A Plain Statement of why "Shiloh" Cures Consumption.

The mistake generally made in treating lung diseases is in treating the effects of the disease instead of the disease itself. Consumption is in the blood and the lungs are the natural organs for throwing off the poison. It is quite useless to merely stop the coughing or even to heal the lungs while the disease remains in the system because the relief is only temporary. Shiloh's Consumption Cure does allay the coughing and sooth the irritated surfaces of the lungs, but it cures consumption because it gives to the blood the power to destroy and throw off the germs.

"Shiloh" is sold on the express condition that you may have your money back if it fails to produce satisfactory results. You can get "Shiloh" wherever medicine is sold.

BROADBRIM'S LETTER.

"Peace On Earth, Good Will To Men."

A PROSPEROUS COUNTRY.

500,000 EMIGRANTS SETTLE IN UNITED STATES

During the Past Year—The Sad Story of a Young Girl—A Rich Lady to Her Aid—No Examples of Political Virtue.

New York, Dec. 28.—Christmas! Holy Christmas! The grandest and most sacred holiday in the calendar of Time. In every land where the sun rises or sets—where the Cross above the Crescent is the symbol of emancipated humanity, from the thraldom of ignorance and superstition—where darkness flies before light—where the children of men join in the jubilate—the echo of which ringing through the arches of heaven are then caught up by countless millions of angels, around the great white throne, singing "Glory to God in the Highest. Peace on earth good will to men."

"The Gloria in Excelsis Deo" makes the air vocal through thousands of miles of our vast domain where a hundred thousand of our brave soldiers arrayed in the panoply of war, stand ready to die, if God so wills it, to maintain the integrity of the republic.

No sound of war affrights the multitudes that throng our streets and crowd our stores this Christmastide. Everyone is smiling and happy, as if Golconda and Ophir were play-grounds at their feet, and as they think of the little watchers who on the borders of dreamland lay in wait for old Santa Claus the best saint that was ever canonized. What do the children care for St. George who killed the dragon or St. Patrick, who banished all the snakes and toads from Ireland? He never brought them anything at Christmas and neither of these saints ever thought of anything or anybody, except themselves, it was for old folks. They never thought of children, but dear old Santa never thinks of anything else. His house is built right up against the north pole, and there he sits all through the summer and makes those beautiful toys that he brings to all the good children on Christmas eve.

The magnificent display in all the stores has never been surpassed. It would seem as though the genius of the world were devoted exclusively to articles which give delight to children. The old folks are not altogether neglected, and I have yet to find the woman, who, if hard pressed, would refuse a brown stone house, a sealskin sacque or a gold watch.

Everybody seems to have some money to spare, and though the outlay may seem somewhat extravagant, we cannot forbear wishing them a hearty God speed. It looks as if the wealth of the world were poured forth by the Almighty at the feet of a prosperous and happy people.

History furnishes no parallel to the present wonderful condition and prosperity of our beloved land, with three great armies in the field, two of them actively engaged thousands of miles away, while the other secures the safety of our citizens at home, the entire force aggregating a hundred thousand men. So prosperous is our country that there are hundreds of millions in gold piled up in the national treasury, many millions above the required gold reserve, and the exports of the United States for the fiscal year show over one thousand four hundred millions of dollars, a sum never before approached since the foundation of the republic. Well may our people with thankful hearts shake their neighbors' hands when they bless God for their merrie Christmas and a happy new year.

Five hundred thousand emigrants in the year just past have left their native lands to seek a home in this blessed land of ours. The mighty domain which we received as a heritage from the fathers of the revolution is rapidly passing away from us into the possession of the stranger, but the alchemic power of the stars and stripes will soon change a dyed in the wool Dutchman or Irishman to a good American citizen—bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh.

Some years ago as I was passing by the mansion of one of the Astors, whose daughter was entertaining the Spanish ambassador, a card was brought in by a servant. It contained these words—"She is dying." Leaving her guests, this charitable woman hastened to the hospital and to the bedside of a poor waif whom she had befriended.

The face of the dying girl was an artist's brightest dream. Yes, surpassing in loveliness man's noblest conception of an angel—unfortunate, wretched creature. That fatal gift of beauty was the snare that led her to ruin. When her father was told of her condition it was on a bitter winter night, one of the coldest of the season. With kicks, blows and curses the inhuman brute drove her out to perish in the winter storm.

Another brutal father thrust her from his door the wretched girl fell on the ice cold stones, freezing to death. Though slowly perishing herself, she had still enough of the animal instinct left to tear the few rags from her own shoulders and wrap about the little atom of life which was dragging away at the dried up fountains, and from which no nourishment could be again obtained. A few minutes more and the spirit would have departed from the cold clay, frozen before her father's door. The policeman who approached was one in whom some little humanity still remained. Rough as he was, by long association with the outlaws who defy both God and man, tears started in his eyes.

He had a mother whom he had not forgotten, the only one he ever knew from childhood, and from whom he had ever received a kind or loving word. He had a sister, too, beautiful and good, but in an evil hour she fell; she became an outcast on the streets. Her mother heard of it and died of a broken heart. "God have mercy on her," said the policeman. "I wonder if she was like to her," and he thought of his dear sister who was once so true and good. Can it be that she, like this poor wretch to-night, be lying in the streets? The tears fell faster from his eyes as he took off his heavy police coat and wrapped it around the wretched form, which he gently lifted from the snow. Then for the first time he heard the voice of that little, tiny mite of humanity, clasped close in the poor girl's arms. Rapping with his night stick for aid, two stout officers of the law responded and bore her as tenderly as they could to the nearest station, where they endeavored to soothe her as best they could.

Strange, oh, strange, that the tiny waif, picked up from the streets during that wintry storm, should become the adopted child of one of our wealthiest citizens and eventually the bride of a millionaire.

But to return to the heiress and the outcast. The former, having given orders to have the infant well provided for, without considering expense, returned to the evening's entertainment as unruffled as if nothing unusual had occurred.

But with all our prosperity and the blessings our souls should be thanked for, there is no denying that throughout the land there is an ominous feeling of unrest. Whither it will lead us, the Power above alone can tell.

Mercantile prosperity we have, in a larger degree than any other nation on the globe. Things startling and strange meet us whichever way we turn, and both of the great political parties find dissension in the midst of their camps, with feelings more intense and bitter than for many a long year. The revolt against Tammany hall has already roused our citizens to action, and fifty thousand have already been enrolled to resist the oppression of the enemy. In the new organization will be found many wealthy and prominent democrats, who are pledged to oppose any attempt to make democracy another name for despotism.

From now until next election an amount of work will be accomplished which will astonish the old time politicians. We have no examples of political virtue to take as models for our future action. The pronunciamento goes forth and has engraven on its battle flags the warning that the state of New York shall not, from this out, be ruled by any one man.

The great empire state will not endure the despotism under which it has labored so long.

From this day forth we are told by both parties that they have forsaken unrighteousness and henceforth their labor shall be solely for the glory of the republic, and, having gained that, we shall have realized what was the dream of our greatest prophet and sage, "a government of the people, for the people and by the people." That this hope may be realized and that the vision of the dreamer may come to pass is our earnest hope and prayer. Wishing you all a happy new year, I am, as ever, yours truly,

—BROADBRIM.

Where Has The Old Year Gone?

John Imrie, Toronto.

Where has the Old Year gone?
Gone to join the mystic ages,
One more leaf in history's pages,
To be read by fools and sages.
There has the Old Year gone!

Where has the Old Year gone?
Gone the circle of the earth,
Grief to some—to others mirth—
Back to God who gave it birth;
There has the Old Year gone!

Where has the Old Year gone?
Gone with promise false or true,
Gone with loving friends we knew,
Hid forever from our view
There has the Old Year gone!

Where has the Old Year gone?
Gone with all its hopes and fears,
Gone with all its joys and tears,
Dead and buried with the years:
There has the Old Year gone!

Where has the Old Year gone?
Gone till God recalls the past,
Good or ill—the die is cast,
Judged by it we are at last.
There has the Old Year gone!

Where have the Old Years gone?
Gone! and left their scars forever
On our hearts. Erase them?—Never!
Till we cross Death's chilly river.
Ah! there have the Old Years gone!

Catarrh Now Surely Cured.

"Catarrhozone has worked marvels in the case of my little girl." Mrs. Lorenzo Orchard, Toronto, Ont.

"There is no remedy equal to Catarrhozone for Catarrh." William J. Runnit, Morrisburg, Ont.

"Catarrhozone for catarrh of the head, throat and bronchitis has given me perfect satisfaction." Miss Dinsmore, Shubenacadie, N.S.

"It has done more good for me in one week than other remedies have in years." F. P. Taylor, Smith's Falls, Ont. Thousands more like this for the asking. Druggists sell Catarrhozone, or we will send trial treatment for 10c. N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., Hartford, Conn.

"77"

Influenza—Cold In The Head

Is an Inflammation of the lining membrane of the nose. Commences with tingling, itching and dryness of the nostrils, followed by a watery or mucous discharge; frequent sneezing; dull pain and sense of weight in the forehead; increased secretion of tears; occasional chilliness, and Fever.

If not arrested, the Catarrh spreads to the throat and respiratory organs, attended with Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Tickling Cough and Oppressed Breathing.

CHECKED CIRCULATION, the cause of nearly all Colds, produces these symptoms; the use of "77" starts the blood tingling through the veins until it reaches the extremities, when the feet warm up and the Cold is broken. At all druggists, 25c., or by mail.

COLDS

OVER THE TEA CUPS.

The handsome rooms at "Anantlale" were thronged on Christmas eve with merry young guests, who had come to share the Christmas tree provided by Mr. and Mrs. Carruthers for the pleasure of their children and their children's friends. Of course Santa Claus was there and he had evidently been informed of all the hidden guests for no one was forgotten. The children had a delightful time, and none of the pleasures of Christmas day were strong enough to blot out the memory of the Christmas eve party.

* * * *

According to the annual custom of "Somersby House," all the grandchildren, the nieces and the newphews, together with the fathers and mothers of the little people, gathered together at Mrs. Kent's invitation and enjoyed a family Christmas tree on Christmas night. Not the least appreciable part of the happiness was that the kind hostess had been so far restored to health as to admit of this joyous gathering in the accustomed place, and as the gifts were passed around, so also were the wishes exchanged that Mrs. Kent might be given a new measure of strength for the coming year.

* * * *

Through the kind thoughtfulness of their grown-up cousin, Miss Irene Henderson, the little cousins from the Henderson homes on Brock and Princess streets met at the William street homestead on Christmas afternoon for the distribution of gifts from a Christmas tree. The tree was beautifully decorated and reflected credit on those who arranged it. The little people enjoyed themselves immensely and have every hope that Santa Claus will make another visit to their uncle's on a Christmas to come, when they may have a repetition of the good time they had on Tuesday afternoon.

The Christmas tree at "Ingleside" was all that its predecessors have been, and that is saying much since Mr. and Mrs. Hendry assisted by Dr. and Mrs. Connell have long since made their Christmas trees pleasant to the minds of their friends and relatives. The guests, this Christmas night, numbered thirty-eight, the majority being relatives, and the tree held gifts galore for everyone present. Dr. Connell dismantled the branches, and the gifts were passed around by Hendry Connell, Collamer Calvin, Allan Hendry and Brier Tandy.

When the Babylonians organized their club for fortnightly meetings during the winter, it was with the understanding that each entertainment should take whatever form was most agreeable to the hostess. The result has been most satisfactory, and has demonstrated the variety of entertainments from which an evening's pleasure may be derived. So far no two hostesses have chosen the same style of a party. The first was a dance; the second, progressive pedro; the third, a conundrum party. The fourth was given on Thursday night, the hostess being Miss Mabel King. It was called a skating party as the early part of the evening was spent at the rink, but after supper at the house the amusement was a drawing contest. Each guest drew a slip of paper on which was written the name of an animal, and each was supposed to draw a picture of that animal, four prizes being awarded by "competent judges." The winners were Miss Marguerite Carr-Harris, Miss Agnes Browne, Messrs. Eddie Sheffield and Arthur Britton. Miss Gordon and Miss Edith Low received "honorable mention." Miss Agnes Browne will be hostess next week at a "phantom party," when the guests will wear masks and will be draped in sheets and pillow cases.

Cards are out for Bal Poudre at the residence of Justice and Mrs. Gwynne, Ottawa, on New Year's night.

Miss Alice Hague was hostess at a young girls' tea on Thursday afternoon.

Miss Elsie Graham gave a skating party at the rink on Thursday evening and a bright little supper afterwards at her home on Princess street.

Cards are out for Bal Poudre at the Whig Hall on New Year's night under the auspices of the young bachelors of Kingston.

There was a surprise party at Miss Kathleen Daly's on Wednesday night, given by a number of her friends in honor of her return to Kingston. The evening was spent at pedro.

Miss Julia Horsey, King street, will be hostess at a young people's pedro party on New Year's night.

Miss Ethel Drummond is to give a "Scott" party on New Year's eve. Each guest is to represent a character from one of Scott's novels, and some quaint costumes may be expected.

After his lecture in Windsor Hall, Montreal, last Wednesday night, Mr. Winstonston Churchill, M.P., was entertained at supper at the Mount Royal club by Mr. E. S. Clouston, general manager of the Bank of Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Laidlaw, of Toronto, are guests of Mrs. Lesslie, George street.

Miss Madeline Carter, of Montreal, is spending the Christmas holidays with Misses Elsie and Amy Campbell, Union street.

Miss Sinart, of Toronto, is the guest of Mrs. C. K. Clarke, "Rockwood House."

Mrs. W. F. Nickle, Martello Place, entertained at lunch to-day in honor of Mrs. Louis Herbert May, of Brooklyn, N.Y. Amongst the other guests were Mrs. Reeves, Miss Macpherson, Miss Elsie Montzambert, Miss Clements, Miss Brownfield.

Mrs. Leslie gave a progressive euchre party last night in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Laidlaw, of Toronto.

There were seven tables, and the prizes were won by Miss Etta Macpherson, Mr. C. Gay Shannon, Mrs. Cappon and Mr. W. F. Nickle.

* * * *

Miss Emily Smythe was hostess at a girls' "Hearts" party last night at the residence of her aunt, Miss Wilkinson, Clergy street. The early part of the evening was spent playing "Hearts"; the tally cards were hearts, the prizes were hearts, and amongst the pretty table decorations were scarlet hearts. The girls entered into the evening's enjoyment with all their hearts, and taking it all together Miss Emily Smythe is to be heartily congratulated upon the success of her hearts party.

The prizes were won by Miss Katie Craig and Miss Bessie Robertson.

Mrs. Felix Shaw held her post-nuptial reception on Thursday and Friday afternoons, and looked very charming in her wedding gown of white satin, with lace yoke and sleeves, and corsage "choux" of white chiffon. She was assisted in receiving by Miss Taylor and Miss Isabel Henderson, of Perth. Mrs. James Farrell, Miss Rose Kirkpatrick and Miss Swales served refreshments in the tea room. Mrs. Shaw will receive on the first and third Fridays of each month.

Miss Vic. Murphy left on Wednesday to visit her sisters at the convent at Chatham, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. Waldron and their three daughters will leave home on the 8th of January to spend six months in European travel. They will take one of the North German Lloyds steamers for Naples, and will visit Rome, Brussels, Dresden, Paris, and other interesting continental places, afterwards spending several weeks in England, returning to Kingston in July.

Mrs. Mills returned from Montreal last week and is at Hotel Frontenac.

* * * *

Undoubtedly, the most popular lecture of the season will be that of Winston Churchill, M.P., at the city hall on Wednesday night. "The War As I Saw It," is his theme, and, as every one knows that he had some thrilling experiences, his story is anticipated with deep interest. As a war correspondent Winston Spencer Churchill has already become famous. As an author he has also made a name for himself, a colonial edition of his latest book, having been published since he went to South Africa with the first contingent of the English troops. As a politician he has achieved an honorable place, and as the son of Lord Randolph Churchill he should be a fascinating speaker on a public platform. For all these reasons his lecture next Wednesday night will draw a very large audience. While in Kingston, Mr. Winston Churchill will be the guest of Mr. Henry Folger, at "Edgewater." After the lecture, the officers and honorary members of the Mess will entertain Mr. Churchill at supper at Tete de Pont barracks.

* * * *

Miss Edith Young was hostess at a juvenile party last night.

Miss Bermingham gave a little tea for married ladies yesterday afternoon in honor of Mrs. James O'Reilly, of Cornwall.

Mr. Bernard W. Browne returned to Kincardine yesterday. Mrs. Browne and her two little daughters will remain at Mrs. Hubbell's for a longer visit.

Mr. Charles Moss, Toronto, arrived today to spend New Year's at Mr. Britton's.

Miss Norton-Taylor has returned from Halifax, where she was the guest of Mrs. Moran.

Miss Olive Bolger left yesterday to visit Miss Eleanor Deroche, at Napanee.

* * * *

Dr. and Mrs. Macdonald, 28 Duke street, Hamilton, celebrated the golden anniversary of their wedding day last Wednesday. Dr. and Mrs. Macdonald are former residents of Brockville, and Mrs. Macdonald was a Miss Malloch, of Perth. She is an aunt of Miss Helen Malloch, a first year student at Queen's college, also an aunt of D. Stewart Robertson.

Black River Bridge Briefs.

Black River Bridge, Dec. 26.—The annual Christmas tree in the church here on Dec. 21st, was a success. About $17 was realized. The Christmas tree at Milford on Christmas eve was also a success. Master Walter Keogh, aged fifteen years, died on Dec. 12th, of Bright's disease. He was a bright, intelligent young man, and a general favorite. He contracted a severe cold about three months ago, while attending the Picton high school. His mother, Mrs. Michael Keogh, died just one year ago, to a day, of consumption. Deceased was placed in vault at Picton, Rev. Fr. Twohey officiating. His father, sister and brothers have the sympathy of all. Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Grimmon and son Ralph are spending holidays with relatives at Brighton and Smithfield. Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Rose and family spent Christmas at South Bay, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hughes at Point Petre. The following spent Christmas here: Mr. and Mrs. William Noble, Ridge Road, Mr. and Mrs. Gesham, Foster; Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Rose, Picton; Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Foster, Greenbush, and Mrs. Phoebe Danard, Milford. There were seventeen nominated for the position of county councillor, for No. 2 division at Milford on Monday. All withdrawing with the exception of W. Striker, D. McCormick and D. D. McKibbon. These three will seek election on Jan. 7th. The annual school meeting was held at the school house to-day. William York was chosen trustee. Thomas McMahon has a shooting match to-morrow. Thursday A. E. Grimmon closed his evaporator for the season on Saturday, the 22nd, after a very successful season. About 5,000 bushels of apples were purchased and evaporated. The tonnage output will be reported later. Mr. and Mrs. William McKenna spent Christmas with relatives at Point Petre. Rev. A. H. Foster, Point Traverse circuit, delivered a missionary address in the church here on Sunday, the 16th. A subscription was taken up and $20 realized.

Survivals Of The Curfew.

The revival in Buckingham of the ancient custom of ringing the curfew bell is a reminder that this picturesque relic of Norman England still survives in more than thirty towns and cities throughout the country. At some of these the bell is rung at certain stated periods only. Thus, at Portshore, in Worcestershire, the curfew is only heard between Nov. 5th and Candlemas, and at Brackley church from Michaelmas to lady day only; while its original significance is, of course, entirely a thing of the past. "The knell of parting day" is—or was until recently—still tolled from Canterbury cathedral, and from the church of St. Nicholas, Bristol, every evening.
