SATURDAY EVEN'G, MARCH 6, 1875.

It appears from the full Parliamentary reports to hand that the reason Dr. Kenealy ignored the usual practice of being introduced to the House of Commons by two members was that he failed to secure the offices of two members. During the brief debate that sprung up on the question of parliamentary etiquette involved, Mr. Whalley offered to do the amiable, and so did Mr. John Bright, as announced by telegraph, the latter, though, proffering his services in respect to the constituency rather than to its erratic representative.

The Kingston Daily News commenting upon the vote on Mr. Mills' Senate Resolutions says:—

"An examination of the vote will show that the Ministerial supporters in the House are divided on the question, while, on the other hand, the Opposition are almost unanimously opposed to the proposed change."

Of course the Ministerialists were divided, for how else could the Tories find themselves on a side on which 74 votes were cast? The Opposition were "almost unanimously opposed to the proposed change," and yet with the aid of a large number of Ministerialists they could only drum up 74 votes in a House of 208. The Tories will yet have the majority of the House—if they only wait long enough.

The chief Tory organ says that "there "is a movement on the Ministerial side of "the House, led it is said by Mr. Holton, "to put Mr. Blake into the Premiership, "retaining Mr. Mackenzie in the Depart-"ment of Public Works." How solicitous the Tory fiction-mongers are about Mr. Blake! He is always, according to their accounts, about to take a new departure in some direction, but somehow the prophets are invariably wrong. The other day, it was with them a cause of complaint that he did not remain in the Dominion Cabinet. Now with alarming head-lines it is declared that he is about to take the Premiership. If the Tories would betray less anxiety about Mr. Blake, they would show more confidence in their own Party which they now confess can only be restored to power, not by its intrinsic virtues but by a split in the opposing one.

The Mail indulges a sneer at the Government for requiring Mr. Foster, the President of the Canada Central RR., to resign his Senatorship before receiving the Pacific RR. contracts, and says that the resignation was altogether unnecessary. What a howl would have been raised, had Senator Foster retained his seat whilst the holder of a large public contract! Loud and long and piercing would have been the cries of the Tories at such shocking sinfulness. Why, when Mr. Brown was appointed Reciprocity Commissioner, yards of editorial complaint appeared in the Tory prints about the "bribery of a Senator," though Mr. Brown did not get his appointment from the Canadian Government, but from the Queen. It is hard to satisfy the captious Tories. If an act is not done, the country, they cry, will be split asunder. If it is done, they pooh-pooh it sneeringly, cock up their noses and protest that it was altogether unnecessary. Who can undertake to please them?

Sir John Macdonald's big mouthpiece has a new grievance. There is nothing wonderful in that, but the grievance is a novel one. It is nothing less than an American did not get the Pacific Railroad contract! It is but a few months ago that the same paper grew hysterical over the transportation by American railway of the Nor' West Police, part of the journey to their destination, and its indignation was red-hot over the preference thus shown to Americans, though the fact was the Government very properly saved some thousands of dollars by that choice of route. And who could prefigure the length, breath and thickness of the denunciatory sermons that would have been written by Tory writers had an American got the contract! All the changes would have been rung on the Northern Pacific, Jay Cooke, Pacific Scandal and all the rest that malicious ingenuity could distort into resemblance of a payment for imaginary past services. But that avenue is closed, and so with rare effrontery, the Tories chop around, box the compass, and where, had the case been reversed, they would have cried "a barter of the country to the Americans by the Pacific Scandal conspirators," they now brazenly regret that an American did not get the contract! Paragraphists sometimes try to be funny over what they call the sublime cheek of an hotel-clerk, but how far short falls simile of adequate description when we consider the cool inconsistencies of Tory partyism and journalism.

People will be speculating as to the possible connection between the services rendered by this same Mr. Foster in the anti-Pacific Railway conspiracy of two years ago, and his present position as contractor-in-chief under the Mackenzie Government.—Toronto Mail.

Mr. Foster is a Tory. He was not even examined by the Royal Commission which pretended to investigate the Pacific Scandal, though he sat daily in his office scarce more than a stone-throw from Parliament House. The Mail and Sir John used to argue that the evidence against the conspirators was "stolen" out of Mr. Abbott's desk. But now it seems that the Tory Mr. Foster rendered "services" in that connection to discomfit the Tory Sir John, and has his reward in a railway contract. The Tories do not, dare not say that those "stolen" documents were not genuine; they could not impugn Mr. Foster's corroboration of the McMullen statement, or they would have put him on the witness stand. They only indulge in wild charges against an old political friend. Politically this is a stupid policy; generally it is absurd, as the real question is, Did Mr. Foster get the contract at a fair price? The absence of denial on that point is the best proof of the fairness of the contract.

THE N. B. SCHOOL DIFFICULTY.

Notice has been given that Mr. Baby, a French ultra Tory, will move in amendment to Mr. Blake's amendment to the Costigan motion, which we referred to yesterday,—

"That this House regrets that the position of the Roman Catholic minority in the Province of New Brunswick, with regard to their educational rights, is such as to cause uneasiness to a large portion of Her Majesty's subjects in the Dominion; that this House is of opinion that any legislation which will restore harmony among persons professing different religions, and remove any feeling of uneasiness now existing among any portion of Her Majesty's subjects is greatly to be desired; that by resolutions passed by the House of Commons on the 30th May, 1872, it was regretted that the School Act recently passed was unsatisfactory to a portion of the inhabitants of that Province, and hoped that it would be so modified as to remove any just ground of discontent; that this House re-affirms the spirit of said resolutions, and regrets that the privileges enjoyed at the time of the Union by the Roman Catholics of New Brunswick, in respect to religious education in the Common Schools, were not secured to them by the British North America Act; that therefore an humble address be presented to Her Majesty the Queen embodying these resolutions, and praying that an act be passed to secure to the Roman Catholic minority of New Brunswick the same rights, privileges and advantages with respect to schools, and the same exemption from taxation for the support of public or common schools as are now respectively enjoyed and possessed by the Roman Catholic minority in Ontario, and the Protestant minority in Quebec." This amendment is very cleverly framed, and scarcely emanated from the brain of Monsieur Baby. It is calculated at once to capture all stragglers, and embarrass the Government by comparison of their present and past attitudes on the question to the greatest possible extent.

How Philander Plumsted Popped The Question.

Philander was a bachelor, and it was universally believed in the town he inhabited that he would live and die a bachelor. No one who knew him thought that he had or ever would have a tender consideration for one of the opposite sex; and I doubt not that it surprised even himself to discover that he had, somewhere under his antique waistcoat, an inexplicable sensation of that character. Was it but a momentary fancy? he tried very hard to persuade himself that it was; but he lost his appetite; he grew restless. He found it useless to strive against what was inevitable:—he loved.

He loved as many had loved before him, and as many others will love until the world comes to an end.

The object of his affectionate ardor was the widow Wilkinson, who was not slow to understand his feelings, or to encourage his little attentions.

Philander possessed a tall and slender figure, sharp features, straight black hair, which he brushed back smoothly behind his ears, large hands and feet, and a very solemn and melancholy expression of countenance. He usually wore a light grey suit of ministerial pattern, a pair of ancient, iron-bowed spectacles, and a stove-pipe hat, quite out of fashion, in which he was accustomed to carry a large red bandana silk handkerchief.

The widow Wilkison was a cheerful and plump looking little woman, with rosy cheeks and bright eyes, and a winsome voice whose dulcet tones Philander Plumsted found irresistible.

For several weeks Philander struggled to overcome the tender passion that was fast acquiring a dangerous dominion over him. He grew absent-minded. His features became sharper, and his form more spare. He thought of the widow Wilkinson—he dreamed of the widow Wilkinson, and at last, in desperation, he determined to woo and win the widow Wilkinson.

Several times he attended her home from the evening meetings; several times a favorable opportunity was presented for him to make the desired declaration, but his courage always failed him at the opportune moment, and after bidding her good night at the farmhouse gate, he sauntered slowly homeward with his love untold.

He would rather have faced a shower of grape and canister than have met the arrows shot by the dangerous glances of the widow's beauteous eyes.

But one quiet summer evening he dressed himself with scrupulous care, and called upon the widow. He was told that she was out but would be in presently. He seated himself rigidly upon the edge of a parlor chair, holding his antiquated hat stiffly upon his trembling knees, and fixing his gaze upon a vase of flowers upon the table near him. He began to think of what he should say, and how he should say it when the charming little widow put in an appearance.

He was alone—so deeply absorbed did he become in his meditations that unconsciously he began to utter his thoughts aloud. So earnestly did he become interested in the subject under consideration that he did not notice the widow who softly entered the room on tiptoe, and noiselessly seated herself in an easy chair behind him.

His words gradually grew more and more audible.

"Ah!" said he to himself: "Life is real. Life is earnest." Life is—it it indeed—

He paused and wiped his mouth with a red silk handkerchief, and continued:

"Man was not made to dwell alone; What do I see before me? Flowers? Who plucked those fragrant flowers—eh? Her hand plucked them. I could kiss that hand."

The widow nearly chocked with suppressed laughter. Wholly unconscious of her presence in the room. Philander proceeded to commune with himself:

"She is fair and yet I love her—though she is a woman. Why is she a woman Because—because—that I may love her. Why do I love her? Because she is good and beautiful. What shall I say to her? Woman, wilt thou? Mrs. Wilkinson—will you go with me to my house? Will you be bone of my bone and flesh of my flesh? Will you love me, cherish me till death do us part? In short will you marry me?"

"Philander Plumstead, I will!"

Had a ladle of melted metal been poured down his back Philander would not have not been more surprised and astonished. He started to his feet hardly knowing whether to retreat or stand firmly where he was. His iron bowed spectacles slipped from his nose and fell upon the floor. His hat rolled under the table. After regarding the widow for a moment he nervously said:

"Mrs. Wilkinson, are you really in earnest?"

"I am."

"So am I."

They were called in church the next Sunday.

ALL ABOUT QUILTS.—Some time ago we mentioned a quilt of many pieces which had been laboriously put together by an industrious housewife. A local contemporary followed with a truthful story of another quilt made by a Napanee lady, of still greater pretentions to celebrity. Since then the remarkable quilts of the country have been coming to the surface in a lively manner. Mrs. Brennan steps to the front with one of 5,280 pieces which she thinks real nice. Then comes Mrs. Collayan, of Zorra, who proudly unfolds a 7000 beauty—"made by her own hand." This she thinks settles the matter in her favor, but she is greatly mistaken, as this will show:—Mrs. Mary Katharine Gacelechens, (we give the name in full, which has almost as many letters in it as her quilt has pieces), of the town of Preston, calls upon her happy daughter and happier son-in-law to bring fourth the gift of an affectionate mother and mother-in-law, which they do with confidence. This quilt, they vouch, contains just 20,160 pieces and of course Mrs. M. K. G. goes up head, where she will likely remain, for we doubt whether her quilt can be beaten as regards its multiplcity of of parts. Who speaks next.—Napanee Express.

SKATING.—This amusement is of great antiquity. It is first mentioned in a work entitled the "Edda," written eight hundred years ago. The Uller is described as renowned for his beauty, his arrows and "scatees." A hero of those days, Kolsen by name, boasted among his accomplishments, that with ease and grace quite unequalled by his friends or enemies, he could traverse the snow on "scatees" of wood. In Holland and Norway skates were made use of two hundred years ago. In "Carr's Remarks on Germanie," published in 1688, a passage descriptive of a battle closes with the following lines: "The nimble Dutchmen with their scatees did shoot down the French like ducks diving under water, so long as the ice would bear them." It is recorded that in 1608, at Groningen, "two young women in the contest of scatees did go thirty miles in two hours." Skates were in use in England six hundred years ago.

LAUGHING AT LAW.—Two New York detectives are in Montreal endeavoring to negotiate with some refugees for the return of their plunder, but as yet their efforts have been of no avail. The refugees are said to be thoroughly well up in law, and know that for the crime they have committed they cannot be extradited, so that it is more than probable their mission will be fruitless, except in putting Canadian detectives on the watch for their future operations. The detectives' mouths are sealed, but the charge is reported to be in connection with some extensive smuggling operations.

How seldom we see a splendid head of hair! From sickness, excessive labor or neglect, thousands find their hair gradually wasting away. Burnett's Cocoaine is a perfect Hair Dressing—a promoter of the growth of the hair—a preparation free from irritating matter. It has great affinity for the human skin—is rapidly bsorbed and imparts lustre and strength.

If a man wants a bottle of whiskey, let him buy it and take it home like a man, and not sneak home with a bottle of Bitters and Cordial, and pretend that it is medicine. If he wants a tonic that is something better than a temporary stimulant, he should get a bottle of Peruvian Syrup, (an Iron Tonic,) that will vitalize the blood and give durable strength to the system.

Isaac R. Doran, M.D., of Logan Co., Ohio, says "Allen's Lung Balsam not only sells rapidly, but gives perfect satisfaction in every case within my knowledge. Having confidence in it and knowing that it possesses valuable medical properties, I freely use it in my daily practice and with unbounded success. As an expectorant it is most certainly far ahead of any preparation I have ever yet known."

A Beautiful Horse.—There is nothing that can contribute so much to render the horse beautiful and elegant, to improve his condition and make him all that is desirable, as "Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy;" it has been used by many persons who own valuable carriage and other horses with decided success, and so well pleased are they with it that they always keep it on hand in case of emergency; it may be given at all times with perfect safety. Remember the name and see that the signature of Hurd & Co. is on each package. Northrop & Lyman, Toronto, Ont., proprietors for Canada. Sold by all medicine dealers.

The most unhappy person in the world is the Dyspeptic. Everything looks dark and gloomy, he feels out of sorts with himself and everybody else. Life is a burden to him. This can all be changed by taking Peruvian Syrup (a protoxide of Iron.) Cases of 25 years standing have been cured by it.

☞ The first approaches of consumption are so insidious that thousands remain unconscious of its presence until it has brought them to the verge of the grave. The immediate use of "Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers" upon the first appearance of the cough, pain or soreness of the throat or chest, would generally preclude a fatal result; therefore, when you take a cold use Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers, and thus prevent the necessity for taking them in more dangerous complaints. Sold by all medicine dealers and country stores, at 25c per bx.

Caution to Housekeepers.—Owing to the increasing cost of vanilla beans used in the manufacture of Extract Vanilla, spurious compounds are being thrown upon the market, purporting to be pure vanilla, but prepared principally from Tonqua beans. This nauseating substitute costs one manufacturer less than one-twentieth part as much as the genuine vanilla bean. It can readily be detected by its odor. It is used principally by tobacconists for perfuming snuff and cigars, and was never intended to be used as a flavoring for the various compounds prepared for the human stomach. Burnett's Extract of Vanilla is prepared from selected vanilla beans, and is warranted entirely free from Tonqua or other deleterious substances.

Letter from Rev. J. Salmon, M.D.—Chipmad Queen's County, N.B. Mr. Jas. I. Fellows.—Sir, In the practice of medicine I have recommended your Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites, and have invariably the following results: Greater freedom in the action of the Lungs, increased and more easy expectoration in cases indicated by dry cough, and decided augmentation of tone to the whole nervous system. I can safely and consistently recommend your invaluable preparation in a variety of cases, especially for chest diseases, having successfully prescribed it in Bronchitis, Asthma, Debility from liver complaint, debility from impoverished blood. I am, sir, yours truly, JAMES SALMON, Practicing Physician and Surgeon.

ELECTRICITY!

Thomas' Excelsior Eclectric Oil.—Worth Ten Times its Weight in Gold.—
"Pain cannot Stay where it is used."

It is the cheapest medicine ever made. One bottle does cure common sore throat. One bottle has cured Bronchitis. Fifty cents worth has cured an old standing Cough. It positively cures Catarrh Asthma and Croup. Fifty cents worth has cured Crick in the back and the same quantity Lame back of eighty years standing. The following are extracts from the few of the many letters that have been received from the different parts of Canada which we think should be sufficient to satisfy the most sceptical. J. Collard, of Sparta, Ontario, writes: Send me 6 doz of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, have sold all I had from you and want more now, its cures are truly wonderful." Wm Maguire of Franklin, writes "I have sold all the agent left, it acts like a charm it was slow first but takes splendidly now." M. Cole of Iona writes: "Please forward 6doz. Thomas Eclectric Oil. I am near out; nothing equals it. It is highly recommended by those who have used." J. Bedford, Thamesville, writes, "send at once a further supply of Eclectric Oil. I have only one bottle left. I never saw any thing to sell so well and give such satisfaction." J. Thompson Woodford, writes: "Send me some more Eclectric Oil. I have entirely sold out. Nothing takes like it." Miller and Rye, Ulverton, P.Q., writes: "The Eclectric Oil is getting a great reputation here and is daily called for, send us a further supply without delay—Leymoue, Gibb & Co., Buckingham, P.Q., writes: "send us one gross Eclectric Oil—we find it to take well."

☞ Sold by all medicine dealers. Price 25 cents.

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM.

Is warranted to break up the most trouble-some cough in an incredible short time. There is no remedy that can show more evidence of real merit than this Balsam, for curing Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Croup, &c. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whol system. It is introduced to the suffering public, after its merits for the positive cure of such diseases have been fully tested. The formula from which it is prepared is referred to by the leading medical journals as being equal to any prescription that can be made up for such diseases by the medical faculty. The Balsam is consequently recommended by physicians everywhere.

Iron in the Blood

PERUVIAN AN IRON TONIC SYRUP

MAKES THE WEAK STRONG.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low state of the system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures, to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.
