THANKSGIVING SYMPOSIUM

MANY REASONS WHY WE SHOULD RETURN THANKS.

Clergymen, Professional and Business Men Give Their Opinions—Canada Has Much to be Thankful For.

"All good gifts around us
Are sent from heaven above,
Then thank the Lord, O thank the Lord
For all His love."

The Whig asked a number of clergymen, professional and business men of Kingston for their views on what the Canadian people have to be thankful for during the past year. These answers have been given:

* * * *

Prof. Shortt, Queen's university—The country should be thankful for a prosperous year, freedom from calamities, and the absence of great political issues.

* * * *

Henry Folger, United States vice-consul—Canada should be thankful for the development of national spirit. The best crop that Canada is harvesting is the confidence of its people in the future of their country.

* * * *

Alderman Thomas Deacle—Canadians should be thankful for the privilege of living in a country where freedom of thought and speech is every citizen's prerogative, where there is no distinction of class, and where an honest man without a cent is as highly respected as the millionaire. I am thankful for a disposition which enables me to treat all my fellow citizens friendly, even those who differ from me politically, or vote against me.

* * * *

R. Silver—I am thankful that I was born, cradled and raised to manhood in a country where autocratic, despotic and consequently cruel monarchs have checked the advance of civilization, so that I can more appreciate and fully enjoy now the blessings of freedom and equality in the country of my adoption, where the spirit of toleration and justice to all is permeated and diffused among the masses.

* * * *

John McIntyre, Q.C.—As part and parcel of the British nation, we have great cause for gratitude in view of the splendid success of our arms in South Africa. Canada is especially entitled to share in the glory, and, therefore, our duty as Canadians is to share in the patriotic thanksgiving. Many of the powers of the world would have rejoiced to see Britain crippled in the struggle. Even a few unworthy characters here would not have felt any mortification at our defeat. As our triumph is signal, our thanksgiving for abundant reasons should be signal likewise.

* * * *

Very reverend, the dean of Ontario—One great value of the appointing of a day of thanksgiving is the acknowledgment of the nation of God's Providential care. In the midst of our busy lives and material prosperity, we are too prone to forget our Great Benefactor and practically to credit the means through which He works as the real source from whence our blessings flow. But a call to thanksgiving is a call to look behind all secondary causes, behind the strength, the energy, the skill of man, behind all processes of nature, and to see God, the Great Giver and Ruler.

* * * *

United States consul Twitchell—Canada should be thankful for crops so abundant as to be able to feed well her own people and furnish for the hungry outside her borders more food than any country of equal population in the world. She should be thankful for the close of the war in South Africa and the part which her sons have taken in the conflict, giving as it has to Canada a world's recognition. With all the world she should be thankful to see the christian nations acting together against barbarism, and for the establishment of the christian civilization in China.

* * * *

Rev. A. Sims—As a nation we have a great many rich blessings which should call forth our deepest gratitude. Among these may be mentioned abundant crops, prosperity of trade, freedom from the ravages of war, pestilence, hurricanes, cyclones and protection to life and property. Above all should we be especially thankful to Almighty God—

1. For the gift of His Son Jesus Christ to die for our fallen race. 2. For that precious book to men an open bible. 3. For the numerous and ever increasing agencies for the dissemination of the gospel. 4. And for civil and religious liberty.

* * * *

Capt. R. Crawford—For peace, for good government, for the wonderful development of our country's resources, for the extension of old and the inauguration of new industries, for our great national prosperity, and for living in a country so largely endowed and so bountifully blessed with natural advantages, and that by means of its splendid educational institutions and the large measures of civil and religious liberty accorded us the opportunity is afforded each one, no matter how humble, to aid in its further development and to help the spread of that righteousness which "exalted a nation."

* * * *

Dr. James Third—Medically speaking we have many things to be devoutly thankful for, not the least of these being the progress made by preventative medicine. That the popular mind has shared in this is evidenced by the increased number of isolation hospitals for the treatment of tuberculosis disease of the lungs. Although the human body is heir to upwards of five hundred distinct forms of disease, tuberculosis alone is responsible for one-seventh of the entire mortality, and it is a preventable disease. Evidence to hand for 1900 indicates a positive decline in the deadly rate. It is admitted that one of the pressing needs of Canada is a larger population. Our legislators might, however, with advantage spend more in guarding the health and happiness of those we have and less in support of a doubtful immigration policy.

* * * *

Rev. M. Macgillivray, M.A.—We need not go far afield for many grounds of profound thankfulness. There has been a bountiful harvest, taking the country as a whole, and the weather has been seasonable for garnering it in good condition. Good prices and uncommon general prosperity prevail. For our church there has been a prosperous year; unprecedented in her missionary expansion, in her liberality, and in the tokens of religious life; and eight-tenths of the million dollar century fund has been promised. The South African war is about closed. The prowess of British arms has been sustained without a stain on the humane, intrepid conduct of the troops; and our Canadian contingents have gained eminent distinction. For all which, and more besides, we should return thanks to God, to-morrow.

* * * *

Robert Meek—I speak of thanksgiving in a national sense. Canadians offer thanks for the peace, prosperity, and contentment that abound; for the love of country which finds expression in so many patriotic acts; for the growth of that sentiment that makes for purity in public life; for the spirit of brotherhood that is ever widening and manifesting itself in generous and philanthropic service; for the sacrifices of the strong and intellectual in the interest of the weak and unfortunate; for the cheerful contributions of the wealthy on behalf of the poor; for the very general recognition of a God Who is over all and above all, and Whose providences are forever for our good. To Him the state, moved by christian impulses, asks us to bow the knee to-morrow, and our thanks ought to be freely given out of a full and grateful heart.

* * * *

Dr. R. T. Walkem, Q.C.—The mother country has much to be thankful for during the past year, in having brought the South African war to a successful issue. This war has been the most important event in the country's history for nearly a century. It has settled the destiny of South Africa for many generations at least. One of the greatest blessings of the war has been the opening of the eyes of the British nation to the terrible defects in their military system, defects to which they seem to have been hitherto fatuously blind. But the drawing together of the mother country, and what are for want of a better name called the colonies, but which I would prefer to call her children, must be regarded as a crowning blessing, a full compensation for all the blood and treasure which had been expended in the conflict.

* * * *

Mayor Minnes.—We should be thankful for many blessings, national and civic. We are proud and thankful that this Canada of ours has exemplified to the world the unity of the great empire of which we form a part, by sending her sons to assist the mother country in time of need. We are thankful that British arms have been triumphant in South Africa and that in all the gallantry and valor displayed our Canadian lads were foremost, and we are indeed thankful that so many of them have been spared to return home. Our farming community has been prosperous and the harvest has been good. That great industry, the cheese industry, has been most prosperous, cheese bringing a high figure and thereby making money more plentiful throughout the country. With a prosperous farming community the cities and towns also to a great extent benefit. From a civic standpoint we should be thankful that, while our city has not grown, it has held its own and not gone backwards. We have natural facilities which should make us prosperous commercially, which will yet place us in the front of Canadian cities.

* * * *

Dr. Edward Ryan—For the advancement in medical science in recent years we have much to be thankful. The scientist and the physician have made the ills of humanity their common labor, and as a result we stand on a pinnacle to-day that our fathers never dreamed of reaching. In the prevention, even more than in the treatment of disease, has the advance been marked. But it is in the magnificent hospital accommodation that our hearts should rejoice. In these homes of mercy the sufferer, be he rich or poor, known or unknown, of good or evil repute, meets with all the kindness, attention, skill and watchfulness, that kind hearts can bestow, or modern medical advancement can suggest. The sick pillow is gently soothed and the ills of poor, sinful, suffering humanity are relieved. Should we not be thankful for these gifts? And mahap He who sees the sparrows when they fall. Who permits not even the glass of cold water given to a disciple to go unrewarded, may in the hour of need credit us for our efforts in behalf of those of His who are weary and falling by the wayside.

* * * *

John L. Whiting, Q.C.—Canadians have reason for profound thanksgiving because they live in one of the freest and most enlightened, one of the healthiest and most invigorating countries of the globe. Everything conduces to the development of the higher type of manhood. What we need are loftier ideals of political and personal rectitude and a sterner purpose to make the most of ourselves. The past year has been one of great material prosperity—not an accidental and transitory prosperity, but the beginning of a new era of national advancement. We have begun to recognize our resources and realize our powers. Canada has stepped forward into public view, and her development is being placed on too broad a base to be shaken by bad harvests or adverse tariffs. We are beginning to prepare our vastly diversified natural products and to put them direct on the great markets of the world.

A day of thanksgiving is not only a fitting acknowledgment for a christian nation, but is an opportunity for intelligently and wisely reviewing the innumerable grounds we have for gratitude. The heart can learn no sweeter lesson than a sane optimism. "God's in his heaven, all's right with the world."

* * * *

Rev. Douglas Laing, M.A.—Reasons for thanksgiving? They are without number. "Who can utter the mighty acts of the Lord? Who can show forth all his praise?" Well may Canada send up a paean of thanksgiving, for of her it may be said, "He hath blessed thy children within thee. He maketh peace in thy borders, and filleth thee with the finest of the wheat." Whilst the famine fiend has been doing his deadly work in other lands, our harvest fields have laughed in the summer sun, and our garners are bursting with their overfulness; our orchards have given lavish measure of their bounties, and forest, lake and mine have yielded up their "hid treasures." "Oh, that men would praise the Lord for His goodness, and for His wonderful works to the children of men."

And whilst through the earth the demon of war has been stalking, leaving many a field red with the blood of his victims, peace has joined hands with prosperity in our beloved Canada. "Oh that men would praise the Lord for His goodness." And while our tears fall for the many slain as they carried to distant lands, the gospel message of peace, we worship "every man under his vine, and under his fig-tree," with none to make us afraid.

"Oh that men would praise the Lord for His goodness, and for His wonderful works to the children of men."

* * * *

Rev. James Elliott, B.A.—As I see it Canada has much for which she may well feel deeply grateful. On the lowest plane, God has given our nation a vast and varied inheritance. Illimitable resources of forest and mine are ours. Bountiful harvests have crowned the year. Comfort growing out of abundance is our possession. Intellectually, there are signs of development under the inspiring and guiding care of God. The highest institutions of learning are seeking added equipment to still further develop and perfect the nations higher life. The best men are being selected to guide and inspire the evergrowing intellectual life of our aspiring youth.

Spiritually, signs of greater depth, clearer insight, and more intelligent piety are not wanting. A larger, broader, and more genuine life characterizes alike both pulpit and pew. All christendom is half unconsciously becoming one great, vital, spiritual unity, largely through a more intelligent grasp of truth. Our public life is being gradually purified and elevated, and if not as rapidly as we might desire, still with a development which gives promise of permanency. Political corruption is fast disappearing.

Nor should we fail to recognize on this our day of thanksgiving, the immeasurable uplifting influence of the press. In Canada a clean daily newspaper, ever increasing in fairness, ever deepening in insight, and ever developing in conscience, has become an indispensable preacher of righteousness. Canada has not adequate consciousness of what she owes to her well-conducted newspapers. Their honest and intelligent criticisms of all things, popularly speaking, secular and sacred, act like salt and light with the result that our whole life social, civil and religious is better because they are.

As a nation, we feel grateful that in the providence of God, the bond of empire has been greatly strengthened and our patriotism greatly deepened by the courage, power of achievement and humanity toward the vanquished, manifested under stress and strain by the empire as a whole. The empire has given evidence that under the blessing of God she is neither decadent nor disintegrant.

Nor would we be narrow we recognize cause for gratitude that even through sharp conflict, God is for ever evolving the best for the world as a whole, and thus bringing a step nearer the time when the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man will be completely recognized by those who think and feel, rejoice and sorrow, plan and act throughout our world.

DESERONTO DOINGS.

Caught a Big Maskinonge—Removed to the Hospital.

Deseronto, Oct. 16.—Saturday afternoon George Burtch and Jack Apdale were coming from their homes over the bay to this place. When opposite the shingle dock they caught a maskinonge. They had no means of landing the great fish and it was with considerable difficulty they rowed it within hailing distance of Warren's boat livery. Mr. Warren came to their assistance, and with the aid of gaff hooks succeeded in landing the largest fish of the season, measuring three feet eight and a-half inches long and weighing twenty-three pounds. The two men carrying the fish up town attracted much attention. They proceeded to Osborn's photo gallery, where a picture was taken, and then handed the fish over to William Hatch, proprietor of the Deseronto house.

John Nathon, who had a bad attack of typhoid fever, was removed to Hotel Dieu, Kingston, Saturday. Mrs. Edward Mission continues very low with typhoid fever. Postmaster Boppins has moved to his newly purchased residence, Centre street. Plans of Deseronto's new post-office are on view at Dalton's furniture store. Commissioner Harvey is busy with his men grading several streets in the west end and putting sidewalks in repair. Prof. Jordan preached to large congregations morning and evening in the Church of the Redeemer. Prof. Evans lectured in the Methodist church Sunday morning and in the opera house Sunday evening. Large crowds from here took in the Rochester excursion on North King Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Valleau spent Saturday and Sunday in Denoresville. Messrs. Hampton & Egar are off for a two months' hunt. E. J. Edwards was in Kingston Monday evening. C. Goulin spent Saturday in Kingston. Conductor Whiting, of R. of Q. RR., is away for two weeks' holidays. Conductor Easterbooke is acting in his place. Mrs. Croft, Kingston, is visiting her son, George Croft, Centre street. Mrs. E. McMaster is spending a few days in Oswego. H. McM. Rathbun spent Thursday in Kingston. H. Sibbold, of the bank of Montreal, has returned after two weeks' holidays. Mrs. Thurston, Picton, is visiting friends in town this week.
