THE LAST OBSEQUIES

Paid to the Remains of the Rev. Robert Rayson.

Long before the hour of ten o'clock this morning the little church of All Saints was crowded to the very doors with a sorrowing people. They were there to pay the last respects to their dead friend and rector, the late Rev. Robert W. Rayson.

Dean Smith conducted the funeral service, assisted by Revs. J. K. Macmorine, A. W. Cooke, C. E. Cartwright, J. O. Grisp; A. Stunden, Belleville; F. T. Webb Bath, and canon Houston, Stormont.

Among the prominent gentlemen in attendance were: Rev. J. D. Boyd, of Zion Presbyterian church; Dr. Smythe, Q.C., R. V. Rogers, Q.C., J. P. Oram; F. A. Knapp, Prescott, cousin of the wife of the deceased clergyman.

The casket, covered with floral offerings from many friends and the church societies, repose before the altar. The service opened with the singing of the 399 hymn, followed by the xxxix Psalm, Miss Whitehead presiding at the organ. Rev. J. K. Macmorine, incumbent of St. James' church, read the lesson from the 1 Corinthians xv. A sermon was not preached. At 8 a.m. a communion service was held in the church, conducted by canon Spencer.

At the close of the ten o'clock service the remains, followed by mourning clergymen, parishioners and friends, were taken to that fair city of the dead—Cataraqui cemetery—and there laid tenderly at rest.

Watching Digestion With X Rays.

Appleton's Popular Science Monthly.

The use of the fluorescent screen has been greatly extended. Dr. Francis H. Williams, of Boston, has used it as a valuable instrument in medical diagnosis, especially in studying lung diseases. It has been used at the Harvard medical school to follow the processes of digestion. To accomplish this, in one instance a goose was fed with food mixed with subnitrate of bismuth, a salt which absorbs X rays.

The passage of the dark mass down the long neck of the bird could be traced on the fluorescent screen, and the peculiarities of its motion in the gullet could be studied. A cat was also fed with the same substance, and the movements of its stomach noted. These movements were analogous to those of the heart in other words, were rhythmical when the processes of digestion were going on normally and uninterruptedly. When, however, the cat was irritated, it may be by the sight of a dog, these pulsations instantly ceased. As soon as the source of irritation was removed and the purring of the animal showed a contented frame of mind, the stomach resumed its rhythmical movements. The dependence of the digestive apparatus on the state of the nervous system was thus clearly shown. The female cat was much more tractable under these experiments than the male.

The members of the Chinese legation at Berlin have been warned by the police to show themselves as little as possible on the streets. Several Chinamen have been stoned by a mob.

FRIGHTFUL STORIES.

Are Those Told By Chinese At Shanghai.

TURNED IT INTO SHAMBLE.

THE BRITISH LEGATION AT PEKIN CAPTURED.

The Stories Afloat Are Unauthenticated—Great Britain Has Requested the Chinese Minister to Tell the Pekin Authorities That They Will be Held Responsible For Injuries to Foreigners.

London, July 6.—There is still no confirmation of the awful rumors from Pekin, which are circulating in Shanghai, on Chinese authority. The sensational lengthy newspaper reports purporting to have been cabled from Shanghai, describing the atrocious savageries, and which are there believed ended the existence of all foreigners in the capital, are admittedly whisperings afloat in native quarters. The correspondents who transmit them declare that they are unable to resist the conclusion that a terrible tragedy has been consummated. One bids the public to prepare to hear of outraged women, tortured children, and public executions in the streets of foreigners, including women and children. Another professes to tell of mobs, maddened with fury and triumphs, pouring through breaches into the courtyard of the British legation, which was converted into a shamble. The natives of Shanghai, he says, whisper the story under their breath. Their attitude towards foreigners they meet on the streets is being strangely altered. The better classes of Chinese display a demeanor of pity rather than triumph.

The probability that such scenes as described have been enacted is too great to justify the rejection of the accounts but they are unauthenticated and the correspondents who send them are in no wise the more reliable English journalists in Shanghai. Nothing can be ascertained of the result of Great Britain's request of the Chinese minister that they inform the authorities at Pekin that they will be held personally responsible if the members of the legations or any other foreigners suffer injury.

It is stated that the Chinese legation in Berlin, made a fruitless attempt, last night, to cable to Pekin, and that it is believed that the legation staff is preparing to leave the German capital.

The legation in Paris is described as looking like a house where a death has occurred. The Venetian blinds are kept closed, and strict orders have been given to the concierge to admit no one. The secretary of the Paris legation is represented as declaring that a Chinese government no longer exists, and the country is in a state of revolution. He says that two-thirds of the Chinese quarters at Pekin has been burned and looted by Boxers. They have no more respect for the Chinese than they have for foreigners. He adds that if the members of the government were not prisoners they would have sent instructions to the Chinese representatives abroad. This, indeed, is the attitude of Chinese officials everywhere, not only in Europe, but also in the undistrubed parts of China.

Prince Tuan, it is declared, heads another revolt, and he has killed or imprisoned the constituted authorities, including the emperor and empress, both of whom were forced to take poison.

The newspapers here continue to agitate the matter of the reported refusal of certain powers to allow Japan to grapple with the trouble. There is no reliable information on the subject, but a majority of papers do not hesitate to hold Russia responsible. The Daily Mail's Yokohama correspondent declares, emphatically, that Japan could have relieved Pekin if she had received a free hand. Her strength was ample and her ability to use it unquestioned, but the mikado's ministers have been excessively cautious, fearing to precipitate complications among the powers.

The speculations in London respecting Great Britain's communication to Japan, mentioned by Mr. Broderick in the house of commons, does not help to give any knowledge of the actual position. Fears are growing that divergence between the powers regarding a solution of the whole problem will seriously affect the continental money markets. There has been a panic for three days on the Berlin bourse, not only in Chinese stocks but in also German industrial shares. Banks stocks and even German consuls are suffering. Yesterday the Vienna bourse followed suit.

Asking For Help

Berlin, July 6.—A mesage received from Sir Robert Hart, director of the Chinese imperial marine customs, at Pekin, dated June 24th, dwells upon the desperate position of the people, and asks for help. The German marines occupied the city gate after burning the buildings of the Tsung-Li-Yamen. This followed the murder of baron Von Ketler by the Chinese soldiers.

A message received in Berlin, says the Boxer agitation is spreading to Che Foo and that the attitude of the Chinese soldiers is threatening. The American admiral is preparing for the departure of those under his protection.

To Send Three More.

Rome, July 6.—At a ministerial council it was decided to order three more warships to immediately prepare for departure for China. An appropriation of three million lires was sanctioned for the purposes of the Italian expedition.

The Current Story.

London, July 6.—The story that all foreigners in Pekin were murdered on June 30th or July 1st appears to be circulating simultaneously at Che Foo, Shanghai and Tien Tsin. Yet, as it is not confirmed by official despatches, and is not traceable to the southern viceroys, who are still in certain communication with Pekin, there is a basis for the hope that it is untrue.

Correspondents of the Express at Shanghai gather details from Chinese sources, which, pieced together, relate that when the foreigners' ammunition was exhausted the Boxers and imperial troops rushed the British legation and poured into the courtyard with fanatical fury. The foreign troops were so hopelessly outnumbered that their fate was certain.

"It is only left to hope that in the final rush of the murderous hordes the men of the legations had time to slay with their own hands their womenkind and children. The Chinese are whispering the terrible story under their breath. The attitude toward foreigners in the streets has undergone a strange change. The demeanor of the better class of Chinese is one of pity rather than of triumph. Even the rabble in the native quarter are silent."

Two Mashus, who have arrived at Shanghai, certify to the truth of a statement that prince Tuan visited the palace and offered the emperor and the empress dowager the alternative of poison or the sword. The emperor, they say, took poison and died within an hour. The dowager empress also chose poison, but craftily swallowed only a portion of what was offered her and survived. On the same day the Chinese customs bureau was destroyed, Sir Robert Hart, the inspector of customs, and his staff, escaping to the legations.

Taoti Yu admitted to the correspondent, that the case of the Europeans in Pekin is utterly hopeless in his opinion. He believes that if they have not yet been massacred it is only a matter of hours before they will be.

A letter brought by courier from Pekin, received in Shanghai on July 4th, says the Boxers are gathering huge forces about Pekin. Reinforcements are arriving from all directions. This is taken to indicate a concert of action among the nobles, who are believed to have thrown in their lot with the Boxers. The emperor and the empress dowager, the letter says, are completely under the thumb of prince Tuan and Yang Ki.

Despatches from Hong Kong say the "Triods," a secret society, are assuming a threatening demeanor on the mainland.

Thousands Butchered.

London, July 6.—There is a mass of wild rumors from the far east. Though contradictory on most points, it continues unanimous as to the consummation of a tragedy at Pekin. To the persistent reports of the massacre of whites are now added the additional horrors that a savage soldiery butchered at the capital 5,000 native Roman Catholic converts.

This comes in a Shanghai despatch and only adds to the reports given by respectable Chinese, who have arrived from Chian Fu, and who describe Pekin as an inferno, the streets literally running with blood. They confirm numerous stories of executions and untold tortures of isolated foreigners and European soldiers captured by the mob.

Gen. Lun-yu, the Chinese imperial treasurer, who advocated moderation was completely effaced by prince Tuan, Kang Yi Tung-Fuh Sian, who issued fresh edicts ordering the merciless execution of all foreigners in the empire.

Said To Have Saved The City.

London, July 6.—A news agency despatch from Shanghai dated Wednesday, July 4th, after reiterating the statement that there has been heavy fighting at Tien-Tsin, says that only the arrival of 900 Japanese prevented the capture of the town.

The Woman Massacred.

New York, July 6.—According to Mr. Tyson, Miss Mary Condit Smith has been killed in the Pekin massacre. Mr. Tyson said that Mr. Jusson, Miss Smith's brother-in-law, had made frequent enquiries at the state department in Washington, to learn whether or not Miss Smith was safe and had received a reply to the effect that there was no hope for her safety, as they had all been killed and their heads cut off, and stuck on the ends of long poles and paraded through the streets.

Miss Smith had for some time been a guest of minister Conger, and had been travelling with her sister, the wife of Lieut. Key, now stationed at Tokio, Japan. The wife of Gov. Leonard Wood, Havana, is also a sister of Miss Smith. Their mother is Mrs. Condit Smith Washington. The late justice Field, of the supreme court, was guardian after their father's death.

FINDS HER RUNAWAY BOY.

Grayson Moore Had Travelled All Over the Country.

Springfield, Mass., July 6.—After a constant search of over three months Mrs. Grayson Moore, Elmira, N.Y., has found her lost son, Grayson, aged thirteen. On March 27th last the boy accidentally shot a companion. He was told that he would be sent to the reformatory for it. Badly frightened he ran away. At Harrisburg, Pa., he joined a circus and travelled with it until a few weeks ago.

He knocked about the country until he came here and found work about the horse stables on Hampden park. He told his story to some men, and one of them discovered that he was the son of an old friend of his. The mother was soon informed.

Who He Is.

Dr Devlin, whose name has become famous through the condensed food furnished to the Canadian soldiers in South Africa, is a son of the late Lieut.-Col. Bernard Devlin, who commanded the 17th P. W. O. rifles, during the Fenian raid of 1866.

The case of the township of Hinchinbrook vs. Goodfellow, regarding the Parham cemetery, will probably be tried in September. The plaintiffs will in the meantime move for an interim injunction.

UNITED SERVICE VETERANS.

Addressed by the Premier and Hon. Dr. Borden.

Ottawa, July 6.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, lady Laurier and Hon. Dr. Borden, minister of militia, were present last evening at the presentation of medals to the united service veterans, and assisted materially in making the affair the success it was. Lady Laurier pinned the ribbons, with the medals attached, on the breasts of the recipients, who were given a warm reception by their comrades and friends present. Sir Wilfrid Laurier addressed the veterans, expressing his pleasure at being present, and thanking them for the honor done him. He referred to the present stormy times of war, and also to the noble part played by the veterans in past days. The premier also complimented them on their soldierly bearing.

Hon. Dr. Borden also addressed the veterans, commending their loyalty, and congratulating them on the soldierly bearing they retained, despite the fact that many years had elapsed since they had taken up arms. The minister of militia also complimented the boys' brigade, the organization upon which the country would depend to secure the soldiers of the future.

McLEAY IS DEAD.

Canadian Actor Died of Brain Fever in London.

Toronto, July 6.—The announcement of the death of Franklin McLeay, the Canadian actor, in London, of brain fever, was received in Toronto this morning with genuine sorrow by a wide circle of friends. McLeary's home is in Watford, but during and after his university career here he was one of the most popular men of the younger generation. When he visited the city in Barrett's company he received a great ovation from his former associates. He has been recently working very hard on the arrangements for a matinee for the Canadian patriotic fund, and probably over-strained himself.

French Army Stirred Up.

Paris, July 5.—The replacement of Gen. Jamont as inspector general of the army and vice-president of the Superior council of war and of general Delanne as chief of the general staff, has caused a great sensation, and the opposition papers bitterly censure the policy of the government. M. Waldeck-Rousseau, the premier, was arraigned in the senate for helping to disorganize the army, but he replied in a vigorous speech, upholding the minister of war. His speech will be posted throughout France.
