MAN WITH IRON MASK.

He Had a Nose Made of His Finger and is Now Dead.

New York, Sept. 19.—The Bellevue hospital patient, known as the "man with the iron mask," is dead. Thomas Oliver Colt was his name. He was related distantly to the family of gunmakers of that name and was born in Connecticut. At the age of fifteen erysipelas took away his nose and a portion of his face. He was brought to Bellevue hospital where Prof. Thomas C. Sabin said he would make the boy a nose. The result was the first Sabine operation, as it is now known.

Colt's left hand was placed on his face and the third finger relieved of the nail and placed at the bridge of the nose. It took two months to grow there, while it was held in position by a plaster cast, and then it was cut from the hand at the second joint and nostrils bored to the nasal passages. Thirty-two operations and two years in the hospital gave a peculiar and passable face to Colt.

An aversion to having persons see his features grew as he became older and he took every means of concealing them when in public. In August he was admitted to Bellevue hospital suffering from Bright's disease. He was fearful that other patients would see his face so he kept it muffled and became known to them as the "man with the iron mask."

No action on the bill of George and W. Grier. Adjourned till call of the reeve.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—John G. Woolley, prohibition candidate for president, and party left this city this morning on a special train for Danville, Ill. They will make a 10,000 mile campaign trip on the train through Illinois, Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, South Dakota, Wisconsin, Indiana, Ohio, Tennessee and Kentucky. The train, called the "prohibition train," will stop at several points in each of these states and return to Chicago Oct. 9th.

The revenue of the French government from January to September exceeds the estimates by nearly 87,000,000 francs. It is 65,000,000 francs in excess of the receipts for a similar period last year.

Chambly county Liberals chose V. Geoffrion as their candidate.

Arden, Sept. 18.—Farmers are busy with their corn and potatoes. Saturday night a heavy rain fell, which was much needed. The wells had begun to get low. On Wednesday a harvest home festival was held in connection with the Methodist church. Dinner was served in the old church building, a heavy wind having blown over the tent. Service was held in the new church in the afternoon, when a thanksgiving sermon was preached. In the evening an entertainment was held in the town hall, which was well attended. Music, instrumental and vocal, recitations and speeches were given. Mr. Ohlke, agent for R. J. McDowall, Kingston, was present and gave some interesting pieces on a graphophone, which were well received. The day was fair and everything passed off satisfactorily. Several parties from here attended the Kingston fair; others Tamworth and Napanee. There is some talk of the Rissonnette company removing from this village to Havelock. This is the manner of settlement the law provides for in such cases. Miss Emma Woods last week visited her sister, Mrs. Herbert Dowler, Barriefield. William McKane, thrown from a rig in Kingston on Thursday, had his head badly cut. W. J. Franklin was one of the judges at the Kingston fair. Mrs. George Maitland on Wednesday visited her father, W. McGrath has the contract for putting in the cement floor for J. R. Baxter; he makes a specialty of all such work. Corn cutting is the order of the day. The binder is greatly missed. The boys think it a poor way of fanning when they have to get down to the hook. The patrons of the cheese factory were so highly pleased with their last check that they are thinking strongly of the Ottawa exhibition. J. Muckle captured three coons in Farley's swamp. They evel anything he has yet caught. Sports from Barriefield and Kingston are daily seen making along the road with guns on their back, but there is little game. LIVELY FAIR AT NAPANEE.

THE FIFTY-THIRD ANNUAL EXHIBITION.

Well Attended Tuesday—Exhibits All Good Except That of Flowers—The Races—A Baby Show in the Evening—Attractions on the Grounds.

Napanee, Sept. 19.—The twenty-third annual fair of the Lennox agricultural society opened yesterday under very favorable auspices. The weather was clear and very fine, with just enough crispness in the atmosphere to make out doors very enjoyable. All forenoon the farmers and their wives were seen travelling towards the palace with waggons laden with exhibits, and by two o'clock the appearance of the palace was changed from a bare, uninviting-looking place to a very busy and attractive structure.

As one enters the palace at the south side Mrs. James Wilson has converted the space, formerly occupied by the Gibbard furniture company, into a very habitable looking corner. One sees there the complete furnishings of a parlor, dining-room and bed-room, and very tasty and cosy it looks.

Boyle & Son occupy the south-east corner with a very fine display of stoves, ranges and other useful articles in their line, while F. W. Hart is installed in his old position in the centre of the palace, with a very fine display of pianos, organs and sewing machines. Fruit, vegetables, grain and other products find their places in the lower floor and in all these exhibits the quality is equal if not ahead of other years. The only exhibit not up to its former record is that of the flowers. This, no doubt, is owing to the fact that our enterprising florist, George Lloyd, is building a new greenhouse and removing to another locality.

Upstairs the spaces are all filled and it is every one's opinion that never before was the exhibit of ladies' work and the other useful exhibits so numerous or so beautiful. As one reached the head of the stairs a very fine display of oil paintings are exhibited, which are admired by everyone, and they certainly deserve admiration. Mrs. Annas Warner has also a corner devoted to her hand paintings, which never fail to bring smiles to the faces of the most sedate. C. A. Graham has a beautiful display of furs, robes and other useful articles for the cold weather.

M. B. Mills, our noted taxidermist, has a fine display of his wares. C. H. Boyes has the space formerly occupied by J. S. Hulett, and makes an elegant display of his photographic work. A. E. Paul and M. W. Simpkins have also spaces tastefully filled with their wares.

The attraction on the race track in the afternoon was the following two events:

Farmers' race.—Joe Marsh, Napanee; Ed. Kaylor, Morven; F. Marsh, Napanee.

Free for all.—Four entries, Marsh, Francisco, Moffat. Fred. Kayler's horse took the slow prize.

The evening attraction was the baby show, when the following bundles of sweetness made their parents proud and happy.

Boys.—George F. Updale, Arthur E. Page and Harold White.

Girls.—Mabel McCarten, Edna May Vanslyck and Francis May Beasley. The judges were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gilpin, Cheyboygan, Mich., and Mrs. (Dr.) Douglass, Wisconsin. Their task was no easy one for all of the babies were fine, healthy looking children, as bright as diamonds and twice as valuable.

Another feature of the evening's amusement was the champion light weight lifter, and a juggler, both of whom were artists in their respective avocations.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION.

If Canada is to Hold Her Own and Advance in Manufactures.

Peterboro Review.

At the meeting of the engineering club an informal discussion grew out of the suggestion that principal Fessenden, of the collegiate institute, should prepare a paper dealing with the question of the necessity and of the advisability of introducing into our schools a system of instruction along technical lines. While agreeing to do so, Mr. Fessenden asked for time in which to carefully prepare the subject, and in which to look up what was being done elsewhere, and the necessities, motives and reasons that made such a course desirable.

In referring to the need for technical education, for our young men especially, Mr. Barton, superintendent of the C.G.E. club, spoke very earnestly of a state of affairs of which he should be very well qualified to judge. He said that Canada, to-day, was a wasteful country. We were apparently prosperous, just now, as a manufacturing people in the province of Ontario. This was largely due to drawing on our natural resources pretty freely and to the fact that we did not feel the full force of foreign competition as yet. As long as our own market could take the bulk of our manufactures we could do fairly well. But just as soon as we reached out to sell abroad things other than those we supplied and which were necessities to the country purchasing, then we would be up against a wall. There were economies of shop management, of the intricacies of chemistry and its relation to manufactures, of the utmost use of material, of the handling of work and of the use of every force and lever that could be devised, of which we knew very little and so far practised less. England had been driven to reversed efforts, to break away from traditions, to change her methods because of competition of Germany, a competition founded on and grounded on technical education, liberally imparted. It was true Germany had cheap labor, it counted, as it will ever count, but she had skilled, trained men who were drilled, taught and urged to excel.

In his own profession he knew the want of technical taught men. He could employ fifty skilled men at once, if he could get them, but out of fifty who now applied for positions not more than three would prove to be competent. This was a state of affairs not unexpected, for the progress made in electric manufacture during the last fifteen years had been unprecedented in the history of manufacture. If we were to keep up as a manufacturing people, then we must educate our young men along the line of manufactures. It did not necessarily follow that every young man should be trained to the degree of a college profession, for that would not be needed in general, but the young man should be afforded all the technical training he could absorb, and the more he could assimilate the better man he would be.
