THE HERALDS OF TH SPRING.

FIDELIS, IN CANADIAN MONTHLY.

Already, by our gladdened ears is heard,
The welcome warbling of the early bird;
And, ere the winter blasts are wholly fled,
The Sanguinaria lifts her gentle head—
Half shrinking from the rude, ungenial air,
It bends to earth its petals snowy fair,
As if afraid to trust itself alone
On the bleak threshold of the winter-thrown,
And from its welcome errand to call—
To gladden longing eyes with promise true
Of all the beauty soon to burst to view.

Ere yet the early snow the woods has left,
But lingers late in many a rocky cleft,
The tiny ferns their spiral fronds unroll,
And the green moss o'er spreads the spongy sod,
While yet her glossy leaves are hardly green,
The fair Hepatica, from downy screen,
Opens her soft-hued cups in lonely bloom,
Breathing the spring's most delicate perfume;
Wood-violets follow, opening to the light
Their varied tints of yellow, blue and white;
And Trillium waxing in the shadowy dells,
The bright Dicentra with its clustered bells,
The white May apple neath broad shield of green—
Meet canopy of state for fairy queen!
With the striped Arum and the Orchis fair,
And Convallaria's waxen clusters rare,
The small Mitella's feathery shaft appears,
Piercing the withered leaves of by-gone years;
In the darker lofts of some old ragged pine,
Wave the bright blossoms of the Columbine,
While woodland boughs a snowy burden bear,
Breathing sweet incense on the balmy air;
The summer hours more gorgeous blossoms bring,
But none more dear than ye—sweet heralds of the spring!

Bears—Since Messrs. Perry Davis & Son commenced the manufacture of Bearine, the Canada trapper has found a lucrative business in capturing old Bruin. Messrs. Davis & Son pay a good price for the grease, and the skins are always sought after. Messrs Davis & Son have a mode of refining the grease, perfuming it, &c., making it superior to any others we have ever seen.

Heroism and Suffering.

The latest story of heroism and suffering performed and endured on the part of those who go down to the sea in ships one of great interest. In December last the bark Mondota left the island of Java with a full cargo for New York. The captain and one seaman were suffering from Java fever when the ship sailed. Of the two mates but one understood navigation, and to him fell the command. In a few days the second mate, the cook, and the steward were down with the fever, which, in its insatiable progress, had left the captain nearly a skeleton, and would soon waste the rest of the crew. It was not long before but five of the seamen were in a condition to work the vessel. The second mate died. The first, Frederick Adams, held nobly to his post, and so deeply impressed the seamen with zeal, activity and endurance that they felt the safety of ship and crew depended on his successfully fighting off the fever should it attack him. He was attacked, but he refused to succumb. Daily he crawled out of his cabin on hands and knees, in order to ascertain the ship's position and work her. He kept the bark on her course, intending to make an offshore, but as man after man died of the fever, and as it so filled the ship that it could be smelled, he made for St. Helena in order to obtain medical assistance. It took six long and dreary days to reach the island, but though almost dead, the Mate was on deck daily, directing the movements of the ship, which, without his guiding knowledge, might as well have been rudderless. Finally, the fever was banished from the vessel, and after what the mate modestly characterizes as the longest voyage he ever made, it reached New York in safety.

A Strange Story.

A strange story of the preservation of life, under circumstances which seemed to render death inevitable, comes from Nevada. In a secluded mountain vale two friends were hunting game. They had killed a large cinnamon bear and dragged it to the hut they had made their headquarters. One of the party had the misfortune to send an ounce ball through his heel, shattering it to fragments. They hurried back to the hut. The nearest settlement was forty miles off, and so weak was the wounded man from loss of blood that to ride it was out of the question. His friend resolved to leave him and bring, as speedily as possible, the medical assistance which seemed imperatively necessary. Leaving the unfortunate man two days' provisions and tucking him into a bunk the most comfortable way possible the friend rode off. A tremendous snow storm set in, and, though with the doctor, he made superhuman efforts to return, He was unable to do so. The idea that he must leave his companion to die of cold and starvation nearly crazed him but to reach him was a physical impossibility, and reluctantly he abandoned the attempt, resolving, however, to decently inter his bones in the spring when the trail would be passable. Seven weeks afterward a party of the unhappy captive's friends set out to bury him. They arrived at the cabin, and were met by the man himself. He had nearly recovered from the wound, which he had kept dressed with snow until mortification had disappeared. For provisions he had the raw bear meat, and though the cold was intense his own clothing and a double supply of blankets had kept him from freezing.

HOW A GEORGIA GIRL RESENTED AN INSULT.—We have heard of a case of civil rights that occurred a few days ago in Coffee county. A young lady had been from home visiting a neighbor, and on her return she was met in the road by a rough, ignorant negro, who told her that the civil rights bill had passed, and that it allowed him the privilege of walking home with her. She knew it would neither do to refuse or resist, so she said nothing, and he actually accompanied her home. When they arrived she asked him to take a chair in the piazza. He seated himself, and she went in the house. When she returned she had her father's double-barrel gun, which she discharged at the villain, blowing his brains out on the spot. Wh have given the particulars as near as they could be related to us. The news was brought up to Telfair court last week, and discussed there. The names have been withheld.—Savannah (Ga.) Dispatch.

ELOCUTION.—The Phrenological Journal in an article contains the following advice to the clergy:—"Many a minister would increase his usefulness more, and do God greater service, by studying elocution six months than by cramming still further in ecclesiastical history, or even theology, during the same length of time. A personal disagreeable habit is often as great an obstacle towards usefulness as the need of a right spirit. A man has a dull, indifferent manner he never warms up with his theme, never shows himself at all anxious that the words which he speaks should take any effect; never follows them up in any way by personal conversation, or the least appearance of solicitude for his flock; and yet he wonders that sermons which he has so laboriously prepared should produce little, if any result.

"A minister should study as carefully as a journalist studies the signs of the times, and while he clasps the Bible with one hand, the other should be on the public pulse."

Iron in the Blood.—When the blood is well supplied with its iron element we feel vigorous and full of animation. It is an insufficiency of this vital element that makes us feel weak and low-spirited; in such cases, the Peruvian Syrup (a protoxide of iron) can supply this deficiency, and its use will invigorate us wonderfully.

☞ Thousands of people are now carelessly allowing themselves to drift through the preliminary symptoms of consumption, under the fatal delusion that they are troubled with nothing but a slight cold. How necessary is it then, that a cold should be cared for from its incipiency, and every exertion used to get rid of it. Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers will stop the hacking cough in a few minutes, and by their influence on the bronchial and pulmonary organs all fears of dangerous results will soon be dissipated—but they must be taken in time. Cure Your Horses—It is to the interest of all who own horses to keep them in a healthy and sound condition; experience has proved that "Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy" is the most efficacious, and has been used by thousands who will cheerfully confirm this statement. For heaves, coughs, colds, and all diseases which affect the wind of horses it has no equal, nor is it equalled as a condition medicine, it purifies the blood, corrects and improves the appetite, and softens the skin, in fact, so great is the improvement in the condition and appearance of the animal as to have led many to doubt if it could be the same horse. Remember the name and see that the signature of Hurd & Co. is on each package. Northrop & Lyman, Toronto, Ont., proprietors for Canada. Sold by all medicine dealers.

WHAT THEY SAY OF IT! A FEW FACTS FOR THE PEOPLE.—There are but few preparations of medicines which have withstood the impartial judgment of the people for any great length of time. One of these Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil. Read the following and be convinced:—Thos. Robinson, Fairbairn Centre, P.Q., writes, "I have been afflicted with rheumatism for the last ten years, and have tried many remedies without any relief, until I tried Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, and since then have had no attack of it. I would recommend it to all."—J. H. Earl, Hotel Keeper, West Shefford, P.Q., writes, "I have been troubled with liver complaint for several years, and have tried different medicines with little or no benefit, until I tried Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, which gave me immediate relief, and I would say that I have used it since with the best effect. No one should be without it. I have tried it on my horses in cases of cuts, wounds, etc., and think it is equally as good for horses as for man."—A. Maybee, merchant, Warkworth, writes, "I have sold some hundreds of bottles of Eclectric Oil, and it is pronounced by the public, one of the best medicines they have never used; it has done wonders in healing and relieving pain, sore throats, etc., and is worthy of the greatest confidence."—Joseph Rusan, Township Percy, writes, "I was persuaded to try Thomas' Eclectric Oil for a lame knee which troubled me for three or four years, and I never found anything like it for curing lameness. It is a great public benefit."—A. M. Hamilton, Warkworth, writes, "For weeks I was troubled with a swelled ankle, which annoyed me very much, Mr. Maybee of this place induced me to try Eclectric Oil, and before one bottle was used I was cured. It is a most remarkable medicine."
