A Coincidence.

On Saturday J. J. Doggley, of Kepler, lost in the city a pocketbook containing $30, a note and some other papers. He came to the city on Monday to recover it, if possible, and while an advertisement was being written out at the Whig office a telephone message was received stating that George Bennington, Glenvale, had found a purse. It answered the description and one man left the building feeling that there was luck in advertising. Even lost purses want stay lost.

Writes From Vancouver.

Percy Murray, formerly clerk in A. P. Chown's drug store, writing to a friend from Vancouver, B.C., where he has been employed for some time, says that he is getting along well there. He has not seen more than half a dozen sleighs so far this winter. Vancouver is a stirring place, but is subject to too much rainfall. It is no uncommon sight, he writes, to see it rain for weeks at a stretch.

Reserved Judgment.

The case of Minnie Hutton vs. William Hutton, tinsmith, Napanee, was the last case tried at the county court on Saturday. Plaintiff sued for the recovery of a number of cows and other stock, wrongly retained by defendant. The court meets on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, this week, to select jurors for 1901.

A bad smash-up occurred at Dunnsville, N.Y., on the Lackawanna, at an early hour this morning. An east-bound freight was making the switch when a coal train on the heavy down grade at Dunnsville plunged into the freight train near the centre. Alfred Barry, Elmira, was thrown nearly forty feet, striking heavily on rough, frozen ground. His injuries are severe and it is thought he cannot live.

Hon. Richard Harcourt and sheriff Moffatt, of Pembroke, attended at St. George's cathedral and greatly admired the building and the choral service. The surpliced choir was forty strong.

MINISTER OF EDUCATION.

HON. MR. HARCOURT IN THE CITY TO-DAY.

He Visited the Technical Classes in the Collegiate Institute—Pleased With All He Saw—A Look Through Victoria School.

The Kingston board of education inaugurated a system of manual training for the collegiate institutes of the province, as it previously had done for primary work in the public schools. About nine months ago the application was made to the government at Toronto for support for the new movement and was cheerfully given. The Hon. Richard Harcourt, minister of education, was anxious that senior education in Ontario should be broadened, and felt encouraged by the practical nature of primary work in the Kingston public schools. This work, however, was very simple, because the equipment was of that character. The proposal of the Kingston board was that excellent equipment should be provided in the collegiate institute, and that the work done in the junior schools should be supplemented by a higher grade of manual training. The government gave a grant, not only for the founding of the new department at the institute, but also to provide the outfit.

HON. RICHARD HARCOURT.

In September the manual class was started, under the personal supervision of principal Ellis, who has given a deal of time and study to technical education, who obtained a practical grasp of it, and who prepared an extended curriculum. His idea found favour with the minister, the linking of manual training with an academical course. The first efforts have not succeeded in this direction because of the lack of teachers who have this double training. So far the instruction has been given by Prof. Bayley, a clever graduate of a United States technical school, with a practical assistant. The results of the course are excellent as far as manual training is concerned, but it means a loss of time and salary, since only a comparatively few hours can be given to this subject alone, and the instructors are idle for the rest of the day. The remedy seems to rest in Canadian boards giving promising teachers a practical course for a year in a well equipped United States technical school. Otherwise the experiment has been a great success, one that must be cheering to the Hon. G. W. Ross, whose opinion like that of Mr. Harcourt, has long been in favor of its introduction.

Mr. Harcourt arrived yesterday, and this morning visited the collegiate institute at the opening, in company with Edw. J. R. Pense. He spent the forenoon examining into the practical work of the drawing and wood-working classes. Sixteen boys showed uncommonly good work in mechanical drawing, considering that their education had to be begun with elementary lines of instruction in September. This could be obviated by the curriculum of the drawing in the public schools being expanded in the direction of mechanical drafting; the pupil when he reached the collegiate institute could then be advanced much further in his course. The equipment of the institute classes is excellent, the only question being whether other school boards could afford to follow such complete models as those patterned by Kingston. The carpenters' benches are models of work tables, and their equipment of tools is superior. The minister was evidently pleased with the work so far done and hopeful of still greater progress. Brantford is making a move in the technical direction and it is felt that this would be valuable in Peterboro and other manufacturing centres. The Kingston school will be presented, therefore, as a model of government aims.

A visit was afterwards paid to Victoria school, which, like the collegiate institute, was admired for its bright schoolrooms, spacious halls and general arrangements. It was the first visit of Mr. Harcourt to Kingston schools and he was favorably impressed. He was met at the institute and accompanied to Victoria school by Thomas Lambert, chairman of the board of education; Dr. Dyde, chairman of management committee, and Messrs. G. Y. Chown, G. Sears, John McIntyre and J. G. Elliott, trustees. The kindergarten class, under Miss Adams, came in for a share of interest and admiration.

Col. Duff also visited the institute and examined the practical work.

LONDON'S NEW RAILWAYS.

Agitated Over Vibrations Caused by Twopenny Tube.

London, Dec. 17.—Property owners who complain of vibrations along the line of the Central London underground railway have found a champion in Sir George Fardell, the member for South Paddington. He considers the subject of sufficient importance to justify an enquiry by the board of trade, and an investigation may be ordered. There have been many complaints from residents above the Marble Arch that a continuous rumbling noise is heard, and that vibrations are distinctly felt when the trains are passing. Several handsome houses have been sold by the owners, who were seriously annoyed by what they described as the deadly electric nuisance, and enough has been said and written about the matter to excite a prejudice against property on the line of the "two-penny tube" and create alarm in other residential quarters, where the streets will be undermined if the rapid transit schemes now authorized or projected are carried out.

All tunnelling operations heretofore conducted have been at a deep level, and the tubes have been framed with rings of cast iron, in accordance with the requirements of the general act of parliament. The Central London officials assert that they will do everything in their power to lessen the vibrations, when the cause of the disturbance is once discovered, but they have taken every possible precaution, and cannot be held responsible for the depreciation of values. Engineers state that there is nothing in the clay and gravel formations underneath the Bayswater road which will help to explain the vibrations in that section. The subject is one of great public interest, since the only real hope for the solution of the housing question lies in a multiplication of the deep level electric lines and all the undertakings of this kind now in operation or under construction, or barely projected, will cost, when completed, as much as the South African war.

EARTHQUAKE IN CUBA.

Balls Were Rudely Broken Up By Trembling Mother Earth.

Santiago de Cuba, Dec. 17.—A sharp earthquake shock was felt here Saturday night, about midnight. It was the most severe that had been experienced in several years; almost created a panic at the San Carlos club, where a grand ball was in progress.

It was preceded by a dull sound like a mine explosion. Two shocks followed, former being quite severe, and the latter scarcely perceptible.

The ball-room at the club became a scene of frantic excitement. Several ladies fainted, and the people rushed into the streets, expecting another and severer shock.

At Morro Castle a military ball was in progress, and the American ladies present had their first experience of an earthquake. They expressed great interest. No injury was done in the city with the exception of the breaking of dishes, though a few small buildings are said to have been slightly damaged.

OVER 270 MISSING.

Loss of Life by the Ship Foundering is Heavy.

Malaga, Spain, Dec. 17.—It is feared the loss of life in the wreck of the German school ship Genisenau off this port will prove much greater than at first reported. One hundred and ninety survivors are being cared for here. The ship's complement was 461, which leaves 271 men missing. Some of these may have reached the shore in boats.

Death Of A Young Wife.

Mrs. Emma Amelia Campbell, wife of Douglas Campbell, 23 Ellice street, died this morning after a short illness. She was twenty-seven years of age, and a daughter of A. Turcotte, this city. The deceased was a member of St. Mary's congregation. The funeral will take place on Wednesday, when a solemn libera will be chanted in St. James' chapel.

The cross of the legion of honor says a Paris despatch has been conferred upon Madame Berosthorn, wife of the Austrian charge d'affaires at Pekin for heroic conduct and assistance to the French during the seige of the legations. Only one other foreign woman has been thus decorated. She is Marie Schlienck, a Belgian woman, who disguised herself and served in Napoleon's army.

The British are continually receiving reports of dissatisfaction from the districts around Pekin under their special charge. The officer in command has informed Gen. Gasalee that armed bands of native christians from the village of So Ran Noms, five miles south of Pekin, are constantly moving about and levying blackmail.

Telegrams from the north says the Shanghai correspondent of the London Times, wiring Saturday, report renewed activity on the part of the Boxers in the neighborhood of Pekin and Tien Tsin. It is believed that certain foreigners are continuing a surreptitious business in arms with the connivance of the taotai of Shanghai.

The London Post publishes the following from Pekin: "Boxer organization is nearly destroyed. There appears to be now no danger of a recrudescence of troubles. The Boxer leaders were in reality, not numerous and most of them have been punished by the Chinese authorities."

M. B. Malcolm, formerly of Brame's undertaking store, was in the city today visiting his many friends. A few weeks ago he severed his connection with undertaker Flint, Brockville, and is now with Reynolds & Johnston, Kemptville.

Michael Sullivan returned on Saturday from Windsor, where he spent a few days looking after his interests in the new drill hall being erected there by himself and partner, William Langdon.

Elmer Fryer, Winnipeg, was probably fatally injured by a barrel falling off a truck, which he was loading, on to his head and crushing his skull. He is aged twenty-five.

The senior and intermediate hockey schedules have been arranged for Manitoba teams. The first games takes place on Dec. 29th.

Miss Beatrice Tandy, choir leader of St. James' church, will resign her position early in the new year.

Sir Richard Cartwright arrived in the city to-day from Ottawa and took rooms at Hotel Frontenac.

Mrs. Calvin S. Bryce, New York, died to-day, the second anniversary of senator Bryce's death.

GEN. BOTHA WISHES PEACE

SUGGESTS SUBMITTING NOW TO THE INEVITABLE.

It is Expected That He Will Shortly Make Overtures For Peace—He is at Ermelo—Deserted to the Enemy.

London, Dec. 17.—A special despatch from Standerton, Transvaal, dated Dec. 14th, says that Gen. Louis Botha is at Ermelo, taking a peaceful attitude and informing the burghers that the time has come to submit to the inevitable. It is expected that he will shortly make overtures for peace.

Went To Bury His Mother-In-Law.

Kimberley, Dec. 18.—Piet Bosman, a Transvaal prisoner, obtained leave to visit his homestead to bury his mother-in-law. He has not returned, but has rejoined the enemy.

Not Yet Decided.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Dec. 17.—Kruger's cablegram sent by his secretary to the American Transvaal league, in reply to an invitation to visit Grand Rapids, which left here last week, is as follows: "President Kruger's best thanks; may league have success; visit America not decided."

Were Dressed In Khaki.

London, Dec. 17.—The Magaliesburg affair is described as follows in a despatch to the Standard from Rietfontein: "The scene of the engagement was a horseshoe-shaped depression. The Northumberlands occupied the centre. Gen. Clements' camp was pitched 1,000 yards lower down at the eastern point of the horseshoe and Col. Legge's camp was about 300 yards distant.

"Gen. Delarey's 1,000 men against whom Gen. Clement had fought repeated actions, were suddenly, unknown to Gen. Clements, reinforced by 3,000 men from Warm Baths, under commandant Beyers. At daybreak Col. Legge's picket described what seemed a fresh force of British troops, eighty yards distant. The strangers were challenged. They replied with a volley, revealing 400 Boers in khaki. The firing became heavy, and the noise aroused Col. Legge's troops, who arrived just in time to save the outposts from capture."

"A furious engagement ensued; artillery was brought up, and it compelled the Boers to retire. Col. Legge, following up the withdrawal, was shot dead by a bullet through his head.

"Gen. Clements and his staff soon arrived. The staff suffered severely. But Gen. Clements appeared to bear a charmed life.

"While mounted men were driving the enemy back along a slope covered thickly with Boer dead, a deafening rifle fire suddenly broke on the plateau above. The signallers heliographed that the Northumberlands were being attacked. Gen. Clements, convinced that they would easily hold their own, disposed the remainder of his force on the flanks and rear of his two camps.

"At 4.30 a.m. a heliograph from the Western Peak announced that the Boers were about to overwhelm the Fusiliers. General Clements was unable to send adequate help, but despatched Yeomanry to climb the precipitous hillside and create a diversion. Before the Yeomanry could come into action the Boers overlapped the Northumberlands and were in possession of the entire horseshoe, firing down on the Yeomanry, entangled in the bushes and boulders.

The Northumberlands made a magnificent defence so long as their ammunition lasted, according to the Boer accounts many even when his chance was hopeless, died fighting.

"Gen. Clements, now left with 700 men, made a superhuman effort against the bullets the Boers were pouring over the peaks, and managed to save his guns, and the camp equipments. He retired in splendid order and at 4 p.m. started to march to Rietfontein, fighting a rear guard action all the way, and arriving the next day at 4 p.m."

A London Rumor.

London, Dec. 17.—The report of another severe battle, resulting in a British victory, is current here. According to the story the fighting began at daybreak and lasted several hours. The Boers, who numbered from 1,500 to 2,000 men, were surrounded at the Orange river and totally defeated, with heavy losses in killed and wounded. A number of Boers were captured.

Dewet Led In Person.

Maseru, Dec. 17.—It appears that Dewet's force was twice repulsed before it broke through the British lines in the neighborhood of Thaba N'Chu. In the third attack Dewet led in person. With a few determined men he charged, and broke the British lines, the rest of the commando following. He was forced, however, to leave in the hands of the British a fifteen-pounder and fifteen waggons with ammunition and stores.

Commandant Hasbroek, with a commando and two guns, tried to get through Spring-Kantz Nek, but was driven back with a loss of forty men.
