In summer-time, more especially, disease germs fill the air, multitudes are infected, fall ill, die; multitudes escape. These messengers of mischief do not exist for millions. Why not? Because they are healthy and strong -protected as a crocodile is against gunshot. It is the weak, the wasted, the thin-blooded who fall; those who have no resistive power so that a sudden cough or cold develops into graver disease. We hear of catching disease! Wauconda vs. Ringwood. The above teams will play a game at MoHenry, Friday Sept. 3, the Ringwoods to be assisted by McHenry hall players. It is our belief that all who go to see the game will see the Ringwood's shut out — Wauconda Leader. We should judge by. the above state ment that this game is to be positively one-sided. The study of scientific temperance must include under this head:-1st. Enough instruction in relative physiology to make the poisonous effects of alcoholics and other narcotics upon the human system intelligible. But it should be borne in mind that hundreds of pages of the ordinary physiology and hygiene, with only a few-often less than half a dozen-pages on the effects of alcohol, with nothing about alcoholic drinks, i. e., beer, wine, cider, etc., and no description of their origin or nature, and little of their specific effects upon the various organs of the body, is not scientific temperance. 2d. True temperance is not only abstinence from alcohol and narcotics, but includes the right care of mind and body; therefore other relative facts of hygiene should be incorporated in this study. We now reach the second question: What should text books on this subject teach? The average teacher in our public schools has had little or no previous training in this study, therefore the knowledge offered on this subject for pupils and teachers must be fully and 'duly arranged' in suitable text books

3. We should urge that the books offered for this study in our schols shall teach the origin, through termentation and distillation of alcoholic drinks, and the nature of these, emphasizing the dangerous relation of the fermented drinks to ultimate drunkenness. Any book that denounces alcohol and intemperence, but is comparatively silent over the evil character of beer, wine, and cider, the brewer would indorse, but we must not if we expect to teach Scientific Temperance.

White Slaves of Old England. Eight hundred years ago all of the large cities of England had regular slave markets for the sale of white slaves from all parts of the kingdom. In the 'Life of Bishop Wulfstand" the writer says: "It was a moving sight to see in the public markets rows of young people of both sexes tied together and sold like cattle-men, unmindful of their obligations, delivering into slavery their relatives and even their own chil In another part of this work it dren." is noted that these slaves were "particularly young woman of fine proportions

Making Love Up a Tree. Billing and cooing among the Fijians is a curious feature in their social cus toms. It is decidedly against the rule to do any courting within doors. The gardens or plantations are the spots held sacred to Cupid, and the generally approved trysting place of lovers is high

Bits of Wisdom A wise woman will have her husband so well trained that when she tells him a thing once it will be enough. Men hate to have a thing "dingdonged into them," as some of them elegantly express it. I am a very even tempered man, but I think my self praise would suffer a severe shock if my wife told me to order a barrel of flour when we first got up in the morning and then repeated the command six times at the breakfast table, twice while I was putting on my overcoat and gloves and then followed me to the gate to scream it out after me as I turned the corner. Men hate that sort of nagging. A wise man will not tell his wife any lies, not even little white ones. If he must lie, he will be safer and wiser if he lies to some one less likely to uncover his duplicity. A wife is a regular ferret in a matter of this kind. I never told mine a harmless little fib in my life that she didn't expose me before the sun went down. It is wonderful what clever intuition women have in this direction. It is dumfounding to men who are not always absolutely truthful. The best of husbands often feel that there are things they won't "bother wife with" - little complications in their business affairs or little extravagant expenditures in the way of a hotel dinner or some other little harmless affair of which they would just a little rather not speak or in regard to which they may equivocate. But they'd better tell the truth and hold to it. It is always best in the end, as men find out the older they grow. I have found it out with, I trust, most of the years of my life still before me. —Zenas Dane.

The operation of manufacturing parchment papers such as are used for wrapping butter and other similar objects is a very interesting one. Parchment is produced directly from the raw paper web in practically one operation. The sheet to be parchmentized is passed through sulphuric acid and then through rollers having a uniform action, which discharge the surplus acid, the expressed liquid being returned to the tank or vessel. The paper is then carried and passed through a washing apparatus as a tank, and also through sprays of water, being led and guided by rolls over which it passes, so that the free acid is washed off or removed as far as possible by mechanical washing. The sheet next passes through a bath of soda solution or alkali and then through nippers to express surplus alkali, which is returned to the bath. Then the paper is carried through an apparatus to further washed with water. Next it is passed through a bath of bleaching material, as "bleach" or the like, then through further washing apparatus, again passed between presses and squeezed, and then finally it is passed through a bath of glycerin, after the passage through which the paper is wound upon a roller or coiled up in a completed state of parchmentization. Paper Mill. Story of Landseer. Landseer, whose fine stag hunts in the highlands have been popularized by engravings, represents one of the most extraordinary examples of the irresistibleness of the artistic vocation. I have seen a most magnificent dog of his, chained to his kennel and carried away by floods. The day when, an absolutely unknown artist, he exhibited this picture at the Royal academy it attracted considerable attention, and a gentleman hurried off to the painter's to make an offer to purchase it. He rang at the door of the small garden, and, on the wicket being opened, he saw a boy playing with a hoop with some other little fellows. He inquired of the children: "Does Mr. Landseer live here?" "Yes," replied one of the youngsters.

"When can I speak to him?" "Now, if you like. I'm Mr. Land-"But," exclaimed the amateur, "it is your father I want to see. I have called about a picture of his at the academy."
"Well," said the child, "it is I who am exhibiting the picture." He was then 141/2 years old.—Henri Rochefort's Memoirs.

Gilded Beauties. The eastern women, especially those in Turkey, paint their eyebrows with gilt paint, and at night the effect is very brilliant and oriental. When, by chance, a Chinese girl has eyes that are not quite so slanting as usual, she can safely lay claim to special beauty. Many Japanese women gild their teeth, while the beauties of the Indies stain theirs a brilliant red. Some of the Africans stain their teeth a jet black. Persian women pencil the outer corners of their eyes to make them look almond shaped, which is considered an especial mark of beauty. The women in many oriental countries die their finger nails with henna, others let them grow to an

is not to be destroyed, as we sometimes say. Without temper a bar of steel becomes like lead. A man without temper is weak and worthless. We are to learn self control. A strong person is one who has a strong temper under perfect mastery.
