CITY AND VICINITY

TENDERS.—The tenders for Penitentiary cloth will be received on Tuesday.

IT is like summer to-day. Last evening was the first in which boating has been indulged in to any general extent this season.

THE Ottawa Free Press suggests that "Now is the time to wear Angus' underclothing." We will wait and see what Angus says about that.

LOCAL ALMANAX.—First soda water drawn in 1875 at Ross Bros' Bazaar on Thursday, May 20. First ice cream tapped Saturday, May 22.

WATCH and see on Tuesday if the solemnity on the face of a boy who wants to dodge under a circus tent is not truly marvellous.

POLICE COURT, Saturday.—Before Mr. Strange.—Peter Rourk, drunk, $2 or 15 days. John Ahern was dismissed. Jas. Wright, as vagrant, was sent up for six months.

MELANCHOLY ANNOUCEMENT.—There will be no issue of the British Whig on Monday. It's a holiday, and printers are loyal beyond everything.

SOME persons think that "latitudinarianism" is a long word to syllable off, but did they ever attend a country school in Frontenac that we could name and unwind "Transmagnificanbandand uality?"

IMPORTANT TO COMMERCE.—The grain forwarding firms of this city and Montreal to-day reduced their uniform charge for carrying grain from Kingston to Montreal to 3½c. per bushel, to meet the close times.

MEETING THIS EVENING.—The assemblage of friends of the late Mr. James O'Reilly this evening will undoubtedly be a very large one. There is one common desire to pay a tribute to his memory.

EXCURSION.—The pleasure season has bloomed. Besides the Queen's Birthday excursions, one is on the tapis for the Public School children of the city and Portsmouth, with a picnic at Stella Point, Amherst Island. It will be a mammoth affair.

SEMPER PARATUS.—The Alpha Hose Company are an active lot. They are lightning at getting up a ball or in rushing early to a fire. They have already set the pasteboards in motion for an Assembly in the City Hall on the evening of Dominion Day, July 1st.

SUCCESS.—We are glad to notice that Mr. D. H. Fletcher, late of Kingston, who is pursuing his legal studies in Toronto, has succeeded in taking special honors, in the Junior Class, at the Law School examinations. The effect of this will be to shorten Mr. Fletcher's term of clerkship 6 months.

NEW LODGE.—The venerable Oddfellows' Lodge No. 10 of this city is about to be revived under the old charter, and with the name of "The Cataraqui." It will be opened on Tuesday evening at the Hall of Kingston Lodge by R. W. Bro. Fowler, of this city. A deputation of Kingston Oddfellows is to attend the demonstration at Whitby on Monday.

NEW PUBLICATION.—Mr. John Henderson has placed on the Editor's Table "The Life and Character of Christ an Evidence of the Truth of Christianity," a neatly printed pamphlet of 32 pages, by the Rev. John Moran, of Belmont and bearing the imprint of William Mullan, Belfast. It is a very interesting and able essay and gives in a brief, compendious form many of the arguments for and a succinct refutation of the arguments against the truth of Mr. Moran's theme.

HYMENIAL OFFERING.—The Rev E. D. McLaren, of this city, whose advancement from the charge of Merrickville parish to that of Cheltenham, after a short course in the ministry of which he is so young and promising a member, his friends heard with great pleasure, was on Thursday made very happy in being united in the happy bonds to one of Merrickville's fairest daughters. Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. McLaren visited Kingston in the course of their wedding trip, and received the sincere congratulations of a host of well-wishers for their future happiness and prosperity, of which there is now so bright a promise.

A THREATENED LIBEL SUIT.—The following correspondence explains itself:—

"Toronto, May 22, 1875.—By telegraph from Toronto—To Whig: Have entered an action against you for defamation of character; damages $5,000. Send the name of your solicitor. Will compromise for twenty cents.—SUNSKIT."

"Kingston, May 22, 1875.—To Sunskit, Daily Sun, Toronto.—Have referred affair to our solicitor, Hon. Adam Crooks, with instructions to accept offer at eighty five cents on the dollar.—WHIG.

We may add briefly that we will on no account back down from the position we have taken.—May the Sun-skit-man, be shriveled up to a mummy first.

BRIEFS.—One of the most convincing proofs of the arrival of the Summer is the opening of the side door of the Post-Office to-day.—Who got the toss from the gig? A bob-tailed cab horse did some mischief that time.—The steamers are at work this morning on the schooner Jessie Macdonald ashore in the upper bay. They will get her off, it is expected.—People are laying out for the fullest enjoyment of the Queen's Birthday.—Many of the stores are crowded this morning. Has the good weather brought the change? It is pleasant to know that quite a large number of people have not forgotten how to "shop," but are swinging in to the old way.

CURRENCY.

—A London despatch announces the death of Dudley Baxter.

—Cattle stealing, murder, and general lawlessness, prevail in Mexico.

—A London doctor says that black eyes and deceit go together in woman.

—The Allan Line of Glasgow steamers are now conducted on temperance principles.

—The musician who murdered selections from the 'Messiah' must have been a bad man to Handel.

—'Pronouncing matches' are now in order, but we don't think they're destined to be e pronounced success.

—Abraham Jackson, a prominent Boston lawyer, his disappeared; as usual large defalcations have been discovered.

—The assessment roll of London, Ontario, for the present year shows a total of $8,092,660, an increase of $133,570 over the previous year.

—In Washington society, cards have entirely superseded formal calls. These are sent by servants, or left by visitors themselves.

—A quarter's worth of common iron, by transformation into the finest parts of a watch, reaches a money value of $10,000.

—A New York female who read that the Hoosac Tunnel cost $900 per yard, said she would have a dress pattern off from that piece if the old man didn't lay up a cent for the next two years.

—'Mike, will you come in and take a drink?' Mike looked at the man for the space of half a minute, and then rolling his eyes upward, very softly said: 'I'd t'ink was an angel speaking to me.'

—Obituary writers, take notice—a Boston lady with $50,000 has just wedded a reporter whose gushing words about the first husband, deceased, effectually won her heart.

—A wealthy woman died recently in Michigan who had paid taxes 'under protest' for fifty years. The protest part seemed to afford her great comfort in her last hours.

—The new mode of working ships' guns, adopted in England, is a little expensive, $40,000 has been paid to the firm of Sir W. Armstrong for the hydraulic machinery supplied to the Thunderer's guns.

—Count Malvaria, of Italy, has invented an earthquake indicator, to give warning of coming shocks. The instant that a trembling of the earth occurs the mechanism fires off a gun. No respectable family should be without one.

—The superintendent of the Welland canal will fine each vessel $20 which passes through the canal faster than four miles per hour. A check to be kept at Allanburg and Port Colborne. With the present outlook for business, the superintendent will collect enough to pay for the new canal.

—When Abernethy, in a passion at finding his door blocked up with paving stones, told one of the laborers to remove them instantly, and take them to hell, if he liked, the Irishman quietly replied: 'Hadn't I better take them to heaven? Sure they'd be more out of your honor's way.'

—The action for libel brought by L. A. Cannon, City Clerk of Quebec, against Le Canadien, which has been on trial before Judge Castult and a special jury for the last few days, resulted in a verdict for plaintiff for $500 and costs. The article complained of imputed to the plaintiff partiality in discharge of his duties at the municipal elections last year.

—The Saturday Review, in an article on the collecting mania and sensation auction declares that England is at once the richest country in the world, the fullest of things precious and rare, and the least instructed in matters of taste. The middle and upper classes, it says, have a 'dreadful facility in confusing beauty and hideousness.

—A star above a grave in Arkansas bears the following legend, evidently the tribute of a devoted but discriminating husband:

'She washed the children,
Fed the fowls,
And made her home
Resound with howls.'

—The ladies of Warsaw, Ky., to the number of thirty-one, have collectively and severally pledged each to the other their words of honor that, 'We will not, during a period of one year from the 1st of May, 1875, purchase any material for wearing apparel the cost of which shall exceed 26 cents per yard.' Which is something Warsaw never saw wore before.

The Last Station.

(Detroit Free Press.)

He had been sick at one of the hotels for three or four weeks, and the boys on the road had dropped in daily to see how he got along, and to learn if they could render him any kindness. The brakeman was a good fellow, and one and all encouraged him in the hope that he would pull through. The doctor didn't regard the case as dangerous, but the other day the patient began sinking and it was seen that he could not live the night out. A dozen of his friends sat in the room when night came, but his mind wandered and he did not recognize them.

It was near one of the depots, and after the great trucks and noisy drays had ceased rolling by the bells and the short, sharp whistles of the yard engines sounded painfully loud. The patient had been very quiet for half an hour, when he suddenly unclosed his eyes and shouted:

'Kal-a-ma-zoo!'

One of the men brushed the hair back from the cold forehead, and the brakeman closed his eyes and was quiet for a time; Then the wind whirled around the depot and banged the blinds on the window of his room, and he lifted his hand and cried out: 'Jack-son! Passengers going north by the Saginaw Road change cars!'

The men understood. The brakeman thought he was coming east on the Michigan Central. The effort seemed to have greatly exhausted him, for he lay like one dead for the next five minutes, and a watcher felt his pulse to see if life had not gone out. A tug going down the river sounded her whistle loud and long, and the dying brakeman opened his eyes and called out:

'Ann Arbor!'

He had been over the road a thousand times, but had made his last trip. Death was drawing a spectral train over the old track, and he was brakeman, engineer and conductor.

One of the yard engines uttered a shrill whistle of warning, as if the glare of the headlight had shown to the engineer some stranger in peril, and the brakemen acilled out:

'Ypsilanty—change cars here for the Eel River Road!'

'He's coming in fast' whispered one of the men.

'And the end of his run will be the end of his life!' said a second.

The dampness of death began to collect on the patient's forehead, and there was that ghastly look on the face which death always brings. The slamming of a door down the hall startled him again, and he moved his head and faintly called:

'Grand Trunk Junction—passengers going east by the Grand Trunk change cars!'

He was so quiet after that all the men gathered around the bed, believing that he was dead. His eyes closed, and the brakeman lifted his hand, moved his head and whispered:

'De—'

Not 'Detroit,' but Death! He died with the half-uttered whisper on his lips. And the headlight on death's engine shone full is his face and covered it with such pallor as nought but death can bring.

Elliott, President to the Montreal Conference, and Rev. Geo. Douglas.

Balloonatics.

Ballooning will doubtless, for all time continue to be a fascinating and attractive thing to amateurs, though the recent experience of the young Parisians who went up higher than Gay-Lussac and came down dead, and of Mr. Pedruzzo, an apothecary of Brooklyn, who didn't go so high and came down alive but much bruised, having left his balloon in the air, ought not greatly to increase its popularity. The first event was one of tragic horror which is rather increased than diminished by the knowledge that the reckless and ill-fated youths embarked upon an expedition always fraught with peril, with insufficient knowledge or preparation, and that instead of starting off with bodies refreshed with sleep and food, one of them had not broken his fast, and another had not had sufficient sleep for the three preceding nights. These young men can in no sense be considered martyrs in the cause of science. They perished because they sought to rush upon the guarded and forbidden spaces of nature too lightly and flippantly and ignorantly. The poet says that the undevout astronomer is mad, and one might almost say the same of the reckless amateur balloonist. His aim is not generally higher than that of curiosity or vanity, and he is apt to come to grief, giving a passing unnecessary pain to numbers of persons who care nothing for him, but are shocked to see him driven head downwards into their croquet grounds, with his boots sticking out like wickets and his balloon entangling the terrified family cow. Mr. Pedruzzo narrates his experience with a scientific brevity and precision which this rehearsal of it—would in vain endeavor to imitate. He went up seven thousand five hundred and sixteen feet five inches, his ballast leaking all the way, until he came in sight of the ocean, when he pulled the valve and descended rapidly towards the earth, on nearing which he was requested by an excited peasant to go to hell. He thereupon threw out more ballast, although that was not the way to carry out the gentle agriculturist's wish. After going up and down irregularly, like the price of Wabash or Mr. Husted in a railroad debate, the expedient occurred to him of cutting all the ropes which attached the car to the balloon. This he did, with the result of coming gently and immediately towards the earth at the rate of ten million miles a second by the barometer. He made a large hole in the southwestern section of Long Island against which he fell, and greatly astonished a small negro boy who had been left out there to keep watch for balloons and apothecaries, and who seemed to be expecting him. This youth, whom the aeronaut confused with the concussion, instantly put down in his note-book as 'either dirty or a mulatto,' conducted him to a neighboring farm-house, where he was anointed with embrocations for a week, the gravel stones carefully picked out of his back, and he is now safely at home putting up prescriptions and drawing soda-water as usual. The balloon, which he made himself and at his own expense, might have been seen last night flying over Bermuda—or it might not. Mr. Pedruzzo has heard nothing from it since he parted from it in mid air, and most likely he doesn't want to. We don't.—E. Y. World.

LITERAL GUSH.—In the English Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes, Mr. Gush recently sued Mrs. Gush for divorce. The ground of the suit was the voluntary confession of Mrs. Gush, which her husband was very much disinclined to believe at first; but she persevered in it, and finally repeated it in the presence of the co-respondent, who affected to discredit her, but did not interpose any prompt and plump denial. The husband then looked into the matter, and finding Mrs. Gush's confessions corroborated by circumstantial evidence, applied for a divorce, which was granted. The principles of this case, however, are not deemed applicable in all places.
