CITY AND VICINITY

☞ GOLD in New York at 3 o'clock 116

THE gale of yesterday detained the steamers bound upward. They all remained in port until the wind calmed.

THE tinsmiths are having their hands full. Since the advent of the cool weather they are rushed with orders. Their knowledge of stove pipes is exercised to the fullest extent.

SALE OF LOT.—The building lot to be offered for sale to-morrow is one of the very best in the city, being part of the Colin Miller property, so extensively built on of late.

FINISHED.—The Grand Council of the Young Irishmen's Catholic Benevolent Society concluded their labours yesterday, and the delegates from the West left for their respective places of abode on the afternoon express.

COLLINS' BAY MARINE.—Cleared Sept 14th: Schr. "Anna Craig," for Bay City, Mich., light; barque "Manzanilla," for Welland Canal, light. Sept. 15th: Barque "Cavalier," to Bay City, Mich., light.

A CHAMPION SHOT.—Lieut. Wright, of the 50th Volunteers, who was so successful on Wednesday at the Kingston Rifle Association matches in winning two first prizes in succession, was one of the Wimbledon team of this year, and one of those who won laurels for Canada in the struggle for the Kalopore Cup.

MATCHES.—The return match between the junior cricket clubs of Kingston and Belleville has been postponed until Monday. Probably a later date still may be selected, the Bay of Quinte Regatta taking place on Monday. A game of cricket between the Base Ball Club and Kingston C. C. has been arranged for Tuesday.

THE ROWING RACES.—The weather does not now promise well for to-morrow afternoon's sports but then who can tell what a day may bring forth. It is as likely to be fine as not, for September of 1875 is as variable as any of its predecessors. If the day be at all favorable, there will be a series of fine races far ahead of last Saturday's, and well worth attending.

WITTY.—A gentleman hastening into the yard of the Kingston Gas Company this morning, ran against an elderly son of Erin, to whom he addressed the question, "How does coal look to day," "Black as ever," replied the latter as he continued his work without noticing the effect his remark had upon the visitor. The would be purchaser applied to another and less witty gentleman for the desired information.

THE TEMPERANCE VOTE.—The vote in Prince Edward County was at every poll in favor of prohibition. It will also be seen that Athol township where that rules has existed for many years it is not tired of it:—

	FOR	AGAINST
Picton	128	121
Hallowell	224	47
Hillier	131	27
Athol	127	28
Sophiasburg	115	6
South Marysburg	92	134
Wellington	54	11

THE TOURNAMENT EXPENSES.—Rev. T. D. Phillips, of Ottawa, who arranged the preliminaries for the sending off of a Canadian team to play the International matches at Philadelphia, has issued a circular in which he shows the receipts to defray the expenses of the trip to have fallen $56.35 short of the expenditure, exclusive of the amount advanced by individual members of the team. Rev. Mr. Phillips writes that he trusts the clubs of Canada will not be content with repaying him the balance, but will also come forward so as to enable him to refund the advances made by the individual members of the team. The Kingston Club should subscribe more liberally to this fund than they have.

THE FUEL QUESTION.—The decline in the price of coal and the cold weather combined have served to make the fuel question one of vital importance to those who deal in the commodity. There is a great run upon the coal yards, many people, acting on the belief that the rates were as low as they were likely to be, ordering supplies not only for present demands, but for the entire winter. This rush of business extends to all the coal yards excepting that of the new man, to whom is attributed the reaction and its results. The reduction is only temporary. The wood market is not subject to any agitation. The prices are very reasonable, and the supply good.

MACEVOY'S NEW HIBERNICON.—Frank MacEvoy's Hibernian Minstrels and New Hibernicon is to be exhibited at the City Hall for two evenings, this and to morrow night. The following is taken from the St. Louis Times, where the company lately exhibited:—

"Many improvements have been added. The excellence of the panoramic views has noticably increased, and these of themselves for scenic effect possess a peculiar interest to all lovers of painting, not speaking of the enthusiasm which such an exhibition must excite in the hearts of those who still love to travel back and be once more among the green hills and fertile valleys of the Emerald Isle. Mr. W. F. Lawlor, as Barney the Guide, is an excellent performer and has a good voice. Miss Reilly, as the widow, is especially good. Mr. Emile Ames, as Fritz, and "Old Black Joe," and Mr. Nash in his specialties were warmly received and encored. Miss Hayes and Miss Katie Byrnes share in the excellence of the performance. On the whole the Hibernicon, interspersed with songs, dances and delineations, constitute an entertainment that cannot fail to give satisfaction to any one who desires to spend an evening among Irish scenes and peculiarities.

The Prohibition Convention.

There are 268 delegates in attendance at the Temperance Convention in Montreal, including the following:—T. W. Casey, Rev. W. S. Blackstock, W. F. Hall; Vanluven, Battersea, J. Armstrong, Gananoque; Rev. W. Scott, Smith's Falls; Rev. W. Buden, Cataraqui Rev. Jas. Kines, Odessa. There are no representatives for Kingston in the list. All our temperance men are sleeping and yet Sunday Temperance meetings, church temperance associations and B.A.O. and Independent Order of Templars, Sons of Temperance lodges and Bands of Hope are in full blast. There is something in the way of the energies of the local temperance advocates. Is it want of devotion to the true interests of teetotalism? That must be it.

The address which has aroused the greatest enthusiasm at the convention so far is this reported:—

Mrs. Yeomans of Picton, Ont., a stout lady with a clear voice, referred to a great contest ended in Prince Edward County in favor of prohibition. Their Ladies' Temperance Association had set an example in the noble work; those members had been compelled to do something to stop the suffering in their midst. She said: There are gentlemen on the platform whose names are very dear to us in this contest. We turned away very sadly when the last session of Parliament closed and prohibition was not given us. In our own town, seeing what the traffic was doing, we got up a petition to the Council not to license the liquor shops; they saw fit to refuse; then we determined that defeat should only be the signal for a fresh attempt, and we worked hard at the same time taking the whole matter to God in prayer. (Hear, hear). You men look at the temperance question in its financial aspect; we women look at it as a bartering in souls, and the temporal and eternal welfare of our husbands, brothers and sons; we look at it as an evil spirit devastating our homes and dragging our loved ones down to tradition. In reference to the action of the House of Commons on prohibition she said: If a large bell had been hung in the dome of the House and solemnly tolled as each soul destroyed through the liquor traffic went down to perdition, the members would not have put off the consideration of prohibition as they did. (Applause). The flowers of our firesides are filling up the gaps in the drunkard's ranks. We women are now ready for the question; we, in our county, have held electioneering meetings on the subject, and had strong support. A leading Conservative said, 'I never voted a Grit vote in my life, but I'll vote it clear through now for prohibition if necessary;' a prominent Reformer said he would vote a Conservative ticket to attain that end if requisite. That is the state of public sentiment up there. We don't care what party is up or down, so long as alcohol goes down and stays down. (Great cheering and laughter.) May a fire be kindled here which will go through the Dominion and burn up the alcohol; I do hope gentlemen, you will give us prohibition. (Prolonged and defeaning applause.)

PRIZE PLAN FOR A FARM HOUSE.—Last January a farmer in Lower Canada sent the Montreal Witness a drawing of a farm house which was considered an improvement upon the style generally in vogue. The Witness, with its characteristic enterprise offered a prize for competition among all who were not architects for the best plan of a farm house so arranged that a part of it could be built at first for the entire accomodation of the family, and the remainder in after years, when the means and requirements of the family increased. The prize was $20; and all plans sent in before the 1st of July, were examined by competent architects, and the best selected. The announcement called forth lively competition, and numerous drawings were sent to the Witness office. Among other contestants for the premium was Mr. D. Nicol, of Cataraqui, (Kingston) who submitted a plan of a house 28 x 30 inside, with mansard roof, and the walls to be built of whatever material was most convenient, and the size could be increased or diminished as required. The plan received the approval of the architects appointed to act as the judges, and to Mr. Nicol the premium was awarded. Mr. Nicol has been a prizeman on many occasions in fruit and agricultural productions. He is to be congratulated in his last achievment.

The Montreal Gazette has run up the Protection flag, seeing that an election in the West Division is coming on, and its editor is not averse to running in the Conservative interest. It thus girds at the Government for their Free Trade wickedness:—

We know their leading organs have no word of encouragement, but on the contrary only their supreme contempt, to offer to those who advocate protection as the policy best suited to promote the interests of Canada. Under these circumstances it is simply hopeless to look to them for relief.

And what did Mr. Thomas White, the editor of this same Mohtreal Gazette, do when it was proposed in the Dominion Board of Trade to ask the Government to raise the tariff? He opposed the proposition, supporting a resolution approving of the 15 per cent tariff, and declared that an industry that could not thrive with that degree of protection was not worth projecting. And now that the tariff has been raised to 17½ per cent, this same gentleman is complaining that it is not high and protective enough. Such tactics will hardly pay. A little common honesty would go much further than this blowing hot and cold to suit the hard times. The merchants of Montreal know a trimmer when they see him, exceedingly "smart" though he may think himself.

HARVEST DINNER.—The harvest dinner at Yarker on Thursday last was a complete success. Addresses were delivered in the Church. The vocal music was the best, the Reporter writes, ever heard on such an occasion. The chair was ably occupied by Sidney Warner, Esq., of Wilton. Revs. Dr. McCullough, W. Briden, W. J. Crothers, J. Perley, T. B. Conley, W. Madge, A. G. Knight, and L. Conley, delivered suitable addresses. The receipts, like everything connected with the entertainment, were highly satisfactory.

THE FOOT RACE.—To-morrow afternoon Ryan, of Brockville, and McLoughlin, of this place, will run the challenge race of 100 yards for $100 a side. Considerable interest is being taken in it. The start will be made at 2 o'clock sharp so as to give spectators time and opportunity to reach the harbor front and witness the regatta or rowing races at half-past two o'clock.

POLICE COURT.

Generally when circumstances are favourable there are nice easy times; but just when ease would be enjoyed there's a hubbub that's vexatious and maddening. What possessed the hucksters to get into a muss to-day no one knows, and no one but those who had been in the row do seems to care a cent. That they had a pretty lively jamboree was indicated by the aspect of the field of battle when the struggle was ended. Poultry and potatoes came out victorious, and for once this week the bobbies and their batons were put to flight. Our reporter missed a rare sight surely. The police station after the siege presented a romantic picture. The Sergt.-Major and the officer known as "my man" had got too near a couple of the poultry slashers, and in consequence of the materials with which they were marked neither felt presentable to the Court, both remembering the severe rebuke the P.M. had given the S.M. for his untimely attack upon "the herns" the previous day. On entering the police station the S.M. carried the tail of a partridge on the back of his neck, and "my man" looked as if he had sat down on a basket of addled hen fruit. The scene was too solemn to smile.

The Sergt.-Major requested Sergt. Nugent to occupy his seat—the corner of the counter—and keep a watchful eye upon the proceedings. The attendance was light; but three or four spectators took the gallery, in which they grinned, and shivered, and squirted tobacco juice with heroic coolness and perseverance. Looking uncomfortably cool the P.M. entered, hands in pockets. He felt out of sorts, and P. C. Carson was denied the honour of having the band serenade him while he rested and viewed the cobwebs on the ceiling.

The P.M.—Is the Sergt.-Major sick?

Sergt. Nugent—He got into a squabble with the hucksters this morning, and feels bad.

The P.M.—Well, well! I thought he had settled down. This capering with the female sex must end. Bring on the cases.

Sarah Gibbons has a little red headed son, who is as fiery in temperament as he is in nature. He is apt to quarrel with the other fair haired little doves; but sometimes he gets licked. Yesterday a neighboring youngster gave him a fearful thrashing, as his cut cheek, swelled lip and twisted nose fully indicated. Mrs. Gibbons, when unagitated, is splendid and good natured; but tread on her corns and she's like a whole menagerie of wild cats. When she saw her boy getting leathered she sailed down upon the contestants and put her foot into it—or rather she put her foot upon the other boy.

There's no telling who might not have been hurt; but it is certain the lad with the light hair wouldn't have felt any better had she not been checked in her philanthropic mission.

The P.M. looked like thunder.

This was a case which called for diplomacy, however, and he had to act with the wisdom of a Solomon. The child wrangle recorded in ancient poetry recurred to his mind; his countenance looked more pleasant and forgiving.

Sarah—Can't I state the business to—

The P.M.—No you can't. Your tongue must lie quiet when your here. I'm not your neighbor's wife or a picket fence and I don't want any of your jaw. You talk too much Sarah, and—

Sarah.—But they pitch onto my red-haired boy.

The P.M.—That's not my fault. Suppose he is red headed, you are not justified in making a show of yourself. I'm anxious that love and friendship should abound, and if you and your ilk would give your tongues a rest and mind your own business—not be so confounded ready to dip into other people's affairs—there would be less law and lawyers needed. Keep out of scrapes in future Sarah. You can go now.

Robert Hamilton is a bad boy. He has little veneration for our aged citizens. That bump, if he has such a thing, has not yet developed. He is the leader of a band of young vagrants who have made it their business to annoy several of our respected citizens. Yesterday Hamilton made an assault upon Mr. McCammon, baker, whom he struck in a sensitive part with an apple pitched with the violence and aim of a base ball player. Mr. McCammon gave the youth chase, and hailing Grey and Hoyle they joined in the run. Hamilton dodged into a gateway, and the officers after him, one of them in his scamper over strange premises jumping up to his knees in a pile of lime and the other cutting his leg by coming in collision with something harder than flesh and bone. The youthful offender was eventually found hidden behind a hen coop.

The P.M.—My lad, I was once a boy myself. Were you a shade more solid I would be inclined to be lenient; but it's no use. I must make somebody sick if this rowdyism is to be crushed. I may as well begin on you. I can't think of letting you down easier than $5 and costs. And now, before you return to your wicked ways, be cautious about coming back here again; give me a wide berth. Disobey and your goose is cooked. Remember that the way of the transgressor is tough.

Sandy Simmons is one of these fellows who give away money and valuables in envelopes. He sold one of these prize packages to a fellow yesterday, and instead of getting $3 in greenbacks, the purchaser got a fine tooth comb and four little pieces of brown paper.

The P.M.—Serious business, young man. What say you?

Well, yer see, when I chucked it to the bloke, I didn' know but what it mighter been worth a hundred dollars for all I knew.

Tobias Longmat was the complainant, and he hailed from the country.

You are the most verdant man I ever saw, said his Worship, addressing him. I think you must live on Paris green as a diet, and top off with copperas as dessert.

Now, you jes' look 'ere, Squire. I ain't no verdant man. I'm from up to Gananoque, and that man what gi' me that arnu'up, said it was worth as much as fifty dollars. He's a vile deceiver, Squire, and if I had him up to 'Gananoke' I'd lick the boots right off him.

The P.M. then addressed the prisoner.

Bill Fisher, you know you are a fisher for flats, and that you lay around for country 'blokes,' and, as the complainant states, 'by vile artifices, base tricks, dishonorable ruses, unworthy duplicity, and perfidious chicanery,' did defraud the complainant out of three dollars of good and lawful money of Canada. You are required to accompany Corbett up town, and remain in a retired rendezvous until interviewed by Judge Burrowes. Lift your traps and move.

BASE BALL NOTES.

—The Stars of Newburg are playing at Harrowsmith with the local club.

—The game of Dafoe House vs. the Town ended at Belleville—15 to 46.

—The St. Lawrence nine had seventeen errors marked down against them in the game with the Live Oaks at Rome. That accounts for the cook in the milk-nut.

THE

Victor Wringer,

Is brought before the public with the fullest confidence that it will meet the wants of all in need of a

FIRST-CLASS WRINGER!

The power is applied upon an entirely new principle, requiring only one half the power to turn of other Wringers. A child can wring a bed quilt with the Victor as easily as a towel by ordinary wringers. The rolls are SOLID WHITE RUBBER to the shaft, and put on by a process which makes them immoveable on the shaft; the shafts are geared upon both ends so that no strain comes upon the Clothes, which is very desirable, particularly if the article be much worn or of a delicate nature. The handles are put on in a manner peculiar to the Victor, turning in either direction with equal facility; most wringers have the handles screwed on the shaft and if the Machine gets clogged, and the handles are turned back it unscrews, causing great trouble. This is entirely obviated in the construction of the VICTOR WRINGER.
