There has been some demand for Oregon hops by domestic brewers lately, and they are quoted at 18c. in bond. The New York Journal of Commerce of yesterday says: A very strong tone is reported here and in the country markets as a result of conditions previously noted, but no fresh features came to the surface to-day. There is a very fair and gradually increasing demand from the brewers and an increasing export inquiry, which, however, has resulted in no important transactions since those reported earlier in the week.

ACTIONS CANNOT PROCEED

THE SUIT HAS BEEN ABANDONED AND DISMISSED.

What an English Decision Was—A Toronto Man Stands Accused of Conducting a Lottery—Case Being Heard.

Toronto, Jan. 30.—The suit of the Massey-Harris company against the Brantford branch of the iron moulders' union and the laborers' protective association has been abandoned and was formally dismissed this morning. The action was taken at the time of the moulders' strike to prevent them from interfering with the men engaged to take their places and especially prevent picketing. By a recent English decision it has been held that associations of workmen cannot be enjoined as associations and that actions brought against the unions for injunction cannot proceed.

The trial of Sidney Flynn, on a charge of conducting a lottery, was resumed at the police court this morning. Flynn, otherwise known as the Toronto publishing company, conceived the idea of giving prizes to would-be subscribers to his paper who first found "Kruger" in a jumble puzzle. He was promptly arrested and at the hearing to-day the magistrate said he had no doubt Flynn "had been disposing of property by chance." Flynn's defence is that his system was no more a lottery than that of a dry goods merchant who announces that the first twenty customers at his store will get special favors. The case was adjourned till Friday. Flynn's mail since his arrest has been enormous and thousands of people in Ontario must be interested in "finding Kruger."

KING CHARLES ARRIVES.

He Was Heartily Greeted on Arrival in London.

His majesty's equerry delivered an autograph message from king Edward to king Charles and the latter and his suite were immediately driven in royal carriages to Buckingham palace. King Charles was warmly greeted by the crowds which gathered along the route in anticipation of his arrival. There was no military escort. Later in the day king Edward visited king Charles.

The Case Dismissed.

The police court this morning presented the appearance of a flourishing junk-shop, containing as it did the boiler, tubing, different parts of an engine, etc., of a steamyacht, all lying around in an indiscriminate heap. The parts were in court as evidence against George Francisco, who was charged by his father, William Francisco, with their theft. A couple of hours of the court's valuable time were taken up in hearing evidence, after which the magistrate dismissed the case, but ordered that the machinery be kept in the police station. The affair is a family one and in the magistrate's opinion should not have been taken into court.

A SOLDIER BREED.

Canada Will be in the Very Front Line.

Ottawa Citizen.

Everybody who went out to the Transvaal brought back "lessons of the war"—many had enough lessons to fill a school book. The writer only brought back one of eminently importance—one which was confident from a somewhat extended previous knowledge of the Canadian as a soldier that he would learn. It was this: That here in this young northern country, quite without premeditation or obvious object, we have bred up, and are breeding up, soldier material equal to the best the world has ever seen. That sounds like big talk. But wait till the dust of this war clears away and the days of cool-headed sifting and analysis come. Or better still—for this was only a curtain raiser—wait till the next big war when Canada sends a division all her own. Then will be seen fighting. It is not good to boast but this is not a boast—merely an opinion. And with it is the hint that the next time Canadian troops take the field the wise men of the imperial army who have sifted the lessons of the war will expect much of Canada, and it rests with Canada to see that when the time comes her sons enter the imperial arena at least unhandicapped to meet the enlarged expectations which their first appearance will have aroused.

All the speakers were clever and interesting, the hall being full at both meetings.

He loved a pretty girl, but he was afraid she did not fancy him.

"I am fond of lobsters in every form," replied the dear girl.

"Oh," he ecstatically murmured, "then you bid me hope?"

THE RECORDER OF MONTREAL WOULD NOT TOLERATE IT.

The Men Elected to the Officery of the Montreal Board of Trade—The Premier Has Resigned the Presidency.

Lived Under Five Sovereigns.

Toronto Globe.

A Canadian lady born when George III. was king is Mrs. Muckleston, Kingston, who is now ninety-four years old, and has therefore lived under five British sovereigns. Mrs. Muckleston came to Canada at the age of twenty-four years, with her father, who was surgeon of the 43rd regiment in the British army, and after service during the Peninsular war received the appointment of inspector-general of military hospitals in Canada, and lived in Toronto.

Mrs. Muckleston is unusually active, attends church every Sunday, frequently goes to early communion, and takes a deep interest in all matters of the day. In a letter received from her by her niece, Mrs. Willoughby Cummings, this week she says, in speaking of the death of the queen: "I was much impressed with the queen's great satisfaction when she bought Osborne, as a home where she could make an improvement or supply a want without referring to the board of works. I think that was the the title for 'leave to do so.'"

Is Dancing A Fancy?

Chicago Chronicle.

One of the well known ballet trainers of the city in discussing the subject one day last week, said: "People will not dance at all within a very few years. You see, dancing is not meant to be distorted as it now is. To dance, one must be graceful, but to dance after the prevailing ball-room fashion, one must be very angular. In the first place, there is nothing to dance. People no longer waltz, and when they do waltz they do not waltz well, it is a kind of awkward whirling around, with no opportunity or design for a graceful movement. All that is graceful about the waltz of the past has been taken from it to please the hopper, who would prefer to whirl around on one toe, with no thought of dancing. How can one expect that it would be any different with this two-step turning every one's head? No one can think to dance well when all he dances from one month's end to another is the two-step. There is nothing graceful about that. You can't get any kind of training out of it. It is no dance. Did you ever analyze it?"

The Commands Arranged.

Lieut.-Col. Drury has been posted to the command of the local artillery brigade, comprising "A" and "B" batteries. Lieut.-Col. Hudon is to command "A" field battery, and Lieut.-Col. J. H. Ogilvie, "B" battery. It is expected that Lieut.-Col. Foges will return to Quebec to assume command of one of the garrison artillery companies there. "B" field battery is now comfortably located in artillery park barracks.

Entertained By Miss Maclachlan.

After the concert at the city hall last night, Miss Maclachlan entertained a number of Scotch gentlemen at the Frontenac. J. B. McKay, John Macdougall, J. C. Paterson, W. G. Craig and others were present. A happy time was spent, recitations, songs, and reminiscences of their native heather being given. Miss Maclachlan and Mr. Macdougall are natives of the same town in Scotland.

The Walkerville match company has been exonerated from all blame, as the result of the verdict rendered by the jury, in the deaths of William Brindle and G. R. S. Phillips. The company was not censured.
