Some of the Testimonials

From Dr Duncan McCallum Montreal:

I, the undersigned, have been suffering very much for the last two years from Rheumatism in the ankle joint, so much so that I was often prevented from attending to my calling, but three applications of Dr Birnbaum's Rheumatism and Gout Remedy gave me that relief from pain and stiffness which I did not experience for the last two years, and after eight days use of this remedy I find myself entirely cured

I owe this statement to the public, the profession and to the merits of the genuine article. DUNCAN McCALLUM, M.D.

From Dr Munro, Prof Victoria University, Montreal:

From the trials I made in my practice with Dr Birnbaum's Rheumatism and Gout Remedy and from what I know about its composition, am convinced that its use will be highly beneficial for all the different purposes for which it is designed, even in such cases where internal medical treatment is required. It well worthy the confidence of the profession and I can strongly recommend it to the public it being prompt, active and efficacious in exterminating pains and swellings.

CITY AND VICINITY

GOLD in New York at 3 o'clock 115½

VANORDER has a splendid lot of fish in to-day.

ONE POUND OF TEA in a good tin box for 30 cents. All teas very low at Karch's coffee and spice mills, Earl Street.

LADIES' requiring good winter jackets will find a splendid stock at MacKay & Co's. great sale.

INSTRUCTOR.—Colonel Lefaunce is favorably mentioned in connection with the appointments of instructors for the new Military College.

ONE POUND OF TEA in a good tin box for 30 cents. All teas very low at Karch's coffee and spice mills, Earl Street.

THE GAMES.—The Institute boys are having their sports to-day. They commenced at 1 o'clock in the City Park. There is a large amount of interest taken in them.

GRAIN.—The market is remarkably steady and prices are unchanged; in fact they are so well supplied that a change would be an unlooked-for thing. The receipts this week will hardly equal those of last week.

CONVICT ESCAPE.—The investigation regarding the recent escape of convicts from the Penitentiary is still in progress to-day. Mr. J. G. Moylan, the Government Inspector, is conducting the investigation.

ALL WEATHERS.—This morning it was cold and it showed a wee. Then it got warmer and shone as if Indian summer was again in blossom. But at 3 p.m. it was dark and growing colder. The attack is coming, we tell you, and the grocer who knows his business will set his snow shovels out now and get the public worked up to a winter point.

THE CENTRALS.—Port Hope is going to have a Central Exhibition like Peterboro's and Kingston's next Fall. It enters upon the prospect in the right spirit. Already (ten months in advance) a Committee of the County and Township Agricultural Societies have got vigorously to work and advertised for the preparation of the ground.

RACING.—This winter it is said there will be a deal of racing. The spirit for this kind of amusement is growing, and already we see the enthusiasm of the sports bulging out in contemplation of the coming contests. The running race this afternoon at Cataraqui Course attracted a large crowd. On Wednesday the 17th a match race for $200 a side will also take place between two local horses—Tom Thumb and Lady Emma.

FONETICK KLUB.—In the west they are agitating the formation of "Fonetic Klubs," which would afford so much amusement to the members. "The Klub," a contemporary says, "have for their object the advawncement the owrly sistem uv orthografy that conforms to the reason uv awl, not the present nonsensikal stile borrowed from ancient langwidges and bundled promiskeuslv together. Who will organize the fonetic klub?"

"BLIND TOM."—This musical genius will appear at the City Hall this evening—remember, in his wonderful "piano forte" recitals. One of Tom's especial features is that he is entirely self taught in his musical lore, and therefore is all the greater novelty. His great musical and memonic ability is in striking contrast with his lack of other intellectual gifts, and on the whole he is the greatest wonder of the age. No doubt a sufficient number of persons to fill the hall have made up their minds to see and hear him.

AGAIN HEARD FROM.—The man who is not crazy a bit—E. H. Mahon—but is tearing about Ottawa so savagely as to be searched after for threatening to shoot a Citizen reporter, wrote yesterday an indignant letter to the Free Press regarding the Citizen and its "local" with the "base ball moustache—nine hairs on each side." He challenges the whole corps band running at wrestling or boxing, and offers the proprietor two crowbars and a pair of 56 pounders to batter him with! There is humor in his madness.

BROCKVILLE ASSIZES.—Mr. B. M. Britton, as Crown Prosecutor, conducted the case against James Kirkpatrick for assault with intent on a little girl in Oxford township. He had the Hon. C. F. Fraser associated with him, as the case was one of great interest. Verdict, guilty of indecent assault. Hon. J. H. Cameron and F. T. French for the defence. The aristocratic libel case, Jones vs. Ferguson, was settled, each party paying his own costs. This was regretted, as some interesting and lively evidence was expected. The Hon. J. H. Cameron and Mr. Bethune had been engaged as counsel.

THE GRANGER.—To-day we received the initial number of "The Granger," the character of which is implied by its title. It is a farmer's gazette, made up of markets, trade advices, farm hints, etc., and is issued as the official organ of the Grangers, that American order which has gained a foot hold in Canada by the establishment within a year past of 230 lodges, composed of 10,000 members. It has a useful career before it.—Then there is that dear young friend of ours—the Brockville Enterprise. It came yesterday enlarged to almost double its previous size, and chirping as happily as a young mother over her first. This bold striking out is a sign of prosperity and public approval, so we send our congratulations along without a reservation. But it will never do to keep on publishing at $3 per year—the raw material costs more than that, let alone the string and the wear and tear of editorial brains.

Public School Board.

REGULAR MEETING.—The Board met last evening, Mr. McRossie filling the chair in the absence of Mr. Britton. Present—Messrs. Allen, McConaghy, Shaw, Conley, Penso, Fee, Burton, Wilson, Oliver, Bajus. The minutes of last meeting were approved.

A letter was read from Mr. John Rowland in regard to the Gordon Street School lot fence, about which Mr. Wilson reported that the sum estimated for the construction was only half sufficient. The lot was an acre in size, double the supposed measurement. It was not proposed to undertake the work this fall, but to defer it till spring and procure an increased grant. The Secretary was instructed to write to Mr. Rowlands, calling on him to pay one half of the cost of building the line fence.

Applications for teacherships were received from Misses Fanny McColl and Susie Pugh and referred to Committee on Teachers.

The truant officer, owing to his illness, could not present a report of absentees, but in accordance with the resolution of last meeting two of the school principals (Wellington and Queen Streets) reported the attendance of the teachers for the past month, showing very regular hours and constant application to work.

The Finance Committee's report, recommending accounts, was adopted, as was also that of the Teachers, Officers and Salaries Committee, recommending an allowance of $35 to Mr. Metcalfe for the night school; that Miss Hayward be appointed as teacher in Gordon Street School, Miss Nicholson to be removed thence to the senior department of Cataraqui School, where there is a large increase of pupils—190 being now under 3 teachers.

On motion of Dr. Fee, a grant of $50 was made for the purchase of new books for the Public School Library.

It was resolved, on motion of Dr. Oliver, that $40 be placed in the hands of Prof. Dupuis, Inspector, to be expended for prize books for the children at the Christmas examinations, $20 of the amount being the proceeds of the entertainment given in the City Hall a couple of months since.

The notice of Prof. Dupuis' resignation was handed in, and the Board adjourned.

LOBORO ACCIDENTS.

—Yesterday we published a brief telegraphic account of the death of Caleb Boyce, a resident of the Village of Sydenham. The general impression was that the unfortunate man was fatally injured by being thrown from his waggon, run over and in that way killed. We understand the accident occurred in this way: Near Yarker, en route home, Boyce had occasion to stop his horses to release the reins from a tangle into which they had got around the pole of the waggon. He had arranged these and was about taking his seat in the vehicle when a youth, drawing a buggy through a gateway close by, frightened the spirited team, and they ran away, Boyce being knocked down and injured by a violent blow from the wheel in the back of the neck. He leaves a large family of small and comparatively helpless children.

—Another sad case of death from exhaustion has occurred. On Sunday last Francis Amey, a farmer rowed across Loboro Lake, beside which he lived, and yesterday morning his body was found on the opposite shore, lying between two logs where he had lain or fallen and died, it is presumed from exhaustion, as that is the only cause which could be assigned for his sudden demise. His whereabouts was unknown, and the intervening time of his absence was occupied in a vigorous search for him, which ended in the discovery of his remains four days after he was missed. He was hale and hearty when last seen, and the general inference to be taken from the circumstance seems to justify the belief that death was hastened and produced by over exertion. He has a family, but his children are all grown up and well to do. Dr. Dunlop is to day holding an enquiry into the case.

MARINE.—The str. Corsican arrived here in tow of Messrs. Calvin & Breck's steamers Chieftain and Hiram A. Calvin last evening, about 9.30 o'clock. It was the intention to have her hauled out on the Marine Railway at Portsmouth, at which place a stoppage was made for this purpose, but on closer examination it was found to be a difficult task, if not an impossibility, the carriage not being large enough for a boat of the Corsican's size. Arrangements were then made to convey her to Ogdensburg, for which place a start was made about 6:30 o'clock this morning, the Corsican being buoyed up between the tugs, while the pumps were kept continuously in operation. The accident in the first place and the wrecking operations in the second place have been the means of disfiguring and damaging the fine steamer to a large extent. Just what damage her hull has sustained cannot be definitely ascertained until she is hauled out and minutely examined. The leakage was large enough to keep three pumps constantly going. However, the Company is fortunate in having her removed as safely as she has been with all her damage. The prop. Scotia, bound down, is the only boat calling since yesterday.

WHAT'S IN A NAME!—An exchange says "Sergeant Bates, the sweet flag bearer, is called Sergeant Bete Noir down South." We can't think of half the nice names applied to this soldier with the big feet and flightly notions, but we remember reading some contemporary remarks which seemed to us to have a murderous tone. They had not what we should consider a friendly jingle about them. Yesterday afternoon it was rumoured the patriotic Sergeant had landed here and put up at the Albion Hotel, where he was prepared to receive visitors and expound the minutes of his long cherished and great national policy. Our reporter took a run up only to find the rumour unfounded, and for the fourth time during the past week the conclusion was forced upon us that some unfortunate accident had befallen the man and his flag. If those western bohemians don't clear up the mystery of his whereabouts the suspicions will gain ground that they foully made away with him, and that kind of work simply wont do in such miserable times for local items.

POLICE COURT.

Oh wurra! wurra! wurra! wailed Mrs. McFadden as she wrung her hands in a most sorrowful fashion and appealingly eyed the P.M. as he prepared for the sacrifice, and at the first sight it really seemed as if everything was going with the good lady, her briny tears and beseeching glances to the contrary, notwithstanding. Mrs. McFadden is usually a quiet woman; but now and then she will get into trouble despite all the loving advice of her neighbours and the dictates of a whole household of law. She had a grudge against Mary Flannery for some time and it seemed that yesterday she had to let her passion take a fling, and although as sober as a judge when her liege lord left for business at three o'clock we find her at three o'clock outside of Flannery's window blessing the whole family and causing up their record from their earliest history—of some of them before they were really born.

The P.M.—Taken to abusing people. Who would thinke it?

The Sergt.-Major—I did. I thought unless there was a change of wind she would be running ashore some of these beautiful mornings.

The P.M.—I didn't ask what you thought, because I know your thoughts are galloping pell-mell continually, and I think unless you have a change of wind soon, you'll be running upon a rock that'll smash something.

The Sergeant-Major smiled and the P.M. good naturedly wiped his glasses and asked what's to be done?

The Sergt.-Major suggested a lenient sentence, inasmuch as the woman, he said, did not intend to offend anyone, but she had a temper that can't be managed when any one interrupted her meditations.

The P.M. said it was all very well to be light, but women shouldn't have tongues of that description. Business is business. One dollar and costs. And the wurra, wurra, wurra, was repeated and sung by the talkative lady as she passed from view.

Bill Snooks, with a little round face and contented expression of countenance, said nothing when escorted in. He evidently felt as happy as a clam. His rolling eye conveyed the impression that they might do their level best; he didn't care a cent. The P.M. failed to make him excited when he pronounced the fatal $2 fine. He merely gave the cut of tobacco a fresh turn in his mouth and grinned as he unrolled a small package of greenbacks and handed the Sergt.-Major a bill with a ragged edge.

The Sergt-Major—Change this.

Bill—No. If you don't take that you'll get no fine.

The P.M.—No sauce. We do a legitimate banking business, and it wont be well for the man who attempts a fraudulent trick. We take Canadian currency here.

Bill—Why didn't you say so at first.

Matilda Marchanks, you want correction I fancy; you have a respectable look about, but from what I hear you are not to be trusted around where there is anything loose and handy, said the P.M.

Matilda—I never stole.

Hinde—You did.

Matilda—I didn't.

Hinde—I say you did.

Matilda—And I say I didn't.

The P.M.—And a good reason why. You were willing enough, dear knows, and if you didn't make away with something valuable you are not to blame.

Matilda—No, sir, bless the Lord. I'm innocent.

The P.M.—Tell it not in Gath. Villainy is in you and if I mistake not it may not be long until you make some one as light in the pocket as you are in the head. Take the benefit of the doubt, and go. Au revoir.

Matilda—Eh?

The Sergt.-Major—All rivers. Get out.

John Hanley, weak and weary, said he was in a hurry to go. He was second mate on a vessel which had been wrecked up somewhere—his brain was in too much of a whirl then to tell where—and in the grand scuffle for life and liberty he and his comrades had suffered badly, and when he reached Kingston he had taken a pull at the flowing bowl, and went under—the table, where he dreamed a fearful dream, in his sleep fancying he was going through his trials a second time, each fresh thought being accompanied by a howl so lonely and wickedly given that the inmates of the house thought she had better call in Grey to rouse him. They woke him up in lively fashion, and poor John had no more dreams or attacks of the nightmare.

The P.M.—You should know better than kick up such a dust in a stranger's house.

John commenced a review of the whole circumstances, which the P.M. must have disbelieved, as he said: I have heard yarns spun in like manner and by such fellows as you before. Your wonderful exploits seem to be manufactured for the occasion.

John—Oh sir, I speak the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

The P.M.—That's me. I suppose you saved your band box from the wreck, $2.

Dora Dean, whom all pronounced as pretty as a picture, and as bashful as a lover, was in a peculiar mood—

Glad, yet fearful—gay, yet sober;
So! her hands shut out the light,
Till underneath the tiny shadow,
Gleam the eyes so blue and bright.

She was not a criminal in the ordinary sense of the term, but she did something which brought her under the purview of the court—she slapped Lucy Fletcher in the eye. Her face hidden behind her white little hand, blushed as the P.M. addressed her, and as he proceeded to counsel her, spicing his remarks with an occasional unkind cut, she burst into tears and "wept the weep of penitence." Then she was sent home, and as that concluded the programme the Sergt.-Major descended to the station where he found Grey peacefully reposing in the arm chair. He passed across the station, and in an instant he struck a very happy thought.

"What's on your coat, Grey? Then the officer rose to examine his clothes, when down flopped the S. M. into the chair, and assuming an air and expression of countenance that would cure a man with the heart ache, while Grey, crestfallen and chagrined by the sell, hunted up the next softest seat about the place.

Several cabmen were summoned for leaving their horses unattended at the Grand Trunk Station to solicit passengers, contrary to by law. They were not prosecuted and punished, as they promised not to do so no more."

Charley Taylor disturbed the neighborhood around the Tete du Pont barracks rather muchly for his own benefit. He is minus a $5 bill this morning.

THE DAVISES.—It is said, on good authority, that neither of the Davises will be executed; that the Dominion Government, while it will not seek to abolish capital punishment, will not carry it into effect in any case; and that the Minister of Justice is of opinion that procuring abortion is an exceptional capital offence, inasmuch as the public at large is in a measure responsible for the acts of the criminals in allowing them to ply their trade publicly, and that their victims are also responsible in wilfully and knowingly putting themselves into the hands of such people.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL and COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful selection of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame.—Civil Services Gazette. Made simply with Boiling Water or Milk.—Sold only in packets, labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, 48, Threadneedle street, and 170, Piccadilly, Works, Euston Road and Camden Town, London."
