

Man nearly arrested for swiping antique stamps at show

An Oakville Stamp Club stamp show, which was held at St. Paul's United Church on Saturday, saw more excitement than expected when a man was nearly arrested for stealing antique stamps.

At around 11:15 a.m., a participating stamp collector and another man were engaged in a transaction where the man purchased $75 worth of stamps from the collector.

Police said when the collector turned his back to gather some stamps, the man he had been dealing with allegedly selected a handful of stamps, valued at around $700, and concealed them inside a magazine.

The magazine was then placed in a briefcase. Police said a witness reported what had happened to the collector who confronted the man.

The man immediately admitted taking the stamps and returned them.

Police were called to the Rebecca Street church and initially arrested the man for theft under $5,000. Police said the man was remorseful and co-operative. The collector said he was not interested in charges being pressed.

The man was released with a warning.
