closes his eyes and gropes his way in the dark. Brother Bishop was never troubled in this manner, believing as he did that any desired end could be reached by a determined man. I know of but one instance of failure when depending on himself alone to accomplish his purpose. He was naturally inclined to the study of law, and a reasonable success in our justice courts led him more and more to a determination to succeed at the bar. With this in view he provided himself with the nucleus of a splendid library, and while knowing himself terribly handicapped by the need of an education, went to work with a vim and vigor worthy of a great success, to hammer out, word by word if need be, a knowledge of the law and of language that would place him among the foremost as an advocate in the higher courts of the country. This, I believe, was his darling scheme, his crowning ambition. But alas, it was too much. The human mind, even when trained and educated, has its limit. He could not do it.
And it was when the fact came home to him he said to me: "What would I not give for an education. I am sometimes tempted to quit everything else, go to school and commence with the A B C and I tell you I would go through. But I suppose I am too old now, and I have too much other work on my hands. The time has gone by but how I wish I could have had such a chance in the world."

Feeling the need of these advantages himself he was a firm believer in the worth and utility of our schools, and while not an advocate of the fads and fancy studies of many of our institutions his voice and purse were never withheld when needed in any way he believed would help to place the youth of the county in a self-sustaining, reliable and manly position.

I have said he was not given to fads.
His mind and thoughts were cast in a stronger mold. The hard work and stern realities of life met him face to face in his early life. He had no time to devote to these doubtful accomplishments and thus the conventionalities and bland ishments of the "Carpet Knight" had no place in his character. He gloried in the success of the man who, against all obstacles, had worked his way to the front, and was ever ready to acknowledge his merit and encourage his ambition.

Fellow citizens let us honor ourselves by emulating his many sterling virtues and reserve a place in our hearts sacred to the memory of Richard Bishop.

Hon. Geo. Gage was then introduced, but as the hour of 12 o'clock had arrived he said he was hungry and he knew the crowd was also in the same fix and he thought the balance of the speech-making would be more appropriate later and he therefore moved to adjourn until afternoon, which was carried unanimously.

After dinner the crowd again assembled at the stand and short speeches were the order of the day. Unfortunately for us other business called us away and we missed this part of the day's exercises and therefore we are unable to report the saying of the speakers. Speeches were made by Hon. Geo. Gage, Hon. F.
K. Granger, and Simon Stoffel, of McHenry; Justus Bangs, of Wauconda, and Thos. McD. Richards, of Woodstock, which were listened to with the closest attention by all.

After the speech making a regular old fashioned visit was indulged in, and as we said before the meeting broke up all feeling they had enjoyed a pleasant and profitable day. The meeting of 1895 is one that will long be remembered with pleasure by all who attended.

Wool Impurities.
The more effectual removal of impu-rities from wool is, it is claimed, made practicable by means of a recent invention by M. Delarue of Roubaix, France.
According to this, the wool sliver is fed by feed rollers in between a pair of cylinder brushes, and from them it is removed by a rapidly revolving comb, in contact with which there is a more rapidly revolving cylindrical brush with a tapered casing, having an opening through which part of the periphery of the comb projects so as to meet the brush. Now, by the current of air caused by the rapid revolution of the brush, the wool stripped by it off the comb is projected toward the small end of the casing, where it is caught by a pair of hollow wire gauze cylinders, and by these delivered to a pair of feed rollers, to be again subjected to the action of a cylindrical comb and brush. Under the operation of this arrangement the wire gauze cylinders, feed rollers and combs and the brushes and their casings are repeated eight or ten times in the machine with due regularity, the wool passing in succession through them all and is relieved, of course, of its various impurities.—New York Sun.

Know the True Norwegian Flavor.
My daughter, who plays a great deal, has devoted most of her time to the German composers. I suggested that she try something by a Norwegian composer by way of variety. She got Grieg's "Wedding March." One two housemaids are of Norwegian extraction, but were both born and raised in this country. Presumably neither of them had ever heard this air or knew anything about the man who composed it. Neither had ever made any remarks about my daughter's playing and showed no special interest in it, but the other morning the second girl said to my daughter, "Ida, likes that piece you played last night." She was asked to what piece she referred and replied, "That new one." My daughter began to play the Norwegian wedding march, and she said: "That's the one." Ida thinks that is the prettiest thing she ever heard you play." Chopin, Beethoven, Mozart and all the rest had apparently all gone clear over Ida's head, but the moment she heard a composition containing the true Norwegian flavor she recognized it instinctively.—Chicago Tribune.
