The Prince's Ball.

The Ball which will be given to Prince Arthur on Wednesday must not be looked upon as an ordinary Ball, or Dancing Party, but regarded more in the light of an Assembly, or Reception Party, at which Dancing may take place, but which is not imperatively necessary. As it hundreds of ladies and gentlemen may be present, who may care nothing about Public Dancing, or who are passed the age for it. At a Public Dinner in Kingston, at least to one worth sitting down to, not more than a hundred persons could partake, of whom thirty would be guests, with no single lady among them; while in the spacious Ontario Hall, in which the Prince's Ball is to be given, eight hundred people can be gratified with a sight of their Queen's son. A Ball, therefore, is by far the more popular form of entertainment, to one whom the good and loyal inhabitants of Kingston delight to honor.

Many persons have conscientious scruples about attending a Ball, that is, a Ball where they go to dance; but these scruples should not prevail at a mere Reception Party, where not one in ten think of dancing. They go for the specific purpose of paying their respects to one of the Royal Family, a family ever dear to Canadians of all degrees, and they go irrespective of the conventionalities that might influence them at another time. These persons in moving generally would object to be seen at an ordinary pleasure Ball, while there can be no impropriety in attending an Assembly for the purpose above mentioned. Therefore if our logic be good, there should be next Wednesday evening a general muster of all masters, for the Committee have placed the tickets within the reach of all, and to no respectable person will they be refused.

Belleville Assizes.

RATHER A SELL ON DEFENDANT'S COUNSEL.

At the Assizes in Belleville last week the case of Attan vs. McCormick was entered for trial. It seems that the plaintiff commenced this action, which was one of ejectment, in April, 1868, by issuing a writ and serving defendant, who duly appeared and filed his notice of defence. The defendant thinking the plaintiff too slow in ejecting him, gave him notice of trial by proviso, and entered the record. When the case was called on, the defendant's Counsel insisted on proceeding with it, notwithstanding the request of the plaintiff's Counsel to have the case put off until the morning for evidence. The plaintiff then called the Rev. Mr. Greir. His evidence, as it turned out, was sufficient to allow a verdict to be entered for the plaintiff, which was done accordingly. It is generally better to "let sleeping dogs alone." Mr. P. O'Reilly, Jr., Attorney for plaintiff; Mr. Geo. R. Henderson, Counsel; Mr. A. R. Dougall, Counsel for defendant.

THE RECEPTION.—The rain yesterday put a damper on some of the preparations for the reception and entertainment of Prince Arthur and the Governor General. To-day outdoor bustle will no doubt be quite brisk. Yesterday, though, the Ball Committee worked most energetically in the preparations for the Ball. The Mechanics' Institute Reading Room is being converted into a supper and refreshment room, a use for which it is admirably adapted.

REPORT OF THE HARVEST IN CANADA for 1869. Prepared by the Grand Trunk R. R. Company.

This useful compilation is now on its way to Europe. The reader can judge of its general accuracy by the extracts we make:—

NAPANEE.—Spring wheat good quality; will average about 18 bushels to the acre; there will be about 150,000 bushels surplus. Fall wheat very little sown, but what has been raised is very good; it will average about 20 bushels to the acre. Barley a large crop; will average about 30 bushels to the acre; will leave a surplus of about 450,000 bushels good weight, but a little stained by rain. Peas a good crop; average about 20 bushels to the acre,—about 30,000 bushels in this neighborhood. Rye a good crop; average about 15 bushels to the acre; about 150,000 surplus. Oats a good crop; about 60,000 bushels surplus. Hay a splendid crop; very heavy; about 2 tons to the acres. Root crops middling. Flax hardly any raised in this section.

KINGSTON.—Little fall wheat sown. The yield of spring wheat nearly one-half more than last year; the berry sound. Barley—a greater breath sown than last year; heavy crop, berry full and in good order. Oats an excellent crop. Root crops extra, potatoes especially turning out well, half more than last year. Taking all in all, a finer crop has not been secured for many years. Some complaints are heard as to rot in the potatoes.

GANANOQUE.—Fall wheat is not much here; the average yield is 20 bushels to the acre. Spring wheat excellent; yield 25 bushels. Oats were never better; average 35 bushels. Pease about 30 bushels. Rye a good crop; 25 bushels. Corn is very poor, on account of the cold season. Potatoes give promise of a good crop, but there is some indications of the rot. Beets, turnips &c., not much sown. Flax not cultivated at all. Hay crop very large.

LANSDOWNE.—Fall wheat 25, spring wheat 26, barley 30, oats 50, rye 20, and pease 20 bushels to the acre. Corn is rather poor crop, owing to the cold season, and will be below the average. Hay has been an unusually large crop, nearly half, over an average. Roots all good; potatoes especially. No flax grown in this vicinity.

Prince Arthur's Movements.

Prince Arthur arrived at Port Ryerse on board the steamer Washoe on Friday morning. There was another demonstration when the party reached Simcoe. At Waterford, on the road to Brantford, a bevy of young ladies presented the Prince with numerous bouquets. At the Mohawk village some novel proceedings took place. The Prince was led to the old Mohawk church on the Indian reserve with the intention of making him a Mohawk chief. He was received by Sinco Kerr, one of the chiefs of the Six Nations, and a descendant of Brant. The chiefs and warriors welcomed him with a deafening cheer, and his Royal Highness shook hands warmly with the Indians and their wives, who presented the Prince with Indian trinkets. A photograph was taken of the Governor General, the Prince and a number of warriors in full fighting costume, views of the tomb of Brant, of the church, and of Indian groups, were also taken by the Prince's command. The ceremony of induction was performed in the church, an old Indian delivering the speech in native tongue, which was interpreted by Chief Johnston. The name conferred on the Prince as the chief of a nation was Flying Sun—in the Indian language, "Kavakoudge." A war dance in front of the Institute followed, and the Prince was led forward and back twice, during which the assent of the braves was asked for his acceptance. The Prince was then invested with a handsome woolen scarfe. By his decoration the Prince became one of the grand council.

At Brantford an address was presented by the Mayor to the Governor General, and one to the Prince, to which replies were given. A large number of children showered bouquets upon the Prince.

Later in the afternoon (after five o'clock) Hamilton was reached, when the Prince met with a grand reception. The Mayor read addresses to the Governor General and to the Prince. The Board of Trade presented an address to Sir John Young. His Excellency and Lady Young were the guests of the Hon. Isaac Buchanan. The Ball in the evening at the Crystal Palace was a grand affair. The Prince danced with a number of ladies, and the scene was splendid—on Saturday before his departure for Toronto, a drive was made to the public institutions, and a luncheon was given to the Prince. On Sunday afternoon the reception in Toronto took place and was an extraordinary ovation. The Telegraph and Globe have from fourteen to sixteen columns each of description. The former says that the people were determined that they should make a loyal demonstration of attachment to the Prince, such as had never been seen before on this continent. The public resolution was thoroughly fulfilled. The reception given to the Prince of Wales in 1860, was, in no way, to be compared with that given to Prince Arthur on Saturday. The city never looked so beautiful. The citizens never seemed in such thorough and perfect accord. The arrangements were in entirely in harmony with the prevailing loyal sentiment; and if the Prince was as well pleased with the people and their kindly and dutiful demonstrations in his honor, as they were pleased with his manly and likeable bearing, he must have felt proud enough.

Lord Ainsley, a young Scotch nobleman, now on a visit to the United States, is about to marry Miss Martin, a New York heiress, and will afterwards come on a bridal tour to Canada. Miss Martin's trousseau was imported from Paris, and among other things comprises "an entire overdress of white lace" which cost $1,800. Quebec Mercury.

 We should like the Mercury to tell us in what Peerage he can find out 'Lord Ainsley.' We have searched Burke's of 1864 without effect. There is no Baron, Viscount, Earl, Marquis, or Duke, Ainsley or Anysley, and there is no noble family of that name whose younger sons could bear that title. It is possible that it may be a recently created Peerage.

The Reception.

THE MILITARY ARRANGEMENTS.

The arrangements for the disposal of the military attending the reception of Prince Arthur and the Governor General are fully comprised in the following District and Brigade Orders, now published for the guidance of all concerned:—

3rd Military District,

MONTREAL.

La Crosse Match—Murder Case.

Montreal, Oct 2.

An immense crowd of spectators, estimated at 8,000 or 10,000 were present at the championship La Crosse match to-day, between the Montreal and Shamrock clubs. The players were pretty evenly matched, and it was very doubtful which side would win. The Montrealers took the first two games, the first in 16 and the other in 18 minutes. The Shamrock took the next two, and the Montrealers, amidst great excitement, won the next, thus deciding the match in their favor.

In the Belanger murder case in the Queen's Bench to-day, Judge Drummond charged the Jury that there was no room for a verdict of murder, manslaughter being the only verdict they could return. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty on all the charges, and the Judge said he considered it an excellent one. Labotte was a paramour of Belanger's wife.

A young firemen named Robert Dixon, belonging to No. 2 Station, has been arrested on suspicion of attempted incendiarism last night. A second case of attempted arson occurred on Drummond street last night, but was unsuccessful.

Cuba.

FILIBUSTERING ON A LARGE SCALE.

Key West, Oct. 2.

The Cuban expedition, 400 strong, under the command of Gen. Cryster, that left New York on Monday, arrived on the Florida coast this morning. It was joined by the Cuban privateers 'Lillian' and 'Tesser,' on board of which were 1,600 men, and a large amount of arms and ammunition. Another body of men, under the command of Gens. Steedman and Magruder, are now at a Gulf port, embarking in a third vessel for the common rendezvous off the Cuban coast. The 'Lillian' and 'Tesser,' with 3,000 men, sailed for Cuba last. They will be joined at sea by the privateers 'Hornet' and 'Cuba,' carrying 15 guns each, some of which are 100 pounders. These four vessels will escort this expedition to its final destination. Volunteering is very brisk along the whole Gulf coast, and already 5,000 men are awaiting transportation.

The New Cable.

Gaspe Basin, 23rd Sept.

Captain C. D. Armstrong, of Sorel, arrived here by the steamship City of Quebec, for the purpose of selecting a landing place for the Canadian and European Telegraph Cable to connect Scotland with the Dominion. He has been down the coast to the several coves, and has selected Cape Brule Cove (commonly called Cape Bons) as the place best adapted, it being out of the way of vessels anchoring, and the ice would not interfere with the cable; the banks, also, having a gradual ascent from low water mark. The Montreal Telegraph Line will connect with Atlantic Cable at Cape Brule; so that Gaspe will have the benefit of telegraph communication with Great Britain, as well as the Dominion. There is no doubt but it will be a paying concern, there being several villages along the route between Gaspe Basin and Campbelltown. The different Township Councils of Gaspe and Bonaventure have offered to put the poles down along the route free of charge.

The Prince as an Advertising Medium.

Amid the general and spontaneous outburst of loyal enthusiasm, consequent upon the advent amongst us of Prince Arthur, a few keen-witted calculating railway projectors are endeavouring to turn his visit to account in a business point of view. In order to give eclat and serve as a first class advertisement for their line, the Whitby and Port Perry Railway people secured the Prince to perform the ceremony of turning the first sod on the new road, which takes place next week. The announcement that his Royal Highness consented to officiate was no sooner made public than the projectors of the Toronto, Grey and Bruce Railway, emulous of the prestige thus obtained by another company, prefer a similar request to the effect that the work in connection with their enterprize may be auspiciously commenced by Royal hands, which is also graciously acceded to, and the Prince will accordingly turn the first sod of that line during his stay in Toronto. Enterprize of this description differs in degree but not in kind from that of the truly loyal dispenser of the ardent at the London Exhibition, who inscribed "Prince Arthur's Own Saloon," above the door of his booth, on the strength of having disposed of a glass of sherry to him. It is a very smart thing to utilize the Prince in this manner as an advertising medium, though doubts may exist in the minds of some fastidious people as to the propriety and good taste of so doing; but these considerations are being generally ignored in this practical money making age. The idea is a brilliant one and might be followed up with advantage by some of the enterprising dry goods of firms of the metropolis of Ontario, who if they could only induce the Prince to advertise their establishments by standing in front of them, or allowing their posters to be affixed to his carriage, might reap a golden harvest as the reward of the enterprise!—Sentinel.

The Irish Church.

The United Synod of the Provinces of Dublin and Cashel, Armagh, and Tuam, assembled in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin, under the presidency of his Grace the Archbishop of Dublin, for the purpose of taking into consideration the future organization of the church. After the first ceremonies, the assembly separated into an Upper and a Lower Chamber, the former consisting of the Archbishops and Bishops, and the latter of the Deans, Archdeacons, and representative clergy. The proceedings in both chambers commenced with a protest against the Irish Church act, which took the form of a message from the upper, adopted and approved of by the lower chamber. A scheme of election of clerical members of the Church Body or General Synod was then sent down from the upper chamber, which provided that deans and archdeacons and the Regius Professors of Divinity of Trinity College should be ex-officio members. A discussion took place on a proposition of the Rev. Dr. Kichel, of Mullingar, to adjourn till yesterday the consideration of their bye-laws scheme, and some expressions of opinion were manifested against the introduction of ex-officio members. Eventually the proposition to adjourn was agreed to.

MASONIC.—The Montreal News says that it is in contemplation by a large and influential body of the Masons of the Province of Quebec, to establish a Grand Lodge for that Province. As matters now stand the fraternity in the Province of Quebec are under the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of Canada, which is the regulating and governing body throughout the whole of Ontario and Quebec. Nova Scotia and New Brunswick each has its own separate Grand Lodge, but working however in full harmony with the Grand Lodge of Canada. The brethren of Quebec appear to desire a similar state of things hence the present proposed change, which we trust will be effected with the consent and fraternal good will of all concerned.
