We find it reported in an account of a lecture recently delivered on tobacco that "the lecturer thought no one could be a "consistent Christian and persist in the "use of tobacco." That is very hard on a number of supposed godly men who indulge in the weed, and it is a great deal harder on those ministers of the gospel who worship at the shrine of the smoky goddess. It would seem, be it said in proper humility, to be a rather straight-laced religious code which would exclude a man from the Kingdom of Heaven for taking a whiff at his "halfpenorth of clay," and consign him to quarters where the worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched. However, everyone has his own ideas of "consistent Christianity," and, if any one thinks it necessary for his salvation to eschew the weed and cross himself at the sight of a plug of tobacco, this is a free country.

The Hamilton News thus neatly disposes of the trumpery boastings of the Bowmanville paper, which has taken the contract to smash the Reform Party to smithereens before one can pronounce the name of the member-elect for West Toronto. "If the Durham News," says our contemporary, "is really anxious for a libel suit in which to produce proof of "the truth of its charge, it has only to "take one more step. Let it say who "they were who sold their votes. We "doubt very much that the law would "hold it libellous to charge a man with "buying votes, for the Tory Ministers did "that for a quarter of a century; but to "charge a member of Parliament with "having sold his vote for money ought to "be enough to ground a suit upon. The "great Durham charger has been charging loosely long enough; let him now "come to something definite." Let us have the names; and if they are forthcoming, which they will not be, we venture to predict, we may have something to say about something similar which it will not be to the advantage of our Conservative friends to hear about.

A general feeling of thankfulness will pervade the country that Guibord has been buried in peace and quietness, and that Canada has been saved the shame and disgrace that was at one time anticipated in connection with the final disposition of the excommunicated remains. The announcement which we were able to make in our last issue of the utter lack of disorder at the burial will, in the words of a contemporary, "be received with "genuine thankfulness, for it has lifted a "cloud of doubt which was oppressing "some minds whether or not in this "country the Queen and the law were to "be upheld. Mob law has been trampled "under foot in both Provinces and justice "vindicated. As for the act of burial, "per se, the public has nothing to do with "it, it being a matter for others to dispose of if it be objectionable. There is "no doubt but the assistance of the "Bishop of Montreal was a most valuable "adjunct, for he and the magistracy took "pains to let it be known that the funeral "must not be interfered with. And so, "after being six years above ground, "Guibord at last reposes in the embrace "of Mother Earth, and in the grave he "himself purchased for that purpose."

COLONIZATION RAILROAD AID.

We observe by the Globe that it is the intention of the promoters of the Pacific Junction Railway, which is another name for the extension of the Northern Railway to the Pacific, intend to apply to the Ontario Government for aid to its construction, the application receiving the support of that journal. Without disputing the claims of the Pacific Junction, we submit that, on analogous grounds to those urged to back up its application, the claims of the Kingston & Pembroke Railway on the Provincial treasury are equally strong from a public point of view. It is urged on behalf of the Pacific function that it is entitled to such aid because it will be a colonizing road, opening up the intervening territory to settlement, and on that ground it is fairly entitled to public assistance. But the Kingston & Pembroke RR. can present precisely similar claims, or even stronger ones. It will open up the country to settlement, tap the Mississippi, Madawaska and other lumbering rivers, thereby assisting to develop a large timber trade, not to speak of opening up the as yet almost untouched but vast mineral wealth of the district. It is also entitled to be called a Pacific Junction Railway, and is, it is believed, the shortest and most direct route from French River to Kingston, the foot of Lake Ontario, running powers over the Canada Central and Pacific being held by it under Legislative authority. No better use could be made of public moneys than in further assisting such roads as the Northern Extension and the Kingston and Pembroke RR., which will do so much to develop the back country besides tapping the Canada Pacific and thus securing for Ontario its legimate share of the traffic which will pass over that trans-continental highway. In any scheme which regards the welfare of the Province at large we submit that the claims of the Kingston & Pembroke RR. cannot be overlooked.

SOMEWHAT INCONSISTENT.

Our contemporary, the Kingston Daily News, which discusses public questions in a way that most Macdonaldites are strangers to, has had its head turned by the charge of the Durham bull on Senator Simpson and in its dissembled eagerness to find him guilty allows itself to be betrayed into a grave inconsistency. Speaking of Mr. Simpson's denial of ever having, as charged, purchased a vote in his life, the News says:—

"It will now be the duty of our Bowmanville contemporary to clear the matter up—to furnish the evidence in its possession which justified it in making a charge of so serious a character against Mr. Simpson."

That is quite reasonable; the prosecutor must marshal his proof, and until the proof is given the accused is entitled to be regarded as innocent. But the Bowmanville organ, it seems, denies Mr. Simpson's denial and thereupon the News proceeds to observe:

"Mr. Simpson has now a first class opportunity to vindicate himself in a Court of Justice. The West Durham News is evidently prepared for such an event and courts the fullest enquiry. We shall wait with some interest to see what Mr. Simpson will do."

A few lines above, our contemporary said that Mr. Simpson was not called on to do anything but that the burden of proof laid on his accuser; in the next breath it asks him to vindicate himself in a Court of Justice! Our contemporary has forgotten its logic in its haste to find Mr. Simpson guilty. Surely it does not hold that every time a charge is made against a public man he is to be set down as guilty unless he lays his libeller into court and establishes the falsity of the charge. Let us see how that would work from the Conservative standpoint. Suppose that an obscure Reform print called, say the Durham Mustard, accused Sir John Macdonald of buying votes of M.P's. with Secret Service money. Would it be reasonable to hold Sir John guilty until he sued the paper for libel and in court established the falsity of the accusation? Let our Bowmanville contemporary formulate its charge in distinct terms, give the names of the alleged purchased ones and all other information it boasts about and then the matter will be fairly before the court of Public Opinion. Until then a flat denial is all the attention such a charge deserves.

CANADIAN TELEGRAMS.

FROM OTTAWA.

DISBANDED—PHILADELPHIA CENTENNIAL—RATES—SHIPPING.

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—No. 7 Company of "Carlton Blazers," Capt. Scott, was to-day disbanded.

The Canadian Centennial Commission is in session.

At a meeting of lumbermen held yesterday, it was decided to send a collection of Canadian lumber to the Philadelphia Centennial.

A man named Joseph Deault was cruelly beaten last night by roughs. His head was seriously cut and three of his fingers bitten off.

Two thousand barrels of oatmeal were shipped from this city to-day for Liverpool markets.

FROM MONTREAL.

THE CEMETERY—THE GUIBORD FUNERAL—THE FUSS OVER.

Montreal, Nov. 17.—The cemetery authorities intend putting a stone wall around Guibord's burial lot to shut it out from the rest of the cemetery.

Two young roughs, who were drunk at the cemetery and showing revolvers, were arrested to-day and fined $5 each.

The evening before the parade the volunteers received the greatest precautions about conducting themselves about the firing, &c. They imagined that they would see some excitement, and were very particular about getting rifles that were not rusty, and in examining sighting, &c, to make sure that it was all right before they started. But most of them were disagreeably surprised at not even catching a glimpse of the hearse. The only intimation of the affair they received was from civilians who had witnessed the burial.

FROM TORONTO.

IMPORTANT QUESTION—THEFT.

Toronto, Nov. 17.—A special to the Globe says the question has been raised whether Mr. Jenkins, M.P. for Dundee, is disqualified to sit in Parliament on account of his being Agent-General. The Colonial Office considers that he is not disqualified.

John Jones was arrested this morning for stealing six overcoats from Osgoode Hall.

MR. GAGE'S STORE.—It was opened on Saturday last, and since then has been an object of much attention. There are many larger stores and heavier stocks, but no tastier or neater place of business in the Province, and no prettier display of goods in its particular line, and we say this considerately and after due reflection. The store has been enlarged as well as remodelled, and is now both wider and longer than before. The floor has been lowered, and made an attractive feature by the arrangement of colored wood, light and dark planking of equal width, making an effect that takes the eye immediately upon entering. The counters and other furnishing is composed of ash, walnut and oak, the combination and finish of which is seen to excellent advantage, especially so since the addition of the handsome show cases, imported from Toronto, the manufacture of Mellechamp, celebrated for his wares. The shop fixtures and ornaments seem to have been chosen with artistic taste, and as a result the premises are well worthy of the admiration so lavishly bestowed upon them. The architect, Mr. R. Gage, and the carpenter, Mr. Irving, did their work most creditably. The stock is valuable and elegant, and includes watches, jewellery, plated ware, gilt, bronze and marble clocks, statuettes, bronze figures, etc., of latest and novel design. Mr. Gage has fitted up a workshop with the facilities for doing all kinds of repairing promptly and well; while he is prepared to do manufacturing of jewellery, &c., with despatch and style. His pretty window is only an index of what may be seen inside.

RAILWAY SCHEME.

A telegram from Perth, under yesterday's date, states:

"Mr. Fowler, Managing Director of the Huron & Quebec Railway, is here getting petitions signed by the ratepayers of seven municipalities for the purpose of getting a grouped by-law granting a bonus to the company of $125,000, the road to run from Carleton Place by way of Perth, to connect with the Kingston and Pembroke road in the township of Oso. This by-law will undoubtedly pass. The town of Perth some time ago passed a by-law for $100,000, which will make $225,000 from the County of Lanark. When built from Carleton Place to the junction with the Kingston and Pembroke railway, this road will make direct communication with Ottawa and the West much shorter than by any other route.

"TIME TO STOP."

Editor Whig:—When I come to consider the number of notices which you have published gratuitously, some prejudicial to, and some laudatory of, my varied traits or characteristics, I think it is time to give you a friendly warning to cease taking further liberties with the name of one whose ambition is less than to require such bewildering comments upon his talents, whose desire is not so warm as to aspire to the lofty position of being lauded by your paper. If you seem to think that you, as a newspaper man, can libel whom you please, I think it is high time that such a fanatic hallucination were put to flight even as the stars disappear before old Sol's refulgent beams. I pray you, sir, that if you do not respect my feelings, you will at least have some mercy on my poor parents, who are considerably annoyed at the daily paragraph which for weeks past has appeared anent me and my eccentricities. Such a state of things must cease. I cannot allow my mother's nerves to be continually overstrung by your ill-advised notes and reflections. I do not aspire to a distinction which comes through the columns of an organ in whose political principles I am (young and eccentric (!)) decidedly at variance. In the name of Providence do stop your periodical productions on me. I am a peaceful young man of high moral rules and would sacrifice a good deal—have forborne a great many slanders—to preserve peace. I have the same maxim as the ancient who replied to a criticism on his personal reputation "that if true I should mend my ways; if false it cannot injure me."

On my bended knees then I ask, entreat, request, pray and earnestly beseech you "to reject not this bill" of exceptions to your reportorial routine, but let the name of Edward Florence Mahon remain unnoticed in the future in every particular; let his be

"A gem of purest ray serene, which
The dark unfathomed caves of ocean bear,
A flower that's born to blush unseen,
And waste its sweetness in the desert air."

You can take your irons off the stove. I would have many other legal, moral means of paying you in your own coin if I so chose, but the spirit of revenge is one which is ever foreign to an Irish Catholic heart and to none more so than to mine.

I have been abused by the Liberal organs long enough. I have been handled in a rougher manner by the leading Conservative journals. As a natural consequence I shall pause once before my sympathies are enlisted under the banner of a party "whose hopes have withered never again to burst into blossom," and I shall still further pause before I will even by my taciturnity sanction the policy of an Administration whose financial policy, whose Pacific Railway policy, whose Manitoba policy, whose Amnesty policy, whose British Columbia policy, whose Supreme Court, Insolvency, and fiscal policy, whose general School Question policies have each severally and respectively been pronounced by a leading statesman to be nothing less than decided and unqualified failures. I cannot listen to a Prime Minister, who, out of office, in the presence of Ontario electors, says he will submit all Government contracts for the approval of Parliament, and who in Parliament before the Convention of Canadian members solemnly denies the "soft impeachment."

I cannot conscientiously give my unqualified adherence to the wild goose schemes (the production of a mentally aberrated Minister of Justice) to his projects for compulsory voting than which no more fanatical scheme ever was contemplated by any political minister. I am opposed to the Liquor question. I shall by one vote declare myself against a "Prohibitory Liquor Law," the effect of which would be to lose to the country a large revenue—close up those stopping place which are so useful for the accommodation of the travelling public, and encourage illicit distilling and home manufacture of ale and other fermented beverages, an evil decidedly worse than the former.

I cannot, in fro conscienciæ approve of a ministry the acme of distinction in which seems to be that to be a Scotchman is the surest guide to the wooden sack. I am therefore a Canada First man; but I digress. Please discontinue your notices and you will oblige one who has been, is, and shall continue to be

Yours very truly,
EDWARD FLORENCE MAHON.

 As we had shut off two days ago on notices of the ubiquitous and irrepressible, for the most brilliant subject will play out fast, we have little difficulty in acceding to Mr. Mahon's touching appeal. We shall in the future, in fullest generosity and noble self sacrificing, consider his feelings as sensitively as we do our own.

LAST NIGHT'S NEWS.

—There will be less distress in Newfoundland during the coming winter than anticipated.

—The official returns of the late election East Northumberland give Ferguson 1,709 and Cochrane 1,549 votes—a majority for the former of 160.

—The sailors of the Canadian ship Lennie, suspected of murdering the ship's officers, will be sent to England. The testimony showing that the crime was committed on British waters.

—There was a long debate in the Quebec Legislature on the question whether election trials should proceed or not during the sitting of the House. The general opinion was that no constituency should be unrepresented, that the Province should not be deprived of the full number of members when the House was in session.

"WEDDIN' TOWER."—A lot of family men recently sailed through town on their honeymoon excursions, and singular to say but one party has been heard from. The case is so delicately situated, however, that we feel inclined to pass it by with a sigh. did it not contain a useful moral. At Cape Vincent the ever anxious mother-in-law requested the newly harnessed married men to bring up a pail of water in which to bathe her feet for the "rheumatiz." He went down stairs, but meeting one whom he recognized as the chap who jumped the bounty with him, they "smiled"—at the bar—and the rheumatic old lady was forgotten. We have no complete record of the scene which transpired at a later hour; but we understand that there was such a big flare-up that all parties unanimously decreed that the "weddin' tower" should come to an end. Queer music is now said to heard in a house on Queen Street every evening.

RIDEAU WARD.—Mr. John McIntyre is a candidate for re-election as Alderman, and the electors of Rideau Ward will do well to return again one who works so much in their interest, and whose usefulness in the City Council is far above the average. To be only a bachelor he succeeds very well as a city father.

THE "DAILY NEWS" AND THE R.C.P.S.K.

Sir,—It is a common saying that "the fair thing is the pretty thing," and there is doubtless more truth than poetry in it, but the "News" man seems to have forgotten this in the anxiety he manifested last night to have a fling at an institution of which Kingston is proud.

Having suddenly woke up to the importance of making "medical appointments" from a "broad basis" to fill up the vacancy in the Kingston General Hospital caused by the death of Dr. O. Yates, he says it is not "reasonable to suppose that all the faculties are centred in the R.C.P.S.K."

He need not have swelled out quite so large, for nobody is asked to suppose this, but we think that any reasonable Kingstonian supposes that there is faculty enough in it to attend to all the duties required at the Hospital, for a few years more at least.

The "News" is, moreover, growing quite susceptible on the point of nationality, and cries out in its zeal for Kingston's honor, "Let it never be said in Kingston that because a professional man is an Englishman and a member of an ancient and dignified College that he is to be ostracised on that account."

Probably the hideous phantoms formerly raised in the mind of the "News" man by the terror of "Scotch Grits" has scarcely subsided yet, and this accounts for his susceptibility on points of nationality.

Be that as it may, we cannot perceive that Dr. Evans has been "ostracised," or that his claims have been overlooked any more than those of several other medical men, for he has been (and is yet we suppose) the Surgeon of the Military School in this city; a situation which brings him some compensation, whereas his appointment to the Hospital, in reference to which the "News" has delivered itself as above, would bring him nothing and prove a large tax on his time.

In regard to the "educational" appointments, we cannot say whether his claims have been overlooked or not, for we do not know whether he has ever applied for such a position.

We presume that Dr. Evans would fill any position well enough, but as there are not sufficient positions of appointment to give every medical man a place, the lot must of course fall upon those who from circumstances are the most appropriate. Such is the case in regard to the medical officers of the Hospital. While there is a medical school in Kingston, and it is necessary to have a hospital attached to it for purposes of teaching, it is certainly "reasonable" that the Professors in the School are the most proper medical officers of the Hospital, providing they are willing to do the work, and we do think it would not be reasonable" to appoint an outsider to the position, who has no interest in either the one or the other institution.

The Professors have hitherto done the duties of the Hospital, and are still willing to do them, not on account of any remuneration, dignity or honor which it brings to them, but for the sole purpose of maintaining a more intimate union between the lecture room teaching and the bed side teaching, which every student must have, and of strengthening that oneness of interest that should subsist between a Hospital and a Medical School.

Were the Professors incompetent to perform the duties of the Hospital or of the College either we might pass over unnoticed the sneer of the "News" at the R.C.P.S.K., but when a newspaper so far forgets its duties as to cast a slur upon a college situated in its own city, which has for years turned out students equal, if not superior, to any in the Dominion, and who when they have attempted have never failed to pass the examinations and obtain the membership of that "ancient and dignified College" to which it refers, we think it proper that some notice should be taken of its sayings.

The "News" should not forget either that the R.C.P.S.K. has been maintained for the honor of Kingston by a heavy struggle, through some years of adversity, by the men who are yet connected with it, some of whom have made great sacrifices for its maintenance and success. Success now crowns it, and the people of Kingston are not so dull of apprehension that they cannot see that those who have made the Medical School of Kingston to be respected throughout the country are capable of running both it and the Hospital; in other words, that there are faculties enough yet "centred in the R.C.P.S.K." to perform all its necessary functions, and to be useful and honorable to the city in which it is situated. Honor to whom honor is due. Honi soit qui mal y pense.

R.C.P.S.K.

Kingston, Nov. 16.

BREVITIES.

—Eastern men are trying to secure the election of Mr. Doroche, of Addington, to the Speakers' chair in the Legislative Assembly.

—"The more a man has the more he wants." This may be true enough on general principles, but it don't apply to either poor relations or boils.

—We don't know that it was the epizootic that afflicted him; but he said, with some violence, "If that nose was running for office it would be elected by a handsome majority."

—The tramp will receive a warm welcome on the other side. They want him to work on the public highways. Let this programme be generally adopted, and all a man will have to do to get work will be to go a way from home.

—Says the Perth Courier: The amount on the Kingston & Pembroke Railway during the past month has far exceeded expectations. A large quantity of iron ore is destined to pass over this line as freight, and the company is building a branch to the Glendower mine, a distance of some three miles from the main track.

—The schooner "Mary Foster" is ashore on South Bay. The "Foster" is a small schooner of 3,200 bushels capacity. She was rebuilt this season. The mate and one of her crew arrived at Belleville yesterday, and report the vessel in a bad condition, her bulwarks being smashed on one side, and the cargo badly wetted. The vessel may be saved, but the cargo will be a total loss. The vessel is not insured; her value is about $2,500. The cargo is insured.
