NEW KIND OF FOOD

Pasteur Institute Creating It From Inorganic Matter.

THE SCIENTISTS' TRIUMPH.

A FINE PLAN IN CASE OF A LONG SIEGE.

Discovery Said to be One of the Greatest Scientific Achievements of the Age—May in Time Threaten Manufacture of Ordinary Foodstuffs.

Paris, July 29.—The Pasteur institute here has just completed one of the greatest scientific achievements of the century in creating food from absolutely inorganic matter. This accomplishment has long been dreamed of, but most scientists have believed it to be one of nature's secrets which would never be learned. Although the tediousness and expense of the process does not yet threaten any competition in the manufacture of ordinary foodstuffs, still there is no reason why the perfected methods should not bring this about. It seems certain that in the event of a protracted siege in the future, of a city equipped with the necessary scientific apparatus, there will be no need of fear of starvation.

This idea of scientifically creating food without the aid of nature, arose from the discovery that meat treated with sulphuric acid resolved itself into a sugary substance which was not unlike common sugar. It was demonstrated that this material was assimilable from four simple bodies, carbon, hydrogen, nitrogen and oxygen. The experiment produced lime, paraffine and finally grease, artificially produced yet possessing all the nutritious qualities of the animal product.

Referring to the discovery Dr. Fr—, chief chemist of the Pasteur institute, said:

"I can state positively that from petroleum, for instance, and without the aid of organic matter nutritious grease can be produced in a laboratory. The only objection to the process is that it would require a year with an ultimate cost of $1,000 a pound, which, though disadvantageous from a commercial standpoint would be no insurmountable scientific obstacle.

Dr. Chas. —, an American who is here investigating the artificial food discovery for the Boston medical society, states today that in previous experiments along the same line partially organic matter was employed.

CUT A CORN, LOST A LEG.

Three Operations Have Been Performed on Edward Matthews.

New York, July 29.—As a result of cutting a corn with a razor, Edward Matthews, sixty-three, a Tammany politician, of No. 206 East Thirty-fourth street, has undergone three operations in Bellevue hospital. Each operation seemed to be successful.

Early in April Matthews cut the corn and two weeks later blood poisoning set in and he was taken to Bellevue. After an operation it was thought that Matthews would quickly recover. Three weeks later another operation was performed, the foot being cut off at the ankle. A month and a half later the leg was taken off at the knee.

Matthews was discharged from Bellevue yesterday and it is thought that he has entirely recovered.

Maclean's Dream.

Belleville Intelligencer.

The Picton Times man's vacation must be about due. Just listen to him: Thoughts concentrate reluctantly upon sordid duties these days of lazy heat and blue glazed skies when dreams of wide, undulating fields and cool, shady glens where the trees make uninterrupted their melliflous, chiding music and shy, wild beauty runs rampant in tangled masses of wild flower faces hang aiways like a beautiful cloud before the sight.

Robert Ingersoll's widow sues the Davis estate, Butte, Mont., for $95,000, the balance of an $100,000 fee promised provided the suit was won. Since a mistrial a compromise was effected, but Mr. Ingersoll received only $5,000 on account.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Coal Cut In Price.

Kingston, July 27. (To the Editor.) The following appeared in last night's issue from Ottawa:

"The suggestion to establish a municipal coal yard at Ottawa is having its effect. To-day there was a marked cut in the price of anthracite. Dealers have been asking $7 a ton all summer, but one of them has dropped the price to $5.25 for cash, and immediately delivery."

The above speaks for itself, in view of the cost of coal, which is as follows: Bought in April, $3.57, freight twenty-five cents; over dock, fifteen cents; delivery in city, twenty-five cents; net cost $4.22. What is the reason that Kingstonians cannot get their coal at a reasonable price? Is it not about time the workingman had some protection from coal rings?

WORKINGMAN.

Business College Notes.

C. H. Hadley, Sydenham, a graduate of the commercial and shorthand departments, has secured a position as book-keeper and stenographer for the Algoma Mercantile company, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

Alexander McDonald, a graduate, has a position as book-keeper with W. McFederidge, city.

Edward G. Adams, Westport, a graduate, leaves on Monday for Toronto, where he expects to secure a position as stenographer.

Arthur Savage, a graduate, who has a position with the Star hardware company, Toledo, Ohio, writes that he is meeting with success. He says there are many Canadians in Ohio doing well.

Harry Daly, Glenburnie, has completed a satisfactory course in the shorthand department and been awarded a diploma.

Miss M. Doyle has returned to complete a course in the commercial department.

The following students were successful in passing a creditable examination: Thomas Doyle, Miss C. Sheridan, Miss F. O'Neill and Miss N. Murphy.

The Amended Programme.

The programme sketched out at last night's meeting, called to arrange for the reception of the duke and duchess of York, was afterwards slightly altered. The amended programme, subject to revision, is as here given. Arrive at K. & P. railroad depot at 10 a.m.; reception by mayor, aldermen and citizens; address presented by mayor Kent; drive to St. George's cathedral, where the duke will unveil the tablet to memory of lord Sydenham, presented by Ontario government; drive to Queen's university, where corner stone of new arts' building will be laid and memorial trees planted; address from college authorities, conferring of honorary degree; drive through the city to Swift's wharf, where steamer Kingston will be boarded; returning, drive to Tete de Pont barracks, where medals will be presented to South African veterans; drive to Royal military college, where programme will be carried out; return to city and dine at residence of principal Grant. In the evening a reception will be held in the armories.

Horse Millinery Notes.

You can't judge a horse by the hat he wears.

Rooster feathers falling behind the left ear are popular for afternoon wear.

It is bad form to use a bonnet trimmed in red if your color is gray. Blue is far more becoming.

The aristocratic horse goes bare headed evenings, but his front hair must be carefully arranged.

The well bred horse will never allow his ears to wabble after his hat is adjusted, but will hold them firmly erect.

The height of the crown worn depends entirely upon the length of the ears. Mules wear plug hats.

Horses whose owners drive them when going golfing should never wear leghorn bonnets. Something in the way of a cap is best form.

Fancy straws are growing in favor, and three-ply tims are seen occasionally.

Ants Stop A Train.

An extraordinary experience fell to the lot of a through train to Perth, which left Albany, W.A. When travelling up an incline about 180 miles from Albany, between Wagin and Beverley, the wheels of the engine failed to grip the line, notwithstanding the customary application of sand, and the train was brought to a standstill. An investigation then revealed the fact that the metals for hundreds of yards were covered by millions upon millions of black ants. The tiny insects were evidently taking advantage of the smooth passage offered by the rails in an extensive trek in search of fresh fields and pastures new. The wheels of the engine crushed the ants, and thus greased the rails so that no purchase could be obtained. The sand jet cut from the engine failed to produce the usual result.

Nearly An Accident.

Sunday afternoon there came near being a fatality at the Grand Trunk railway crossing, corner of Ontario and Barrack streets. Two ladies and a child were driving into the city from Pittsburg township, and attempted to cross the tracks as the Grand Trunk suburban train was going out. Just as the horse got on the track the driver "lost her head" and stopped the animal. Engineer John Merrin, in charge of the locomotive, grasped the situation at a glance and brought the train to a standstill when it was almost upon the frightened women. The prompt action of engineer Merrin undoubtedly saved the lives of the three occupants of the rig.

A Strange Legacy.

Count Ouen, a French millionaire, has left a large sum of money to the city of Rouen, to be devoted to a curious use. The money will produce £1,000 annually, and the count directs that this sum is to be given to the best built and healthiest couple married in Rouen every year. The count was impressed at the increasing degeneracy of the French race, and hopes by means of this legacy to bring about a more healthy state of affairs.

You Are Not Sick

But Feel Miserable.

Nearly everybody seems to complain more or less at this season of the year. You feel the need of some tonic to put new strength and energy into the system. You don't sleep well, and suffer more or less from headache and dyspepsia. It may be you are depressed and discouraged, and feel the affairs of everyday life a burden. Little things worry and irritate you. You are not sick, but lack the vitality that is necessary for health and happiness.

There is one preparation which is doing wonders these days as a restorative and nerve invigorator, and that is Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It is different from any medicine you ever used, for instead of tearing down the tissues of the body it builds them up, and so thoroughly fills the system with new life and vigor as to overcome pains and aches, weaknesses and irregularities. It is surprising what a host of people are using this great food cure. A few weeks' trial will convince you of its singular merit.

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD.

50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Agents Wanted for Dr. Chase's Last and Complete Receipt Book and Household Physician.

REACHING A FINISH.

The Protocol Likely Signed Within Two Weeks.

Peking, July 23.—The ministers will be ready to sign a protocol within two weeks that will result in the speedy withdrawal from China of all foreign troops, except the legation guards and those who will occupy the certain strategic points to be held under the treaty to safeguard the road between Peking and the sea. The 450,000,000 taels, constituting the indemnity, are to be converted into gold, at the equivalent of the tael, value on the first of last April. In case the import dues are subsequently increased, the free list will have to be abolished, except for cereals, but it is understood that compensation will in that case be asked for, probably the financial participation of China in improving the water approaches of Shanghai and Tien Tsin.

An Object of Charity Leaves a Bank Book.

New York, July 29.—Mrs. Catherine Griffin, who for years had lived at Yonkers, largely a dependent upon charity, died yesterday in a wretched room she had occupied for the last ten years. She had received a pension of $21 every three months, but aside from this was not known to have any source of income. A sister, living in Brooklyn, Mrs. Brown, was notified. She went to the house. There she found a bank book on the Peoples saving bank, showing deposits amounting to $15,000. Besides Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Griffith left three sisters, Mrs. Bridget T. Leonard, of Albany, Mrs. Mary Carmady, of Schenectady, and Mrs. Ellen Kenny, of Ireland.

OLDEST MAN IN AMERICA.

And the Poor Old Chap is Dying From Measles.

New York, July 29.—Noah Raby, aged 129, said to be the oldest man in America, is dying from measles, after a relapse in the Piscataway township poorhouse, near Plainfield, N.J., where he has been an inmate for thirty one years. Though almost totally blind he was in full possession of his other faculties, and seemed to enjoy life. He smoked almost incessantly, and on pleasant days in the spring and summer he would grope his way about the door yard and mingle with the male inmates. His intellect was clear, and on nearly all subjects his mind was retentive.

NEW CUSTOMS TARIFF LAW.

Minimum Duties on Grain for Future Commercial Treaties.

Berlin, July 29.—The Reichzanzeiger publishes a draft of the new customs tariff law and the customs rates. The tariff bill stipulates that in any new commercial treaties entered into by Germany the duties shall not be lower than five marks on rye, five and a half marks on wheat, three marks on barley and five marks on oats.

The duties on grain, provisions and cattle are as published last week, and called from Berlin, with the exception of potatoes, which are exempt.

BRYAN SPEAKS UP.

Says Imperialism Is to Be the Great Issue.

Chicago, July 27.—While here William J. Bryan, going home after a long tour of the east and south, said: "Imperialism is still the great issue between the two political parties. The tariff, to be sure, is an important subject, but to my mind, heart disease is a more serious malady than stomach ache."

Remains Returned.

London, July 27.—The remains of King Edmund, the Martyr, the last king of the East Angles, who reigned from 855 to 870, have been returned to England, after being in France more than 700 years. They reached Arundel, last night, in charge of Mgr. Del Val, archbishop of Nicea, Asia Minor, and were placed in the private chapel of the duke of Norfolk, pending final burial in the shrine being prepared for their reception in the new Catholic cathedral in Westminster. The body, after burial at Hoxne, was again, buried at Bury St. Edmunds, whence it was carried off to France by Louis VII. Through the good offices and personal intervention of the pope the body is now returned to England.

Canadian Cheese At Buffalo.

Ottawa, July 27.—Prof. Ruddick, assistant dairy commissioner, has returned from Buffalo, and says that all of the fifty-six Canadian cheese shown in the dairy competition have received awards at the Pan-American exhibition. Ninety-four points was the lowest that counted for awards. The lowest mark among the Canadian exhibits was ninety-six.

In Memory Of Humbert.

Rome, July 29.—An elegant bronze tablet, the gift of New York Italians was presented to day to the king; under very impressive circumstances. To-day is the anniversary of the death of king Humbert and the tablet testifies the appreciation in which the dead monarch was held by Italian-Americans. The tablet will be placed in the Pantheon, near the tomb of Humbert.

English Naval Manoeuvres.

London, July 29.—One hundred and sixty-nine ships of the British navy are gathered in the channel to engage in manoeuvres beginning to-day and continuing throughout the week. During the manoeuvres the two main fleets will contend for the comment of the English channel.

POETICAL SELECTIONS

Jim's Sweetheart.

Minna Irving in Leslie's Weekly.

Mother put on her Sunday best,
Her blue wedding gown,
And white straw bonnet neatly tied
With string of faded brown.
We awoke before the roosters crowed
And started in the dew
To see the boat race, for our Jim
Was captain of the crew.

He took it in his burly head
To want a college course,
I carted with the pasture lot
And sold the sorrel horse.
We sent him every dollar saved,
And made a seedy pair
In garments that had long outlived
Their days of useful wear.

The surging throng closed up in front,
We could not see our son,
But soon a mighty cheer went up
And told us Jim had won.
The crowd took up the college yell
And sent it to the skies,
And college colors everywhere
Shook out their brilliant dyes.

We stepped ashore, looked up and saw
His mother's wrinkled face,
And hurried to her through the ranks
Of broadcloth, silk and lace.
He never gave a single glance
To all the pretty girls,
But kissed her on the withered lips,
And kissed her silver curls.

His ambient face was glorified
With proud and happy smiles;
He did not mind because her hat
Was worse behind the styles,
But led her out before his friends,
A figure quaint and prim
In stiff old-fashioned blue silk—
"My sweetheart," said Jim.

The Flowers With Wings.

New Orleans Picayune.

Such a lot of yellow buttercups all in a meadow grew
So many, many years ago, when all the world was new
And we used thought they'd be the happiest things with nothing else to do
But be cuddled up by father sun and fed by mother dew.

But I hate to say it wasn't so, for when the birds would fly
High up among the mighty trees that towered to the sky
They would watch them with such envy and lament and moue and sigh.
"Oh, dear, just see them skim along!
Oh, why can't you and I?"

Now the fairy of the flowers once was passing by that way
To nurse a little primrose that was sickly, so they say,
And she heard them all bewailing to a blackbird on a spray:
"Oh, won't you let us have your wings a little while to-day?"

So the kindly fairy listened, and they told her all their woe,
And she summoned all the fairy knights who's wings were white as snow,
And begged and borrowed, every one—they've several pairs, you know—
And put them on the buttercups, the poor things pleaded so.

Oh, high they flew, and low they flew, the old sun blinked his eyes;
The breezes came a-chasing them, all laughing with surprise,
And ever since that day when first they fluttered 'neath the skies
We've had the buttercups with wings and called them butterflies.

Helen.

Philadelphia Press.

Heaped in raven loops and masses
Over temples smooth and fair,
Have you marked it, as she passes,
Gleam and shadow are mingled there—
Braided strands of midnight air—
Helen's hair?

Deep with dreams and starry mazes
Of the thought that in them lies,
Have you seen them as she raises
Them in gladness or surprise—
Two gray gleams of daybreak skies—
Helen's eyes?

Moist with dew and honeyed wafters
Of a mirth sweet that slips,
Have you marked them, brimmed with laughter's
Song and sunshine to their tips,
Rosebuds whence the fragrance drips,
Helen's lips?

He who sees her needs must love her;
But beware! avoid love's dart!
He who loves her must discover
Nature overlooked one part,
In this masterpiece of art—
Helen's heart.

Yer Mother.

Who'd yer do without yer mother?
How'd yer know what things wuz right?
Who'd yer do w'en yer wuz frightened?
Who would hear yer prayers at night?
How'd yer keep yer clo'es tergither?
How'd yer dust ter hev a sick,
If thar wasn't no ma ter help yer,
What could fix yer up right quick?

Thar's somethings yer ma she licks yer
(Though perhaps yer oughter be);
Fer ains yer been a makin' faces,
Or a fightin' with Bob Lee;
But yer wouldn't trade yer mother
Not fer more'n a dozen farms
Fer thar's nuthin' dust ter touch yer
W'en yer in yer mother's arms.

An' one time I knowed a feller
What jes' didn't hev no ma—
Don't it seem like that was awful?
Oh, o course, he had er pa
But th' pa ain't ma, no sirree!

Picnic Days.

Indianapolis Sun.

Under the spreading chestnut tree,
The well filled baskets stand,
Containing chicken, pies and things—
The work of Bridget's hand,
And way off in the distance there's
A blaring country band.

Dick battles with the bumble-bee,
And Bob, with youthful zest,
Falls from the lofty chestnut tree,
And pops and the rest
Proceed to eat the lunch upon

A yellow jacket's nest!
The gentle rainstorm rolls around,
And when the day is late
They homeward wend their weary ways
And turn inside the gate,
And lie in bed and wonder just
How many ants they ate.

Hull, Que., seamstresses, according to report, are paid five cents a pair for making trousers, twenty-two to twenty-five cents each for making sacque coats, and seven to eight cents each for making vests. They are not, it is asserted, paid in cash for their work, but receive orders for goods, which are discounted at from twenty to twenty-five per cent. An effort will be made to have the seamstresses paid in cash in future.

HEADACHES.

Injudicious feeding, rich food stuffs, and a thousand and one causes are enough to send the poisonous matters to the delicate brain cells, through the blood, and produce headaches. Powley's Liquified Ozone will take the poison out of your blood and then heal your stomach's action. Take the dose every twenty minutes if the headache is severe.

"Since my infancy I have been troubled with bilious headaches; I used to suffer dreadfully, especially during the summer months. I doctored three years with my family physician, but received no benefit. I tried two or three other doctors, used many so-called remedies, but got no relief. I came to the conclusion there was no cure. I drank Ozone for two months. What results? Since that date I have not had the first symptom of a headache. Your medicine has proved a blessing to me. During that time I gained eleven pounds and feel like a new man. I cannot recommend it too highly." (Signed) J. K. BREWSTER, Centertown, Ont.
