Some of the Testimonials
From Dr Duncan McCallum, Montreal:
I, the undersigned, have been suffering very much for the last two years from Rheumatism in the ankle joint, so much so that I was often prevented from attending to my calling, but three applications of Dr Birnbaum's Rheumatism and Gout Remedy gave me that relief from pain and stiffness which I did not experience for the last two years, and after eight days use of this remedy I find myself entirely cured.
I owe this statement to the public, to the profession and to the merits of the genuine article. DUNCAN McCALLUM, M.D.
From Dr Munro, Prof Victoria University, Montreal:
From the trials I made in my practice with Dr Birnbaum's Rheumatism and Gout Remedy and from what I know about its composition, am convinced that its use will be highly beneficial for all the different purposes for which it is designed, even in such cases where internal medical treatment is required. It is well worthy the confidence of the profession and I can strongly recommend it to the public, it being prompt, active and efficacious in exterminating pains and swellings.

SATURDAY EVEN'G, NOV. 20, 1875.

AT FORTY.

The sun of life has crossed the line,
The summer shine of lengthened light
Faded and failed—till, where I stand,
'Tis equal day and equal night.

One after one, as dwindling hours,
Youth's glowing hopes have dropped away
And soon may barely leave the gleam
That coldly scores a winter's day.

I am not young, I am not old;
The flush of morn, the sunset calm,
Paling and deepening, each to each,
Meet midway with a solemn charm.

One side I see the summer fields,
Not yet disrobed of all their green;
While westerly, along the hills,
Flame the first tints of frosty sheen.

Ah! middle point, where clouds and storm
Make battle-ground of this my life!
Where, even matched, the night and day
Wage round me their disheartening strife

I bow me to the threatening gale;
I know, when that is overpast,
Among the peaceful harvest days,
An Indian summer comes at last.

Auld Lang Syne.

'So you are here again, Sarah Monroe!' hailed his honor as the next prisoner appeared—a woman who has been at the station twenty times a year.

'Sarah Monroe!' she repeated; 'no sir—my name is Mrs. Johnson, and I live in Toledo.'

'Pooh—pooh! Haven't I seen you here a score of times, Sarah?'

'No sir, I never was in the city till last week.'

'Git out! I'd know that nose of yours if I was to meet it in Delaware and the train was running sixty miles an hour; you were intoxcated again last night!'

'I know now where your mistake is,' she said, smiling blandly,' don't you remember that I knew you when you were a boy about so high.'

'No, madam.'

'Well I did. Don't you remember how we used to wade in the creek, swing on the gate and go berrying!'

'No, Madam.'

'You don't! Why it seems hardly a month ago since we rode down hill and you helped me build play houses. Ah! Judge, don't you wish we were young again!'

'Mrs. Monroe, you can't play that on me. What about this charge?'

'And you were such a sweet child,' she continued—'had such tender ways with you! Ah! I'd give you four dollars to be a little girl again and you draw me round in a wheel barrow, as you used to!'

'And I'll give you six months, Mrs. Monroe, and if Bijah doesn't stop grinning I'll take care of him as well!'

'You'll send me up.'

'Yes.'

'An old childhood friend?'

'The same.'

'And didn't I use to say you'd come to the gallows!' she sighed as she re-entered the corridor.

Why Jenks never Married.

'I think a woman a tremendous being,' Said Jenks. "When she's right, she's the rightest thing that floats. When she's wrong, she's the biggest nuisance that blows the sea, even if she is little and don't draw two feet of water. Perhaps it isn't just the thing to say to a boy like you, but you'll never speak of it if I should tell you little something?'

"Oh, never," I assured him.

"Well, I suppose I might have been a married man," and Jenks avoided my eyes by pretending to discover a horse-shoe in the road.

"You don't say so?" I exclaimed in undisguised astonishment, for it had never occurred to me that such a man as Jenks could ever marry.

'Yes, I waited on a girl once.'

'Was she beautiful?' I enquired.

'Well, should say fair to middling,' responded Jenks, pursing his lips as if determined to render a candid judgement. 'Fair to middling, barring a few freckles.'

'But you didn't leave her on account of her freckles?' I asked.

'No, I didn't leave her on account of her freckles; she was a good girl, and I waited on her. It don't seem possible now that I ever really waited on a girl, but I did.'

'Why didn't you marry her!' I enquired warmly.

'It wasn't her fault,' said Jenks. 'She was a good girl.'

Then why didn't you marry?' I insisted.

'Well, there was another fellow got to hanging round and—you know how such things go. I was busy and—didn't tend up very well, I s'pose—she got tired waiting for me—or something—and the fellow married her, but I've never blamed her. She's been sorry enough, I guess.'

THAT BURIAL.—The insults cast at the volunteers by the Nouveau Monde are referred to by the Bien Public, as follows:—"It is known that from a religious as well as civil or legal point of view the soldiers or militiamen must obey the orders of the authorties, but the Nouveau Monde, which is always riding the high horse of principle casts insults and sarcasm at the volunteers, who, obeying orders, took arms to prevent a riot. According to its style of reasoning, the Toronto volunteers, who are all Protestants would have had the right to disobey the authorities, who commanded them to protest the Catholic procession. What a charming state of society it would be, where the guardians of the peace had a right to dispute opportuneness of authoritative orders and to act as seemed good to them. Suppose that to-morrow the printing office of the Nouveau Monde were threatened with sack and pillage by a furious mob, and that an armed force refused to march saying it could not protect a paper whose principles offended is, what would it say? We dare not repeat it, lest we should frighten our readers. Nevertheless, our confrere, after the odious manner in which he has treated those who have fulfilled their duty, would have no right to complain.

ODE TO AUTUMN.—The grasshopper creaks in the learly gloom. And the bumble bee bumbleth the live-long day. But where have they gone with the bran new broom? And what has been done to the buzz saw's play?

Oh, its little he thinks of the cold mince pie, And its little he seeks of the raw ice cream; For, dying year with its tremulous sigh Shall walk the lingering loon from his dream.

Oh, list! For the cricket, now far and near, Shrillfully singeth his roundely, And the neligent noodle his noisy cheer, And where the doodlebug eats his hay.

Oh, the buzz saw so busily buzzest he stick. And bumbling the bumble bee bumbleth his tune; While the cricket crickets crickingly down at the creek. And the noodle calls noisely out, "It is noon!"

The dog fennel sighs "She is here! she is here!" And the smart-weed says dreamily, 'Give us a rest!' The hopvine speaks tenderly, 'Give us a beer,' And the jimson-weed hollers, 'Oh, pull down your vest.'—Burlington Hawkeye.

BLEEDING FROM LUNGS, CATARRH, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION. A WONDERFUL CURE.—Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 13th, 1874. R. V. Pierce, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—I had suffered from Catarrh in an aggravated from for about twelve years and for several years from Bronchial trouble. Tried many doctors and things with no lasting benefit. In May, '72, becoming nearly worn out with excessive Editorial labors on a paper in New York City, I was attacked with Bronchitis in a severe from, suffering almost a total loss of voice. I returned home here, but has been home only two weeks when I was completely prostrated with Hemorrhage from the Lungs, having four severe bleeding spells within two weeks, the first three inside of nine days. In the September following, I improved sufficiently to be able to be about, though in a very feeble state. The Bronchial trouble remained and the Catarrh was tentold worse than before. Every effort for relief seemed fruitless. I seemed to be losing ground daily. I continued in this feeble state, raising blood almost daily until about the first of March, '73, when I became so bad as to be entirely confined to the house. A friend suggested your remedies. But I was extremely skeptical that they would do me good, as I had lost all heart in remedies, and began to look upon medicine and doctors with disgust. However, I obtained one of your circulars, and read it carefully, from which I came to the conclusion that you understood your business, at least. I finally obtained a quantity of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, your Golden Medical Discovery and Pellets, and commenced their vigorous use according to directions. To my surprise, I soon began to improve. The Discovery and Pellets, in a short time, brought out a severe eruption, which continued for several weeks. I felt much better, my appetite improved, and I gained in strength and flesh. In three months every vestige of the Catarrh was gone, the Bronchitis had nearly disappeared, had no Cough whatever and I had entirely ceased to raise blood; and, contrary to the expectation of some of my friends, the cure has remained permanent. I have had no more Hemorrhage from the Lungs, and am entirely free from Catarrh, from which I had suffered so much and so long. The debt of gratitude I owe for the blessing I have received at your hands, knows no bounds. I am thoroughly catisfied, from my experience, that your medicines will master the worst forms of that odious disease, Catarrh, as well as Throat and Lung Diseases. I have recommended them to very many and shall ever speak in their praise. Gratefully yours, Wm. H. Spencer.

No organ of thought or action can be employed without the assistance of the blood, and no organ can be employed safely or with impunity without a supply of healthy blood. With healthy blood the exercised organs become well developed, whether they be muscular or intellectual. By the use of Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites the blood is speedily vitalized and purified, and so made capable of producing a sound mind and a sound body. Persons suffering from impure blood, or whose health is giving away, either as ministers or those who study closely, will find the Syrup the material to build them up and the tonic to keep them there.
