OCLC FirstSearch Electronic Collections Online now offers the purchase of individual articles. This new purchasing option allows your users to access full-text and full-graphic electronic journal articles—even to those journals your library may not subscribe to. Your library pays only for articles viewed.

Your per-article purchases are easily managed. OCLC FirstSearch Usage Statistics reports the number of articles purchased monthly as well as frequency of access to individual journal titles. These new features tailor your subscription to fit your users' needs.

Visit Booth 418 to learn more about the new per-article purchasing option and other OCLC Canada services.

READ ALL ABOUT IT!

Published for over 100 years, The Toronto Star is not only Canada's largest paper, but one of the oldest in circulation in Canada. Now available online, fully digitized, and searchable by date, keyword or subject. The Toronto Star - Pages of the Past is an archive that includes over a century of regional, national and international events. From the introduction of Toronto's subway system and the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway to the stock market crash of 1929 and man's first step on the moon, it's all there.

The Toronto Star - Pages of the Past offers a unique perspective of history in Canada and the world around it. This extensive online archive includes over 30,000 complete issues dating back to January 1, 1894 – over 1.9 million pages – including advertisements, images, front-page news, birth and death notices, and much more!

Take the opportunity to explore this exciting new product available exclusively through Micromedia's web portal – Canada's Information Resource Centre. Read all about events in local, national and international history as they unfold page-by-page before your eyes.

Welcome...

The future holds great excitement for the library community. This remarkable Super Conference program reflects a myriad of promises and possibilities that are well within our abilities to make happen.

The tumultuous events of the past year have helped us to further understand how libraries and the public good are fundamental aspects of society and civilization. The values of libraries, such as literacy, equity of access and intellectual freedom, guide our work, nurture our communities and shape our world in a positive, hopeful way.

This year's conference brings you the best and the brightest, the visionary and the experienced in a thoughtful, stimulating and fun program filled with significant observation and experience. Through these shared experiences, we can be knowledgable and passionate about what is important to all the people who need our services, our programs, and our collections.

Welcome to the Ontario Health Libraries Association and the Special Libraries Association (Toronto Chapter). The program is richer for your participation and for the fresh perspectives you bring. We are pleased to have you participate in our discussions and networking.

Through self-knowledge and the relentless pursuit of new skills and rediscovered values, we are able to shape our future.

By being here this week, you have chosen to be part of the vision. Welcome to this important stepping stone along the way.

For the 2001 OLA Board of Directors,

Michael Ridley, OLA President Chief Librarian, University of Guelph

This week, talk to the people who make OLA and Super Conference move and shake!

capacity. Delegates unable to get into a session should choose from the twenty other sessions available in most time slots.

LOST AND FOUND

If you should leave anything in a meeting room or in any of the public spaces, your lost article will probably end up with Convention Centre Security. Items handed into the Registration Desk will be noted daily in Super News and kept in the OLA on-site office (Room 205A) until conference end.

MEAL TICKETS

As part of contractual arrangements with catering services, it is necessary to provide a final number 72 hours in advance, Conference planners attempt to estimate the demand for tickets during the conference but cannot make extra tickets available after they run out.

Order your extra tickets for the breakfasts, etc. at the Registration Desk as soon as you can to avoid disappointment.

Unless your complimentary drink tickets have been specially marked for guests, you are requred to be wearing your delegate badge when you redeem them at the events indicated. Cash sales are also available at most social events.

BADGES AND RECEIPTS

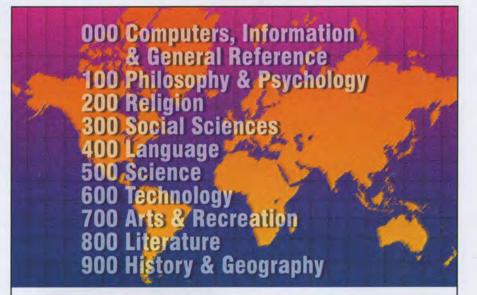

Do not throw your badge away. It is your official receipt. Your badge is also your entrance ticket to all sessions, the exhibit and the receptions. To redeem your drink tickets at the EDU Reference Reception at EXPO 2002 on Thursday and the @ your library party at the Roundhouse on Friday, bartenders need to match your ticket to your badge. Don't forget to wear it!

CHANGES IN THE PROGRAM

Super News is the daily newsletter – your source for up-to-the-minute information on session and room changes, on new programs and upcoming events. It is distributed at all morning sessions and is available at the Special Events Desk and Registration Desks throughout the remainder of each day.

MEETING ROOM LIMITATIONS

The sizes of workshop session rooms have been chosen based on attendance indicators provided by delegates in pre-registration. Since delegates are not obligated to attend the sessions they indicate and since many do not fill out this section of the registration form, some rooms may unexpectedly prove inadequate to the demand. Convenors are obliged to close sessions that exceed Unlike other on-line information sources for public libraries and schools, Virtual News Library was designed with the help of librarians from coast to coast. Maybe that's why it's loaded with great English and French Canadian content, offers 16 years of archives and includes features like fulltext search, a bilingual interface and a wide range of search keys. Maybe that's why it also comes with a very user-friendly price.

ROCH CARRIER NATIONAL LIBRARIAN OF CANADA

As one of Canada's most prominent authors and as Director from 1994 to 1997 of the Canada Council for the Arts, Roch Carrier has earned a natural position in the Canadian cultural community. He was active in the Théâtre du Nouveau Monde, the Canadian Film Development Corporation, and Québec 10/10, at one point, even being advisor to the Quebec Minister of Cultural Affairs. As a teacher in and rector of a private college in Quebec, he has a natural empathy with the problems of formal education. He is a Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada, an Officer of the Order of Canada, and a recipient of the Stephen Leacock Medal. Roch Carrier became Canada's fourth National Librarian in 1999 in which role he has travelled from coast to coast in praise of libraries. In the middle of all this, he is still writing; Our Life with the Rocket was published this past fall.

DRAWING HELPS THINKING, HELPS WRITING Steve Moline

Consultant, illustrator, who writes for children under the name of David Drew, author of I See What You Mean.

We often ask children to research a topic by making notes without giving them enough guidance in how to plan their writing. Why? Children complain that they don't know where to start or what to write next - they need a map. Learn ways to help children improve the organization of their writing using a variety of visualizing tools to improve both reading comprehension and written expression. This practical workshop allows participants to try out some units of work and take them back to their classrooms and libraries.

TEACHING DIFFERENCE: PREPARING STUDENTS FOR A DIVERSE CURRICULUM

Mark Robertson, Reference Librarian, Scott Library, Kalina Grewal, Reference Librarian, Scott Library, Jody Nyasha Warner, Reference Librarian, York University.

In the last decade, faculties at most Canadian universities have made significant efforts to develop a more inclusive university curriculum. The perspectives and histories of marginalized groups, such as ethnic minorities, gays and lesbians, aboriginal peoples, women, and the poor are finally being addressed. Student response to this curriculum shift has been positive, classes are full and waiting lists are long. This new curriculum, with its emphasis on the "voice" of the marginalized, poses a significant challenge for librarians: How can librarians teach students to find material for/by marginalized groups when the economics and politics of the publishing industry and the biases inherent in bibliographic tools ensure that the mainstream voice is the one most easily heard? WORKING THE WEB

Elaine Toms, Professor, Lynne Howarth, Dean, Faculty of Information Studies, University of Toronto.

Two new research internetbased projects at the University of Toronto highlight this session. The web has made searching for information a common-place activity. Yet this complex process remains unsupported mainly due to inadequate search interface design. Prof. Elaine Toms describes her project for improving the way that users interact with search engines. With such a wealth of digital materials accessible via the Web, how can we ensure that searchers find the most relevant and high quality information, especially when it resides in different domains and/or databases? Prof. Lynne Howarth and her team discuss their project for designing a metadata-enabled search system for multidisciplinary resource discovery.

The incomparable

BUFFY SAINTE-MARIE

Buffy Sainte-Marie is a national treasure for more good reasons than one can count. She has a degree in Oriental Philosophy, a teacher's degree and a PhD in Fine Arts. Her songs including the oftrecorded "Until It's Time for You to Go" and "Universal Soldier" brought her the fame and the money to found the Nihewan Foundation which works for and encourages youth of the First Nations community in their educational endeavours. Then there is the Buffy Sainte-Marie, who with her son Dakota Wolfchild Starblanket. helped children (and many adults) become more native conscious during a five-year stint on Sesame Street in the 70s." Her song "Up Where We Belong," won an Academy Award in 1982. Adjunct Professor at York University, the Indian Federated College, and at Evergreen State College, she also teaches Digital Art as Artist in Residence at the Institute for American Indian Arts in Santa Fe. Buffy now devotes a major part of her time to The Cradleboard Teaching Project (featured in this year's Expo 2002). Last year, she was named an Officer of the Order of Canada.

2007 Friday, February

The Silver Birch and Red Maple Award reading programs are among the OLA's most appealing and popular programs. Over 80,000 children are estimated to have taken part in 2001. Here are the authors of the books that the children chose as the best.

Linda Bailey won the Silver Birch Non-Fiction Award for Adventures in the Middle Ages Bill Richardson, the host of the CBC radio program. Richardson's Roundup, was the winner of the 2001 Silver Birch Fiction Award for After Hawelin. Eric Walters, a teacher in the Peel UIST Ct School Board, has been a nominee and winner of both the Silver Birch Award and now the Led Maple award. He won for his book, Rebound.

CRADLEBOARD TEACHING PROJECT Buffy Sainte-Marie

Science: Through Native American Eyes

Buffy Sainte-Marie (Ph.D.) will present the Cradleboard Teaching Project's first CD-ROM, "Science: Through Native American Eyes." The CD-ROM has garnered rave reviews by educators across North America. While designed and developed for core curriculum science in middle school classes, the CD-ROM is currently being used in a variety of classes right through to college level, as well as in libraries, resource centres, and in homes as "Edutainment." Ms. Sainte-Marie will also briefly touch on her Nihewan Foundation's other programs, which include Scholarships, Teacher Training, the Cradleboard Teaching Project, and the Youth Council on Race. QUESTIONS FOR INCLUSION

Jeannie Sroka, Teacher-librarian, Middlebury Public School, Peel District School Board.

Is it possible to change student performance by changing one's teaching strategy? It sure is. This workshop will give participants an opportunity to use Earl Stevick's question grid to create a more inclusive classroom. The different question types allow participation by students who often don't participate: the ESL student, the shy student, the student who struggles with concepts. While it does take practice, the results are almost immediate.

HOW CAN LIBRARIANS HELP KNOW-IT-ALL WEB SEARCHERS?

Rita Vine, President, Workingfaster.com, Toronto

We learn about the web the way we learn about so many other things in our life – from our friends, our kids, our colleagues, magazines, and ads. The web has become so mythologized that most searchers assume that they are just a simple keyword search query away from everything. How can libraries reach out to people who already think they know everything there is to know about web searching? The answer is more complex than you might think. Rita Vine of Workingfaster.com will explore some top ways to make hard-core search snobs come around.

"Commonspace: Beyond Virtual Community"

Mark Surman, founder of The Commons Group; Darren Wershler-Henry, writer, critic and editor of Coach House Books.

Commonspace is the collective mind of the internet, a synergy built from the space between the bits and fuelled entirely by people power. As the Internet grows, commonspace is changing the way we live, think, play and do business. Surman and Wershler-Henry provide a detailed cognitive map of the emerging virtual landscape, and a set of tools that will help the library world draw on the power of collective action. GALA LUNCHEON with DANIEL RICHLER

Daniel Richler is the artistic developer of Book Television, the new digital channel about artistic expression in literature. As the Gemini Award-winning host of CBC NewsWorld's Big Life, Richler earned a dazzling reputation for his subjective reports from the underground of culturally and politically divergent lifestyles. Richler served as Creative Head of Arts Programming at TVOntario, where he conceived, hosted and executive-produced the enduring literary series, Imprint, now in its tenth season. And, he created the award winning sci-fi arts series Prisoners of Gravity. He began his broadcast career in radio in 1979, and burst on to the television scene in 1983 as host, then producer, of CityTV's The New Music. In 1987, he became Chief Arts Correspondent for CBC TV's The Journal. Richler's best-selling novel Kicking Tomorrow was named one of the books of the year by the New York Times in 1991. He hosts Reach for the Top on TVO and sees it as a splendid expression of the excellence of which are schools are capable.

Since 1969, Librarians around the world have put their trust in Coutts Library Services Limited

About BiblioMondo

In October 2000 Best Seller acquired ALSi, a UK based library automation company, and created BiblioMondo – the World's eLibrary Network.

Today BiblioMondo maintains offices in Canada, the United States, France, Germany, the Netherlands and the United Kingdom and serves 1400 customers in 9 countries.

BiblioMondo's team consists of 140 qualified librarians, software developers, sales and customer support representatives, and administrative personnel.

Biblio Mondo The World's eLibrary Network

BiblioMondo Vision

BiblioMondo's vision is to provide the world's libraries with user-friendly Web-centric software solutions to manage their day-to-day operations as well as allow their patrons access to digital content from anywhere in the world at any time.

BiblioMondo was the first to offer a web-based multilingual OPAC and is maintaining the lead by providing its customers with user interface tools and digital media management software.

BiblioMondo differentiators

- 100% Canadian company
- ◆ Total Web-centric solution
- MARC21/Z39.50/Unicode standards
- Public workstation management
- UNIX and NT platforms
- Completely configurable database
- Simultaneous searching of digital media databases
- Blocking of unauthorized Internet sites and links
