CIRCULATION.

The DAILY BRITISH WHIG has circulated, and still circulates more copies regularly than any paper published between Toronto and Montreal. The books are open to any enquirer who will guarantee a similar concession on the part of other papers.

The WEEKLY BRITISH WHIG exceeds the circulation of the combined local Weekly papers, being fully 50 per cent. in advance of its long established rival.

The public are again cautioned against the false reports sent by rival Journals to Pettengill's Newspaper Directory. The BRITISH WHIG has the largest circulation either Daily or Weekly and has never yet found it necessary to issue a falsehood about them.

The Napanee Beaver thinks "there is more of positivity than ordinarily attaches to rumour" in the statement that Mr. J. T. Grange will oppose Hon. Mr. Cartwright for the Commons at the next election. The Kingston Tory organ seems to have no doubt of the Finance Minister's success, but sugar coats the pill to Mr. Grange by affirming that the latter "will be found a pretty hard man to beat." Mr. Grange is now member for the County in the Local House, and he has, no doubt, heard of a certain Mr. Roy who sat for Kamouraska in the Quebec Legislature, but resigned last February and got elected for the Commons. Possibly J. T. Grange dreams that this exploit can be repeated in Lennox, but let him take to heart the warning of the friendly Kingston organ, which has, no doubt, sadively recollection of Mr. Cartwright's last clean sweep in that County. Let Mr. Grange content himself with the bird already in his hand. To borrow a good word employed above, there is much "positivity" in the safe prediction that Hon Mr. Cartwright will beat out of sight any Tory candidate who may have the temerity to enter the lists against him in the County of Lennox at the next election.

GRATITUDE.

The local Tory organ announces that "American honours" were accorded to Sir John Macdonald at a recent Eastern demonstration. The honour in question consisted of a friendly trespass across the line by some Vermont firemen. Accustomed on gala days to man the ropes of the hose reels, they on this occasion considerately relieved the horses that were intended to pull the Chieftain and his chums through the town, and very handsomely did that little chore themselves. We cannot but look upon this incident as much more than a mere incident. It was a circumstance of great international significance. It may fairly be regarded as an expression of American gratitude to the Canadian "High Joint" who, these practical people remember, in the most happy-go lucky style imaginable, surrendered the rights of Canada to the American graspers on the Alabama Commission. It was the least they could do, and we are glad to see that the Yankees harnessed in like men—or rather like horses or mules—and trundled along the man who had tamely yielded the important interests he had been appointed to guard. This expression of American appreciation of him was very appropriate, but what must these improvised Yankee carriage horses have thought of the good nature of Canadians who had been so repeatedly sold by their political Barnum? Some men would far rather be humbugged than treated fairly, and Canadian Tories would seem to belong to this number.

JUNIUS.

A Tory sheet lately headed a review of the Macpherson pamphlet with a quotation from Junius. Those who had not seen the modest Senator's little speech book might well have wondered how on earth an extract from Junius could have been stumbled over in that quarter. Those who had, however, well knew that the hon. compiler of his own brilliant parliamentary efforts had embellished the cover of his pamphlet with it, and were not surprised to see it re-appear at the head of the well padded review of the work in question. The writings of Junius are not, as a general thing, much sought after by Tory writers. The fact is, they are not, as a rule, very congenial to Tory tastes, nor very appropos to Tory purposes. They were not particularly palatable to the olden Tories, to whom their withering satire was originally applied, and they are about as applicable to the spirit and practice of Toryism now as they were then. No doubt Senator Macpherson fancies his selection, though from such an unlikely source, hits off the Reform Government of the day. Here it is. "The situation of the country is alarming enough to rouse the attention of every man who pretends to a concern for his country's welfare." We think so too. We quite agree with our contemporaries that the quotation is an apt one at the present juncture. It is very timely in a commercial sense, for in this respect the situation is a serious one, though the outlook is not nearly so gloomy as it was. But we will not deny its political significance either. Appropriately enough have these Tories pressed Junius into their service to describe their own arrant hypocrisy as those who "pretend to a concern for their country's welfare." Never was there a pretence more impudent and glaring. For men who but four short years ago were admitted to have surrendered to foreigners the inalienable rights of the country, who were convicted of conspiring against and indelibly smirching the honour of the country, who prostituted the public trusts committed to their keeping for political support, and who irredeemably committed the country to financial obligations impossible of fulfilment; for such men, while still not only unrepentant but defiant about the black crimes that disgracefully stain their own official record, to prate about a concern for their country's welfare is pretence indeed. Well may they claim to be the men who "pretend to a concern for the country's welfare." The remotest danger of the return of such proven traitors to the country's best interests to power again is truly "alarming enough to rouse the attention" of every true lover of the country.

EQUAL RIGHTS.

Many and serious are the apprehensions entertained as to the contingencies of the Orange celebration in Montreal on Thursday next. The wisdom or expediency of the proposed demonstration is not now under discussion. When the Orangemen announce their fixed determination to commemorate the coming anniversary in the way proposed, the only question which claims consideration is, Have they a right to do so? The affirmative reply to this query cannot be disputed. These men have the very same right to engage in this particular form of display or diversion as members of the same or any other society have to walk together the streets of Kingston or Toronto. The law in the matter is, of course, uniform throughout the Dominion and should be vindicated on behalf of every citizen, no matter of what sect or society, no matter in what garb he may choose to appear upon the street, and totally without reference to the numerical preponderance of one sect over another in any given locality. Equal rights are very properly demanded for Irish Catholic citizens throughout Ontario, in every one of whose eighty-eight constituencies Mayor Waller, of Ottawa, says they are in a minority. Among other rights, that of public procession, must be accorded to all who consider this to be worth the name. This is just as true of Quebec as of Ontario, and the right of Protestants to parade in Montreal, and of their Roman Catholic fellow citizens in Ontario, is a species of sectional reciprocity that should work fairly and freely both ways—not, indeed, as a matter of mutual sufferance, but as a guaranteed and undoubted right. The letter of Mayor Beaudry in reply to the Orange application for protection, was, no doubt, dictated by the best intentions. His commendable object was to avert a collision and prevent possible bloodshed. After all, however, his prudent enough request that the Orangemen should forego their right to walk in procession, practically concedes that right on the one hand, while, on the other, his apprehension of trouble is a practical admission of the existence of a lawless element which he fears civic authority may be unable to repress. This last is the weak point of his letter. In all such cases the majesty of the law should be asserted at all hazards and under all circumstances. The white feather of fear should never be shown by the authorities. The denial of any right is always a sufficient incentive to the stronger assertion of it. Were the right to celebrate the 12th of July in their own way, freely conceded to the Orangemen of Montreal by their Roman Catholic fellow citizens, it is not likely there would be such a fixed and strong determination to exercise it. The avowed opposition to the proposed street parade of Thurs- has had, therefore, the inevitable effect of inspiring Orangemen with a stronger resolution to carry out their purpose—if for no other reason than to vindicate their unquestionable right to do so. If the Orangemen should, at the very last moment, reconsider their intention, they would be entitled to the public appreciation of the sacrifice such a step would imply in the interests of the public peace, although a few may say that in such a self-denying course they had been actuated by fear. If, however, they should hold to their original intention to celebrate their anniversary by a procession, British law, which guarantees protection to every law abiding citizen, would be tarnished and dishonoured if it should fail to extend that protection to them. At all hazards equal rights must be secured to every citizen of free Canada. Protection for the innocent and punishment of the guilty are the characteristics of British law everywhere. It makes but this one division among British subjects, and is blind to every other distinction, and deaf to every other plea.

THE TORY SHEPHERD.

We quote from the local Tory organ of last evening's issue:—

The following is from the London Advertiser:

"Tories are always satisfied with their leaders, but dissatisfied with everybody else. If Sir John does anything it is all right; if Mr. Mackenzie does the same it is all wrong."

It may be truly said in reply that Grits are always satisfied with their leaders. If Mr. Mackenzie does what he formerly blamed Sir John for doing it is all right. Being a "Reformer" Mr. Mackenzie can do no wrong.

Of course there is nothing servile like this about the great Liberal Conservative party. In refreshing contrast with such slavish behaviour, indeed, there is always to be found a most outspoken independence in Tory organs about their party leaders. Particularly is this noble trait a characteristic of the Kingston Daily News. When the Pacific Railway iniquity came to light its moral sensibilities were so shocked by the dreadful revelations that it proceeded to denounce it as "the grandest job ever perpetrated in the British Empire." Justly judging that the perpetrator of so great a crime had sinned beyond redemption, this noble organ at once renounced the chief and all his works, actually declaring in its issue of August 28th, 1873, "The Liberal Conservatives of Ontario are now like SHEEP WITHOUT A SHEPHERD." And yet no sheep ever followed a shepherd with greater docility than do the Tories of Ontario this same Pacific Railway leader now. And no organ more lustily and slavishly trumpets forth his praises than does this same Daily News. The chieftain has never dreamt of repenting of the crime for which his organ all too honestly and hastily condemned him; but the organ has long since repented in dust and ashes of its momentrry candour, and now daily belauds the very chieftain it assisted in deposing as Canada's "foremost statesman," and the man pre-eminently fit to be entrusted with the government of the country.

THE MONTREAL ORANGEMEN

The Volunteers Not to be Called Out on the 12th.

Chances of the Procession Being Abandoned.

Montreal, July 9.—The announcement that the volunteers were to be called out on the 12th of July was premature, as the names of three magistrates had not been obtained by a requisition to call on the volunteers. Several had been requested to sign one.

A meeting will be held to-morrow evening by the Orange Society for the purpose of taking final action in reference to the celebration of the anniversary of the battle of the Boyne. Since the resolution was passed on Tuesday evening last to have a procession, complications, having arisen in regard to getting a church for divine service, it is the opinion and wish now of many of those who voted for the procession to abondon it this year, and it is very probable that the resolution will be rescinded at the meeting to-morrow evening.

The Secretary of the Orange Association writes to the Mayor in answer to his refusal to grant protection to the procession:

"SIR,—You have aided greatly in encouraging these rowdies. We say rowdies, because all respectable Roman Catholics should be willing to give to others all the liberty they desire for themselves. Owing to the virtual abdication of your functions as Chief Magistrate of this city, we now turn from you to invoke military protection through the magistrates, failing which we will trust to ourselves, and prepare to defend our rights from all comers. Threatened, as we have been, the recent law allows us to do this, of course you have read it, and upon your and their heads must rest the consequences; we always remembering our motto, 'Defence—not Defiance.'"

The officers in command of the Prince of Wales', the Victorias, the 5th Fusiliers and the 6th Fusiliers have each received instructions to furnish a guard for the protection of the armouries at the drill shed and the Quebec Gate Barracks.

Montreal, July 10, 2 a.m.—It is rumored at midnight to-night that three Orange Young Britons were shot a Point St. Charles. Too late to get particulars.

Ottawa, July 10.—A large number of Orangemen will leave Ottawa to-morrow for Montreal to witness the demonstration.

Montreal, July 10.—The Orangemen meet this evening to decide on the doings on the 12th. The Catholic and other societies meet this afternoon to try to prevent disturbance. It is thought the Orangemen will walk.

The Sun, Mooney's paper, comes out to-day with an article on the 12th of July question, and after Sept. 3rd it will be regularly issued.

M. Kottshofski.

M. Kottshofski, the swindler of printers, did visit Watertown last week, though the fact was unknown to the Despatch editor when the paragraph in yesterday's paper about him was written. He telegraphed to the manager to meet him at the depot on arrival of the morning train for New York; and made a contract for advertising to the amount of $20, offering a draft on L. Kottshofski for $30 and requiring the difference. He was told to endorse on face of draft, "$10 paid on this, which he did. His bill was then receipted "by draft on L Kottshofski," and he went on his way. The draft was forwarded, marked "no protest," and we don't believe the Despatch was very badly swindled.—Despatch.

The Syracuse Standard of yesterday says that after a few hours quiet in the Troy lock-up, "Mr. Kottshofski" came to the conclusion that he had committed some offence, and so informed Superintendent McKenna, who telegraphed that "K." would settle with four parties here. That was no go, however, and detective Harvey went to Troy for him, returning with Mr. K. to Syracuse Sunday morning between one and two o'clock, when he was escorted to quarters in the cooler, where he now repines. If he gets out of this scrape he swears he will never undertake to swindle newspaper men again.

THE CRICKET MATCH.—Syracuse 79 and 44; Kingston 74 in first innings, leaving it 49 to beat. This they made in the second innings, with nine wickets to spare.

THE WAR NEWS.

THE ROUMANIANS ACTIVE

Turkish Successes in Asia Minor.

Difficulties on the Black Sea.

A Naval Collision on the Baltic

There is little news this morning from the seat of war in Europe, and even that little is vague and uncertain. The Cossacks have appeared in the neighbourhood of Rustchuk, and the Roumanians are preparing for an active demonstration in the direction of Widin. A second army corps is about to be formed, under the command of the Grand Duke Vladimir, and will operate in the direction of Sofia. No operations whatever are reported on the line of the Danube between Tchernavoda and Rustchuk.

In Asia Minor the Turks have achieved a series of unexpected successes, the cause for which must be sought in the fact that the Russians in the first instance committed the grave error of undervaluing the enemy's force, and that in the second place they were unable to remedy this mistake by bringing up reinforcements owing to the difficulties interposed by the blockade of the Black Sea, and the rising in the Caucasus. On Friday the Russian force in the neighbourhood of Bayazid was driven over the frontier, and the citadel of the town summoned to surrender. Further north, at Ardanutsch, a Russian attacking party was repulsed, and thrown back on Ardahan, where a great concentration of Russian troops is going on. On Wednesday last the line between Mukathar Pasha's headquarters and Kars was completely open, and the Russians were withdrawing the bulk of their army, including their heavy artillery, in the direction of Alexandropol Mustapha Pasha, the new governor of Kars, was on the way to that city with a reinforcement of four thousand men, and batteries had been despatched from Delibaba to reinforce Mukhtar.

On the Black Sea two Turkish frigates have bombarded the Russian seaport of Chefketil.

Russian Retreat From Erzeroum.

Military Movements in Asia Minor.

Constantinople, July 10.—Anarchy prevails beyond the lines of the contending armies. The Bulgarian and Circassian Tartars are murdering each other indiscriminately.

Ex-Col. Valentine Baker will accompany Radef Pasha to Adrianople.

London, July 10.—It is stated that 25 Servian Deputies have resigned, leaving the Skuptschina without a quorum. Elections will be held immediately. The resignations are consequent upon dissatisfaction with the address of the House of Prince Milan.

Vice-Admiral Hornby, commanding the British fleet in Besika Bay, has arrived at Constantinople, and is to have an audience with the Sultan.

A correspondent with the Turkish headquarters in Asia estimates Mukhtar Pasha's force at 28,000 men.

A Vienna despatch says General Skobeleff, jr., the hero of Khokand, is likely to lose an arm and foot.

The Telegraph's financial article says Hungarian treasury bonds fell yesterday. It is understood from advices received that military preparations throughout Austria are being made on a larger scale than has hitherto been made public.

Shumla, July 9.—The Russians have advanced as far as Monster, in the direction of and about 25 miles south-west of Rustchuk. A battle is believed to be imminent. The Russian detachments, marching upon Selvi and Plever, which are unfortified, have burned four villages between these points.

The bombardment of Rustchuk from Slabsea ceased four days ago.

It is believed the Russians will endeavor to take seige guns across the Danube, at Sistowa, for the siege of Rustchuk.

Turkish accounts charge the Russians with cuthless devastation in Bulgaria, and murders and outrages against Mussulmen.

The Russians make similar charges against the Turks with reference to the Bulgarian Christians.
