A Germ Catechism.

The Manner in Which Powley's Liquified Ozone Kills the Germ of Disease.

Q. What is disease?
A. Disease is an unnatural condition of the body or organs of the body.
Q. What causes disease?
A. Germs cause disease.
Q. How are germs formed?
A. Germs are formed from decaying vegetable or animal matter.
Q. In what way do germs cause disease?
A. The germs enter the body and form a chemical combination with the animal cells. A chemical combination is peculiar to each disease. Thus a certain germ forms cholera, another consumption, another typhoid fever, another kidney disease, another indigestion, and so on.
Q. How can we cure disease?
A. What is required is an antiseptic, something that will kill the germs and restore the diseased portion of the body to health.
Q. What will do that?
A. Powley's Liquified Ozone is the only preparation which will accomplish this.
Q. What is Powley's Liquified Ozone?
A. It is liquified oxygen; nature's cure for disease. It treats disease under a new system. It is simple infallible in its treatment. It has been demonstrated that no germ can live in oxygen or ozone. Powley's Liquified Ozone kills microbes instantly, and in this way cures such terrible diseases as consumption, impure blood, eczema, typhoid fever, tumors, Bright's disease of the kidneys, liver troubles, female weaknesses, etc.

Stop old-fashioned medicine methods. Powley's Liquified Ozone is liquified oxygen. It kills germs of every description. Testimonials prove this. Send for pamphlet on general troubles and female diseases. Powley's liquified Ozone is sold in two sizes, large size $1, small size 50c., at all druggists, or by mail from the Ozone Co., of Toronto, Limited, 48 Colborne St., Toronto.

HIS HEAD IS GONE.

Now we have a word to say at that venerable gentlemen who leads the senate as to his duplicity. He is a wonderful man, if he does say it himself. He sees the necessity of advertising himself, in order to keep up with Sir Charles Tupper, and so he alleges that if he did not go on the platform with "certain gentlemen," to wit Sir Charles Tupper, Mr. Foster, and Hugh John Macdonald, at Belleville, he was in accord with the party, and would be loyal to the leader so long as he stood by the policy of Sir John Macdonald. That was not the explanation he made when the demonstration occurred and he was missed from it. His story then was that he was out of politics! It is time he went into retirement, when all he can do is slander his opponents and revive the scandals of his government nearly five years ago. His head is gone!

TRAFFICING IN SLANDER.

The tories are getting bolder. Clark Wallace, one of the most desperate, and, therefore, one of the most reckless, at a meeting in Toronto Junction, said that Mr. Fulford, of Brockville, had paid a sum of money for his seat in the senate. He said more—that Mr. Fulford was making a misuse of the position—that he was using it for the advertising of his business. Mr. Fulford did the only thing he could do at the time. He promptly and emphatically denied that that there was any foundation for the charges. He should go further, and at once. He should put the case in the hands of his solicitor with the instruction that the slander must be withdrawn and apologized for. Sir Mackenzie Bowell has talked about investigating these things in the senate, but that is no place in which to get at the facts and have a proper penalty exacted from the offender. Sir Mackenzie is in the slander business himself, and ought to be prosecuted for the things he has said and cannot prove about Mr. Tarte and Mr. Sifton. The Fulford and the Cook cases need not be sent to him, but to the courts where the judges will sift the evidence and see that a verdict is given in accordance with it. And really something should be done, in the interest of decency, to make men prove their charges or forever hold their peace.

BOWELL VS. HAGGART.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell has not done himself and his party any good by going to Carleton Place, and having it out with Hon. John Haggart. The ex-minister of railways was one of the alleged nest of traitors, but he was only one, and perhaps not the worst of them. There are others in the field, seeking political favours, and shaping themselves for a recall to office, should the country by any misfortune go conservative. These are Sir Hibbert Tupper, George Eulis Foster, Dr. Montague, and Sir Adolphe Caron. All of them Senator Mackenzie may cut, but he does not seek a public quarrel with them.

Through Sir Mackenzie, and four years after it occurs, we get an idea of the regard in which he was held while head of the conservative government. He was called "an imbecile," an "old fool," "a stupid old idiot," and other choice names by his associates. So he affirms, and it is presumed he is quoting them correctly.

It is inferred that his colleagues met in caucus, that they talked about the old man's failings, that they concluded they were doomed to defeat with him as a leader in an approaching elections. In discussing their future or fate they did not refer to him in too flattering a way. Some one told the old man what his cabinet thought about him, and the names they called him, and he has remembered every word.

John Haggart's great offence lay in the fact that he was delegated to break the news very gently to his chief that they desired his resignation. Sir Mackenzie says he did not want nor covet any public position, but he held on to the premiership, for days after he was expected to give it up, and there was no help for it but to force him out. Mr. Haggart has suffered from Sir Mackenzie's animus because he was the medium through whom the others spoke. So Sir Mac. says there is no name need in greater contempt, and there are others. "Whether," said Sir Mackenzie, "I even used the expression, 'The Nest of Traitors,' or not is immaterial, for I should have used it." And more to the same effect.

There is a split in the party in South Lanark. Neither Dr. Preston nor Mr. Haggart is the choice of the party, in convention assembled. The collision of Mr. Haggart and Sir Mackenzie Bowell is a distressing and damaging event. Sir Charles Tupper advised against it, but Sir Mackenzie Bowell was bound to go, and now that he has said what he thinks of Mr. Haggart he must feel very much better.

The population of the United Kingdom is estimated at 40,581,000.

ANTI-BRITISH FEELING.

Pamphlet No. 6, which was issued by the conservatives of Quebec, in the interest of Sir Charles Tupper, has been making great mischief. The conservative candidate in Sherbrooke, for instance, has it that Sir Wilfrid Laurier has gone over, body, bones and breeches, to the Englishmen, and that his sending of troops to Africa was the culminating act of his surrender. Moreover Mr. Crepeau declares that a vote for Laurier and his government means a vote for further sacrifices, and that the Frenchmen will be called upon to send their sons into the wars of the mother country. The audience is alleged to have received these statements in silence, wondering what had come over Mr. Crepeau, the speaker in question, and coming generally to the conclusion that he had been misled by the literature he read. It is easy for Sir Charles Tupper to say that he disowns pamphlet No. 6. He did not say a word about it until the poison had entered the blood of men like Mr. Crepeau and shown its effects by an anti-British feeling.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The boys are lining up for action—the boys of Queen's. Rah! rah! rah!

Hugh John Macdonald has written a letter to a man in Brandon, and in it said what he thought of Mr. Sifton. But its dollars to doughnuts he will not go to Brandon and repeat the story to Mr. Sifton's face.

Apparently Sir Adolph Caron and Mr. Haggart are to be sacrificed in response to the demand for the party's purification. Sir Mackenzie Bowell says there are others, but he hesitates about going in pursuit of them.

A Tupperism, surely! A local conservative was asked how the new vote was likely to go in the election. "Oh," said he, "four-fifths will be with us." Just like Tupper, you know, who has a weakness for saying things.

At one of the campaign meetings a conservative spouter had just got to, "Then there's the emergency rations," when he was hailed with "Oh, give them a rest," and an outburst of laughter. The subject was changed at once.

Free binder twine and free dairy implements do not represent much in tariff reduction, say the conservatives. No? Well the farmers have reason to know better, and they know that with a change of government what they have they'd lose.

Mr. McIntyre acts as if he owned the student votes. There are votes at Queen's lots of them, but they are cast by men who know their own minds and their own opinions. It is a question if at any time a majority of them voted conservative.

Clark Wallace, according to the Telegram, sacrificed everything in 1896 when he refused to support the government and its remedial bill. Did he? He played the card that helped him most in his constituency. He did not suffer in the deal.

The McIntyre organ fears that the Whig will claim that the liberal party furnishes the power that turns the world on its axis. Oh, no, honour to whom honour is due. Sir Charles Tupper is moving everything nowadays, including the earth.

"Certain, gentlemen," associated with Sir Mackenzie Bowell in the government of the country, are alleged to have called him an imbecile, and idiot, and an old fool. These, judging the man by his late performances, will hesitate about revising his opinions.

The scandal has been revived that Bate & Co., of Ottawa, furnished Sir Wilfrid Laurier with a house. The premier has long since, in parliament, made one man very sugy he uttered the lie, and some other fellow, on his knees, may have to beg off if he is not very careful.

The conservative party to Sir Mackenzie Bowell: "Come home, come home. You have still some fight in you, but your sight is bad, and you are cutting and slashing at your friends instead of your foes. You had better rest upon the victory of other days."

It is some days since Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in language the most explicit, denied that either he or his government had made any overtures to Mr. Cook in regard to a senatorship for money. Mr. Cook said he could prove it, but he is evidently finding some difficulty about it. What has happened him?

The Telegram has a message from Nanaimo to the effect that Billy McInnis pitched into the Laurier government and called it bad names. Billy's father had to be removed from the lieutenant-governship for his blunders, and as a result the whole family is up against it. The government will probably survive the shock.

The hand, the eye, the voice of Sir John Macdonald are missing. He was the absolute master of his party in an election. What he said went every time. Had he sent a telegram to Bowell, saying "Keep out of South Lanark," Bowell would have done it, because he would not have dared to disobey. Tupper does not command anybody, not even himself.

At a meeting of Transvaal refugees at Cape Town, it was decided to send a petition to queen Victoria representing to her majesty the urgent necessity of the speedy return to their homes.

John Rutherford, who resides about four miles south of Omemee, Ont., was found this morning lying dead in a small piece of woods, a few rods from his house. He had been in his usual health and death is supposed to have been caused by heart failure. He was sixty-eight years of age.

A Jew, whose name is unknown went into the house of John Proctor about two miles south of Holland Landing, Ont., Saturday night, and stabbed Mr. Proctor with a pitchfork in the leg. He then ran off. Constable Artt, of this place, arrsted him, and took him to Newmarket and handed him over to the authorities there. The man appears to be insane. Proctor's injuries are not serious.

SPIRIT OF THE PRESS.

A Gentle Reminder.

Montreal Herald.

We hate to keep reminding you of it, but the betting is still two to one that Tupper gets the worst of it.

Sir Mac In Pursuit.

Toronto Star.

When he has polished off Hon. John Haggart, it may reasonably be expected that Sir Mackenzie Bowell will go out after Hon. George Foster and Hon. Dr. Montague. They also mutinied and contributed to the wreck of the Bowell government.

Not Very Far.

Hamilton Herald.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell promises a senatorial investigation of the charge that senatorships have been offered for sale. Wonder how far back Sir Mack proposes to carry his investigation.

Chinese With 'Em.

Montreal Herald.

Grand mass meeting of the Chinese electors of Ald. Ekers' division at 41144 St. Lawrence street last evening. Among those present was Sam Bung, Hop Low, Hop High, Wun Price, Wun Lung, Sam Lee, Wun Vote, and many others. Ald. Ekers made himself solid by singing a number of selections from the Mikado, afterwards stating that he always sent his washing out to the Chinese. If they sent him to parliament he would argue with a flat iron. This made something of a hit. The hall was tastefully decorated with mottoes of "Wun Hope Ekers, the landrymen's candidate."

From One Point Of View.

Montreal Herald.

H. A. Calvin, who, while running as an independent conservative in Frontenac, had the temerity to refuse to circulate the Star's edition of the Globe and other straight party forgeries, can scarcely hope for much consideration from Sir Charles Tupper next session. Of what use are unscrupulous lieutenants if their efforts are to be repudiated by every candidate who believes that a rudimental morality has some place in practical politics? Why run the risk of forging at all if candidates are to hold to a standard of personal honor, by comparison with which more prominent conservatives appear little better than ordinary criminals? Mr. Calvin doubtless believed that no decent man could countenance this chef d'oeuvre of the party or he would not have taken the radical step of excluding it from his committee rooms. In so doing he has also conveyed unmistakably the intimation that no honest candidate can have any dealings with the authors of the forgery which places Sir Charles Tupper in a delicate and embarrassing position before the electors of the county of Frontenac.

Short Crop In East Siberia.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 29.—According to the Official Messenger, the grain shortage is not confined to the eastern provinces of Siberia. The provinces richest in cereals are actually suffering on account of poor harvests. Grain is forwarded ahead of other merchandise, and grain railway rates have been reduced.

Harvey Allen and wife, Brockville, spent Saturday in the city.

A LADY PREACHER.

She Gave a Pleasing Sermon In Brock Street Church.

Miss Kathleen Morton, Toronto, who is to conduct evangelistic services in Brock street Methodist church this week, occupied the pulpit of that church at both services yesterday. In the evening the novelty of seeing a woman preacher attracted a large crowd, so that every available seat was taken. The text was found in St. Luke xxii, 62, "And Peter went out and wept bitterly." In the nineteenth century, said the preacher, we have placed Calvary and Pentecost at too great a distance. Christ would not have done so. There were three characteristics that marked every life—self-will, self-pleasing and self-penitence. She showed how these were brought out in Peter's life. Miss Morton closely resembles Eva Booth in her style of preaching, picturing always the emotional and pathetic side.

At Convocation Hall.

—Prof. Dyde was the speaker in convocation hall yesterday afternoon. The subject was "Death," as exemplified in the phrases used by Paul, "Crucified with Christ," "Dying daily," etc.

Such expressions, the speaker said, are liable to convey a mournful idea. It is not wholesome to dwell on the thought of death; the point is we must be ready. Stagnation, mental and moral, is a worse disaster than death. Paul died daily, and so must we if we are to succeed. We must keep running up to attain what is good in life implies hardship. The object of this hardship, this dying daily, is (1) to seek unity with what is eternally good and true; and (2) to evince a true spirit of self-sacrifice. The student is called for work, and this cannot be done without trial. Men are saved by fire, as all the tragedies of the world demonstrated. The fire is nothing more than the steady discipline of self, the "putting off the old man and putting on the new."

Free Methodist Service.

The Free Methodists held two meetings yesterday afternoon and evening at the business college building, Queen street. Rev. Mr. Cunningham conducted the services and preached an eloquent and forcible sermon from the words "Work out your salvation with fear and trembling." The singing was hearty and inspiring while the testimonies were spontaneous and interesting. In the evening Mrs. Sims conducted the meeting, read the 10th chapter of Matthew, and gave a lucid and practical interpretation of the text. There was a good attendance, many being present from Cataraqui and Elginburg.

Presbyterian Union.

In Edinburgh to-morrow the supreme courts of the Free and the United Presbyterian churches will meet separately for the last time. On Wednesday morning they will march from their respective halls and meet at the door of the great new hall, built for this great gathering and hold union ceremony. On Thursday morning after communion the United church will proceed to business.

The new name will be "The United Free Church of Scotland." The union still leaves three other Presbyterian bodies in that land; one, the Established Church of Scotland, has 600,000 communicants and 1,608 ministers. The new union has 1,800 ministers. The other two bodies are the United Original Seceders, with 4,000 communicants, and the Reformed Presbyterian church, with 1,000 communicants.

Church Paragraphs.

Presbyterian ministers in England are preaching to domestic servants and to mistresses on their respective faults.

Miss Kathleen Morton addressed the Sunday school scholars in Brock street Methodist church yesterday afternoon.

Chalmers church organ, under repair, went wrong at yesterday morning's service and could not be used. It was all right in the evening.

In Llandaff cathedral Rev. Evan Jenkins and Rev. J. Barry Thomas, former Baptist ministers, were admitted to the Church of England.

R. Bowerman West, of Exeter, England, besides leaving $250,000 to charities, arranged to pay off the debt of new St. David's Anglican church.

A farewell to Rev. J. J. Wright, at Dawson, before taking up work at White Horse, was hearty. He was presented with a well-filled "poke."

Arthur Ellis and Miss Gertrude Mills sang the duet, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," in Bethel Congregational church last night. The rendition of the favorite hymn was skilfully done.

Rev. Henry Gracey, Gananoque, moderator of the Kingston presbytery, spoke in Cooke's church last night, his subject being the century fund. The church was crowded to the doors.

Wesley Methodist church, Newburgh circuit, built thirty-seven years ago, has been repaired and improved and reopened. The entire cost of the improvements, $300 has been raised. The reopening services were very appropriate.

Nineteen vacant Presbyterian pulpits are reported in the Presbyterian Review, four being in this district—Glenvale, Harrowsmith, Lansdowne and Tamworth. The mission fields in the eastern provinces need ministers. The Rev. Dr. Robertson reports twenty-seven places to fill in the north west. The colleges are evidently not doing enough work.

Rev. Mr. McCallum preached in the First Congregational church last night, from the text, "Thy kingdom come." He spoke of the Canadian government being for the good of the people and prophesied that the women would have votes in time. He contended, that the women should have as much say in running the country as the men.

Rev. James Elliott, B. A., in Queen street Methodist church, on Sunday morning had the two candidates at service, and in his opening prayer, prayed for moderation in politics, that men would deal with each other as men and not resort to practices that they would be ashamed to see emblazoned in the sky. He prayed that Christianity might leave and purify all politics. He preached a fine sermon on the love of riches and took occasion to commend the article in Saturday's Whig, in which millionaires gave their opinions as to what rich men can do. He quoted the remarks of Rockefeller, Carnegie and Miss Helen Gould. Miss Bailey, an old time favorite, sang the solo, "O Lord Correct Me," very sweetly.

Great Competition Between The Speeches Which They Made.

Montreal Herald.

Lindsay, Ont., Oct. 24. (Special.)—Great doings here all right last Wednesday. The great chief and Col. Sam Hughes had a love feast that was a dream.

"Intelligent electors of Lindsay," yelled Col. Sam, "let me introduce myself, the greatest man that ever had his name printed on a ballot. I have just returned from the Transvaal, where I pierced Kruger's hopes with a fountain pen, and saved the British empire!" (Cheers.)

The great chief had to take in a big breath to beat this, but the great chief has a little bang power all right, and he got there.

"Electors of Lindsay, friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me your ears. (Ere! ere!) You all know me! The father of your country. I cause the sun to shine and the rain to fall. When your forefathers were being toted in baby carriages me and Wolfe stormed Quebec. (Cheers.) Later on in years I built up the Canadian Pacific and arranged to have the Atlantic ocean touch at Halifax and other eastern points. (Cheers.) Why I—"

Your acute correspondent awoke to find himself being tenderly cared for in the Lindsay hospital.

Counties' Credit Is Good.

Brockville, Ont., Oct. 27.—Levi Patton, treasurer of the united counties of Leeds and Grenville, has disposed of fifteen thousand dollars' worth of debentures, to cover improvements to the jail, to Stimson & Co., brokers, Toronto, at a premium of two and a half per cent.

London, Oct. 29.—The will of baron Russell of Killowen, late chief justice, published, shows that he left property valued at £150,000, besides making earlier provisions for several married sons and daughters.

ONLY A COMMON THIEF.

Nothing in the Story of an Attempted Plot.

Paris, Oct. 29.—The police declare that there is no foundation for the report from Lyons that an anarchist plot to assassinate president Loubet was discovered through the arrest near there of an electrician of the name of Couturier. The police say Couturier is a common thief who pretends that he is an anarchist and intended to kill the president.

A Greater Paris Now.

Paris, Oct. 29.—After the exposition the government will include the great suburbs of Paris, such as Neuilly, Boulogne-sur-Seine, Charenton and Vincennes, in the city, thus adding a million to the population of the capital. This will involve the destruction of the city wall, and the abolition of the octroi.

Hon. William Kerr, Q.C., speaks in Napanee on Nov. 1st.
