A GREAT REPUTATION.

HAS BEEN ACHIEVED BY DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS.

Not Only in Canada, But in Every Civilized Country Throughout the World—Merit Alone Has Given This Medicine Its Great Prominence Over Competitors Everywhere.

The reputation achieved by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills not only in Canada, but throughout the world, rests upon a very solid basis, which may be summed up in two words—sterling merit. The Enterprise has had occasion to investigate a number of cures effected by this medicine, and knows that in some instances at least these cures were wrought after other medicines had failed even to give relief. Recently another cure came under our notice that cannot fail to increase the popularity of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the locality in which it occurred, and as we can vouch for the facts, it may well bring hope to sufferers elsewhere.

Walter H. Johnson is one of the best known residents of the northern section of Queen's county. He resides in the town of Caledonia, where he keeps a hotel, and also runs a stage that carries passengers and mail between that town and Liverpool, a distance of some thirty miles. Mr. Johnson was in Bridgewater recently, on which occasion he gave a reporter of this paper the following facts: About three years ago he was taken very ill. He had the best of medical attendance, but made very little progress towards recovery, and the doctor told him there was very little hope that he would be able to return to his former work. The trouble appeared to have located itself in his kidneys, and for eight weeks or more he was confined to bed. He suffered greatly from constant pains in the back, his appetite became impaired, and his constitution generally appeared to be shattered. At this juncture he decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and got a half dozen boxes. In the course of a couple of weeks he noticed an improvement in his condition and he continued the use of the pills until he had taken some ten or twelve boxes, when he not only felt that his cure was complete, but also felt that in all respects his health was better than it had been for years. Since that time he has been continually driving his coach between Caledonia and Liverpool, and has not had the slightest return of the trouble, notwithstanding that he has to face at times very inclement weather, that might well bring on a return of the trouble had not his system been so strongly fortified against it through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

If the blood is pure and wholesome disease cannot exist. The reason why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure so many forms of disease is that they act directly upon the blood and nerves, thus reaching the root of the trouble. Other medicines act only upon the symptoms of the trouble, and that is the reason the trouble always returns when you cease these medicines. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make permanent cures in kidney troubles, rheumatism, erysipelas, anaemia and kindred diseases. But be sure you get the genuine which bear the full name, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, on the wrapper around every box.

Motto, Be A Man.

Acton's Solemon.

Some people know the difference between meekness and weakness. A meek man is not an ass who lets everybody saddle and ride him, nor a door mat that lets every clodhopper wipe his boots on him. The creeping, wobbling weakling that adapts his posture to every new surrounding is not a meek man, but a weak man. A meek man has backbone enough to keep his head up and yet of such flexibility as to allow him to get through an ordinary doorway. No one admires the aggressive nuisance who disturbs and annoys everybody and everything with which he comes in contact, but we have no patience with the simpleton, who has no opinions or convictions of his own and who has not enough self-assertion to wipe his nose without asking somebody's leave. Don't go around apologizing for being on the earth. If you are a man that is excuse enough. Stand out for the treatment a man should receive and get it.

Nathan Hale Memorial.

East Haddam, Conn., Sept. 22.—The old district school here where Nathan Hale taught in 1774, was dedicated today, the anniversary of Hale's execution, as a permanent memorial to the martyr spy of the revolution. The building has been preserved through the patriotism of Richard Henry Green, whose grandfather went to school in this very building. Mr. Green had the building removed from its original site to a beautiful spot on a high knoll where it is visible for miles around. The building has been turned over to the daughters of the American revolution, who will care for it and place in it many relics of Nathan Hale, now in possession of the society. Dr. Edward Everett Hale, a grand-nephew of the patriot, delivered the dedicatory address.

TOO MANY DESERTIONS.

Canadians Will Fight But Pine Away in Barracks.

Militia Gazette.

One can hardly pick up a paper published at Halifax, Quebec or Kingston without reading an item or two regarding desertions from the permanent corps, and now Toronto has fallen into line. It is said that during the last eighteen months there have been between thirty-five and forty desertions from the Royal Canadian Dragoons at Stanley barracks, and that out of a full squadron of eighty-eight men there are now only thirty-five. The old men seem to remain all right; it is the recruits who take French leave. Very little effort appears to be exerted to bring the men back, the authorities seemingly being satisfied to let them go if they are not willing to remain.

The Toronto dailies have been paying some attention to the matter lately and attribute the large number of desertions at that city to the harshness of one of the officers and the general discouragements of the service. For instance, a recruit joins and finds after working and drilling hard for a month that there is no pay coming to him, the total amount which he is supposed to have earned having been absorbed by the purchase of such extras as brushes, polish, blacking, serge, etc. Naturally the man is discouraged, and when he is brow-beaten and scolded by an officer without any apparent reason, he decides to stand it no longer and deserts at the first opportunity. The officers at Toronto deny the alleged harshness in emphatic terms and attribute the desertions to the fact that labor is largely in demand.

Sufficient encouragement is not offered to the Canadian permanent force. The class of men joining now are not such as would make ideal soldiers, and numerous changes must be made in the administration of the militia before the wished-for class can be persuaded to throw in their lot with the permanents. It certainly looks as if Canadians—and No. 1 men at that—will rush to enlist if there is fighting to be done, but the comparatively idle life around a barrack does not seem to be to their taste.

PAINFUL BURNS.

Caused by Spattering Alcohol From a Burning Lamp.

Napanee, Sept. 22.—Last week Frank O'Brien, with A. W. Grange & Bro., druggists, met with what might have been a serious accident. He was passing by an alcohol lamp some one had left burning, when he thought he would save time and blow it out instead of putting on the cap. The lamp did not like this hurried way of being treated, and exploded, the burning alcohol spattering all over his face, inflicting some painful burns, from which he has been a prisoner indoors ever since. Nothing of a serious nature, however, is the result, and in a day or two Frank will be around again as usual.

The other day one of our Dundas street merchants came very nearly not increasing his bank account by some $50. He started out with the money, but on reaching the bank both the bank book and money were missing. He hurried back, but before reaching his own door an honest neigbor had gathered up the wad and returned it to its rightful owner.

Mrs. A. J. McLean and daughter returned last night from a month's visit in the west with her husband, A. J. McLean. Mr. and Mrs. James Mayhood, and child, of San Francisco, Cal., are on a visit with relatives and friends after an absence of twenty-five years in the golden state.

Queen Victoria's Fine China.

Queen Victoria has a splendid collection of china scattered about the royal apartments at Windsor. The grand corridor is adorned with much of this.

Among the gems are a paint of "royal blue" jardinieres, a copy of the famous musted vessel in blue, a plate in "partridge eye" blue, tricked out with cupids and doves, all Sevres ware, and a magnificent array of Rose du Barri vases which are worth an enormous sum.

Noticeable also is a cabinet entirely filled with apple-green china, and another devoted to turquoise blue, also from the Sevres factories.

The Sevres ware, however, which possesses the greatest historic interest, is kept in the white and green drawing room. One of the most interesting and valuable of these collections was made for the ill-fated Louis XVI. and purchased by the prince regent (afterwards George IV.). The color scheme is a transparent ground of blue du roi.

O'Brien's Cow Seized.

Some time ago, William O'Brien, the Irish M.P., expressed his hostility to the imperial government by refusing to pay his rates. This determined step was applauded by the local branches of the United Irish league, and it was generally believed that, should a distress be levied, Mr. O'Brien would offer violent resistance to the rate collector. One day early in September, however, the collector, accompanied by two members of the Royal Irish constabulary, visited Mr. O'Brien's residence at Westport and distrained a handsome milch cow of superior breed, which Mr. O'Brien had imported from Alderney. The nationalist journal which reports the occurrence says that, although it was generally known that the seizure would be made, no excitement was created, even when the cow was led under police escort through the streets.

The Horrors Of War.

An English actuary, has created a sensation by figures showing that of the officers in South Africa 72.1 per thousand have been killed or have died from wounds; 30.6 per thousand have died from disease. Of the men 19 per thousand have been killed or died from wounds, and 31.8 have died from disease.

The first battalion Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers is stationed at Ladysmith, in the relief of which this brave north of Ireland regiment suffered terribly. Of the thirty officers and 1,689 rank and file that left Mullingar nine months ago only one officer—Capt. W. F. Hessey, and about twenty-eight per cent. of the men are now with it, the remainder having fallen in action, died from wounds or disease, or having been invalided home.

SHORT SKIRTS IN FAVOR.

TURNING OUT GOODS SPECIALLY DESIGNED.

New Millinery is Marked by the Use of Birds and Plumage—An Interesting Letter From "Rosalind May."

New York, Sept. 21.—Dressmakers do not predict special innovations in corsages, and this for the reason that present outlines are capable of so many æsthetic changes and additions, to say nothing of economy in renewing worn places, covering up deficiencies or putting two or more materials together with beautifying results. Potent in the lines just mentioned are fancy yokes, vests, jacket fronts or cunning semblances of the same, and the many who have invested in Eton or bolero jackets during spring can possess their souls in peace, for once again they will pass unscathed by a contemptuous gaze. Chief perhaps in ornate additions is the full vest or front that is capable of such adaptation.

In new materials much prominence is given to such as show in great variety, small, all over patterns in silk on a repped surface. Narrow stripes in wool goods are frequent and in many the stripe stands out and boucle threads are often noticeable. Camel's hair effects are a marked feature and when combined with boucle threads results are striking. In these more choice goods collars are delightfully soft and even when bold do not offend, because evincing great refinement, the majority, however, being in subdued tones.

As an evidence of the importance now gained by the short skirt all department stores carry lines of wool goods designed for the same. Such special materials are very thick, though not unduly heavy, and are woven with different and frequently opposed patterns on the two sides, as, for example, when one may show a large plaid and the other a check or may be woven quite plain and the other a check or plaid. This is because they are to be made up without linings. So far, designs are exclusively in plaids or checks and colors, subdued shades of brown or gray and it can be added that broken checks are a new idea. Reds in various grades are very noticeable. In many fabrics the groundwork shows a rep beneath an overlying design, the former not unfrequently being conspicuously large, and poplins, doubtless because of such feature, are a leading style of fall goods.

New millinery is marked by great heaviness arising from the use of wide breast feathers, birds and wings, but chiefly the first named, and while this is identical with last winter's styles, yet the kind of feathers is different, the grebe that was so popular having given way to pheasant and peacock plumage, which with irridescent colorings, are certainly an improvement. Handsome hats and bonnets are made of these feathers lying compact on a frame as to the crown and the brim finished by flat breast feathers. In contrast, very long real or manufactured quill feathers are noticeable, either curled around the hats or projecting upward and farther change is given by numerous wings that may dart capriciously as heretofore.

With more refinement, great use is made of delicate chicken feathers dyed and especially for pompons that replace the large single flowers of the summer; they are placed in curled over bunches or on towering stems; they hang straight and thick set from a central support. Another style of arrangement is that of lightly attaching four or six short feathers to a wire, so that, resembling miniature wings, they tremble with each motion and on a noteworthy example, they completely encircle the brim.

—ROSALIND MAY.

Modern Church Goers Denounced.

Chicago, Sept. 20.—The first session of the convention of christian workers was held here yesterday. Rev. R. A. Torrey spoke on "The Need of a General Revival," making a bitter arraignment of the present methods of worship and what he said were the depraved tastes of the people in literature, art and amusements.

After Mr. Torrey had completed a severe scoring of the ministry in the course of which he said: "Many of us who are professedly orthodox are infidels," he launched forth into a fierce attack on certain church members.

"Sunday is rapidly becoming a day of pleasure," said Mr. Torrey. "Along with neglect of prayer and neglect of God's word goes a lack of generosity. The churches are increasing in wealth, but the treasuries of the missionary societies are empty. Christians do not average a dollar a year for foreign missions. Unbelief is rampant. Hand in hand with this widespread infidelity goes immortality. Infidelity and immorality are Siamese twins. Men marry one wife after another and are still admitted to good society; and women do likewise."

Better Late Than Never.

Militia Gazette.

An amendment to general orders, just issued, does away with a grievance that has existed since the first contingent left for South Africa. It provides a separation allowance, payable from date of embarkation from Canada: Officers, one-half pay to the wife. Without quarters, to sergeant's wife, fifty cents; to corporal's wife, thirty-five cents; to private's wife, twenty-five cents, and for son under fourteen or daughter under sixteen, five cents. With quarters, sergeant's wife, thirty-five cents; corporal's wife seventeen and a half cents, and private's wife, twelve and a half cents, and for children, as above, three cents.

SPOKE TO THE QUEEN.

A Belwood Boy Highly Honored While in Hospital in England.

The following is part of a letter from Corpl. B. B. Blyth, of the 2nd contingent to South Africa, and son of R. Y. Blyth, Belwood, Ont., sent from the convalescent home on the Isle of Wight:

"The night before last Pte. Dunbane, of Toronto, and I had started to go to Osborne to see the queen as she was returning home from her daily drive. When we learned that the queen was coming along our street we went back, and by this time the royal carriage was standing at our gate and the queen was talking to the matron. When we got up opposite to the carriage we saluted and turned in the gateway, but the queen called us back and spoke to us. She enquired concerning our health and was pleased to learn that we had improved very much since coming to Cowes. To have the privilege of even seeing the queen was something which I had never expected, but to have the honor of speaking to her, while only a yard away from her carriage, was something I had never dreamed of. She has a very sympathetic heart, and has a great motherly bearing towards the soldiers, for she calls us at the home her children.

"You have heard, lately, rumors of the ill-health of the queen, but such are false, for we could not wish to see a more healthy looking person at her age. While she is stout and somewhat troubled with rheumatism, her skin is clear and her cheeks are of a delicate pink, which speaks clearly of good health. Her appearance and her kindly bearing towards us were sufficient to call forth immediately our highest esteem and reverence. Ever will I hold her in deepest respect and affection, while my loyalty has been increased ten-fold by what I have known of her actions here, and the attention to the soldiers who have been invalided home. Now, I have told you of my high privilege of seeing and speaking to her majesty, and I suppose you think that nothing greater could be had by me, but, indeed, I had a higher privilege still, for, yesterday, as she was on her way to her yacht, which was to take her to Portsmouth, on her way to Balmoral, and while the streets were lined with people, her majesty, attended by royalty, and soldiers, it was my great privilege to present her with a beautiful bouquet of flowers, tied together with a ribbon of red, white and blue. This honor was such I had never dreamed of, and I was indeed fortunate to have the privilege, which came to me because I was the senior non-commissioned officer in the home, and a Canadian. There are twenty of us here, six being Canadians. We had the men lined up on one side of the street, and when the royal carriage came within a few yards I called the men to attention and saluted, the carriage stopping opposite me, and I went up and presented the bouquet, received the queen's thanks for the soldiers at the home, saluted and retired to the ranks, while, amidst cheers, the royal carriage with her majesty moved away. I wore a bouquet of the same kind of flowers as were presented to the queen, and am trying to press them to send them home."

WEDDING BELLS.

A Lansdowne Young Man Weds a Fair South Lake Girl.

South Lake, Sept. 21.—On Tuesday, 18th inst., South Lake lost one of its fairest maidens, when Miss Alice O'Haron, youngest daughter of John O'Haron, was united in matrimony to Michael Lappan, youngest son of the late Patrick Lappan, and one of Lansdowne's most popular young men.

The marriage took place at St. Barnaby's church, Brewer's Mills, at eight o'clock, where high mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Connelly in the presence of a few most intimate friends. The bride looked charming, gowned in ivory satin with point lace, chiffon and pearl trimmings, with white velvet picture hat. She carried in her hand a beautiful prayer book as she entered, leaning on the arm of her father, followed by her sister, Mamie. The latter, as bridesmaid, attired in pink silk organdie, with white chiffon trimmings over pink silk, and black velvet picture hat. Little Caramel Cooper was maid of honor.

At the altar railing the bride took her place beside the groom, who had previously entered with his attendant, J. McDonald, Howe Island. After the ceremony the bridal party entered the carriage in waiting and drove to the residence of the bride's father, where a private reception was held for the near friends and relatives, among whom was Rev. Father O'Gorman, Gananoque. The reception over, the bridal party drove to the G.T.R. station to meet the 1:45 p.m. train for Montreal and Quebec, accompanied by the usual shower of good wishes. They will return to their home in Melcombe. The bride's travelling suit was a rich hue of blue and bluette cloth, black satin shirt waist, and velvet turban to match. The weather, too, had been grateful, all nature appearing in her loveliest form as if to contribute her quota of happiness to the occasion. The friends and community join in wishing an era of bliss to Mr. and Mrs. Lappan.

A MOTHER'S PRAYER.

G. A. W., in Brooklyn Eagle.

Into my life one bright spring day
A frail, white blossom found its way,
And bloomed with fragrant tender life
Into a world of woe and strife;
God's gift it was, to be my care,
This tiny flower so pure and fair.
God grant that I may live aright
To keep this blossom pure and white;
And when Thou call'st it back to Thee,
In Thy fair garden may it be
One of the choicest in Thy bower,
And worthy to be called Thy Flower.
