KEEPER LOSES AN APPEAL

ASKED THAT CONVICTION FOR ILLEGAL SALE BE QUASHED.

Judge Sustained The Decision Of Police Magistrate—An Interesting Case Heard At Brockville.

Brockville, Ont., Aug. 8.—Judge Macdonald heard the appeal of William S. Lloyd, the licensee of the Victoria hotel, Gananoque, convicted before the police magistrate of that town for selling liquor without a license at a booth, on the fair grounds on dominion day. The defence was that Lloyd had nothing to do with the booth.

On the appeal, Mr. Carroll, who acted for the prosecution, contended that there was no appeal from the decision of the magistrate for selling without a license, that his judgment was final, and that Lloyd was in the same position as if he had no license, the offence not having taken place in his hotel. His honor held that under section 118 of the license act there was an appeal "in all cases where the person convicted is a licensee under the act," no matter where the offence was committed.

Mr. Carroll then objected that the notice of appeal was not signed by the appellant nor anyone on his behalf, and that the notice did not state where the offence had been committed, and that neither the notice nor the summons in appeal stated the grounds of appeal. His honor over-ruled these objections and held that the statute did not require the notice of appeal to be signed by any one, that the conviction was sufficiently stated in the notice, and that there was no statute requiring the grounds of appeal to be stated either in the notice or the summons.

The judge proceeded with the appeal, and confirmed the conviction on the evidence taken before the magistrate.

Poisoned Himself And A Well.

In the general hospital is a young lad named Thomas Topping, a Marchmont home product, who is recovering from a paris green injection, self administered. The boy took a strange notion on Monday last. He secured some of that poison powder, scattered it in the well and in the cattle troughs on the farm of Donald Hay, Pittsburg, where he is employed, and then took a drink of the mixture himself. His deed was discovered immediately afterwards, and emetics were administered to the rash youth, who was then brought to the city. Difficulty was experienced in cleansing the poisoned well, but happily there were no evil results, which might have occurred had discovery not been made in time.

Building Cheap Walks.

A resident of Perth, who was in the city to-day, states that that municipality is having granolithic walks laid at a very reasonable rate. The walks are costing nineteen cents a square surface foot, including curbing. The contract calls for one foot of rubble, four and one-half inches of concrete, and one and one-half inches of top dressing. The ratepayers pay sixty per cent. of the cost and the municipality forty per cent. As a result the town is being equipped with first-class granolithic walks, guaranteed to last for twenty-one years.

Successful Fishermen.

There is not any use in going to Loughboro lake to fish any more this season. All the market gardeners were out there Tuesday and Wednesday and, according to reports, they emptied the lake of fish. Rain interferred Tuesday night and Wednesday morning, but the plucky gardeners were not to be fooled; they donned oil-skin coats and ventured out on the lake, and were kept busy hauling in large, juicy specimens of the finny tribe. Messrs. England, Lancaster and Friendship were the three who were the most successful.

Field Battery Notes.

Capt. Lesslie, "A" battery, left today on a month's vacation.

Lieut.-Col. Hudon has resumed his duties as commanding officer of "A" battery, having recovered from a two months' attack of rheumatism. The colonel will likely take up residence in the city, as his barracks' quarters are unfit for an officer's residence.

The present strength of "A" battery is 103, or fifty-one under strength. "B" battery has sixty-two men, nineteen under strength.

A Good Performance.

Large crowds continue to attend the Lake Ontario park performances. Last night the pavilion was again filled, and everyone was pleased. The illustrated songs are perhaps the favorites, but all parts of the programme are good. An additional feature is "Tom" Bateman, a clever female impersonator and singer. Manager Brannigan has greatly raised the standard of performances at the park.

Police Court Cullings.

Three drunks were arranged before the police magistrate this morning. Thomas Kelly, sailor on the steamer India, and Charles Davis were fined $5 and costs or one month in jail. Thomas Tobois was fined $10 and costs on a charge of drunkenness and fighting.

NEWS FROM COUNTRYSIDE.

Milburn Murmurings.

Milburn, Aug. 6.—The farmers are busy with the harvest. A number from here left on Monday for the north-west. Many attended the Foresters' picnic, held at Inverary last week, and were delighted with it. Camping and fishing are the orders of the day. Citizens are constantly passing here en route for Loughboro lake. William Keeler has gone to Manitoba on a visit to his brother and other friends. Miss Lizzie Cochrane was the guest of Miss Gertie Patterson last week. Visitors: Mr. and Mrs. Goal, Rochester, N.Y., at Mrs. Hanley's; Mrs. Campbell and Miss Minnie Campbell at W. Keeler's, Mr. Davison, Battersea, at Mrs. Hanley's; Mr. and Mrs. W. Patterson, at S. Jameson's; C. Shannon, Sunbury, at T. Dixon's.

An Interesting Service.

Verona, Aug. 8.—On Sunday, August 4th, sacramental service was held in the Methodist church. Rev. Mr. Richards preached a very impressive sermon. In the evening a special service of song was held under the direction of Rev. Mr. Miller. This is the first time the people of Verona have been treated to such a service, and they were highly pleased. The service consisted of brief but interesting talks as to the authorship, origin and history of some of the greatest and grandest hymns in the English language, followed by the hearty singing of them by choir and people. All agree in saying that the service was both interesting and instructive. Much credit is due Mr. Miller for the able manner in which he conducted that service; also to Miss Shields who presided at the organ and to the choir.

Harlowe Happenings.

Harlowe, Aug. 6.—Dr. and Mrs. Flinton passed through this vicinity making his farewell calls last week. Miss Jane Lake was united in marriage to T. Cole Cumming, by Rev. J. deP. Wright, Flinton, on July 29th. Miss Abbie Thompson left for Rochester, N.Y., on August 1st. Mrs. Thompson, sick with blood poisoning, is recovering. Mr. and Mrs. Ellis, Kingston, at J. R. Ferris'; Mr. Wright at Mrs. Mary Snyder's. Rev. J. deP. Wright and Miss Bailey, formerly of Princess street, Kingston, spent Tuesday the guest of Mrs. Chisholm, Helena Mines. Mrs. Leaney and children, Tweed, are at Mrs. L. Snyder's. A settlement between Snyder Bros. is going to be effected. The gentlemen to decide are Revs. Higgs, Cloyne, and Mr. Currie, Tweed. The Helena Mines are shut down for the present. Proctor Snyder and George Head left this week for the north-west. Miss Bailey left Mrs. Mary Snyder's on the 27th for Oso.

A Successful Social.

Morton, Aug. 5.—The social on Friday evening under the auspices of the Presbyterian church, was a success. The attendance was a record-breaker, no such crowd having before assembled on such an occasion. The refreshments and literary parts were all that could be expected. The programme consisted of vocal and instrumental selections, readings, recitations and speeches. The Lyndhurst (56th regimental) brass band, and Royal Templars choir, of Gananoque, delighted the audience with instrumental music, songs and recitations. In addition to this were violin duets by Mr. Carney and Miss White, song by Miss Sweney, recitation by Miss Ayre, of Athens, and a speech by Mr. Dalgeish, theological student of Methodist church, who is at present supplying for Rev. Mr. Service. Barrister Shepphard, Gananoque, occupied the chair, and interspersed the programme with appropriate remarks and wittisms characteristic of that gentleman. Before the singing of the national anthem, Andrew Gray, Crosby, in a few well-worded remarks, moved a vote of thanks to all who had assisted in making the social such a success. The receipts were $135. W. Taber, Chicago, Ill., arrived to-day to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Taber, sr. Friday afternoon's baseball game between Lyndhurst and Elgin teams resulted in a victory for the latter. R. Taggart exchanges pulpits for the next two Sabbaths with Rev. Mr. Buchanan, Lanark. Miss Susie Willis left this morning for Athens, where she has a position in the post office. The G. N. W. linemen passed through the village last week on their tour of inspection. Visitors: Miss M. McKinley, Berryton, at Mrs. J. Willis'; Miss M. Smith, Crosby, at R. H. Somerville's; Miss J. Eyre, Athens, at her sister's, Mrs. R. Scott; Miss M. Murphy, Seeley's Bay, at her sister's, Mrs. W. Merril; Miss W. Scott, Gananoque, at A. Scott's.

May Lose His License.

Wednesday afternoon a lady arrived in the city from the east, too late to catch the Wolfe Island ferry boat. She engaged a cabman to drive her to a boat livery, where she could take a skiff for the island. She asked the cab driver to secure an oarsman to take her across and he retained the services of a character well known in police court circles. The cabman drove his passenger to the bridge house and charged her seventy-five cents for the passage from the Grand Trunk station, foot of Johnston street. She complained to Mr. Bowman of the exhorbitant charge and asked him to notify the chief of police, which he did. Mr. Bowman would not permit the "oarsman," which the cabman had secured, to start with the lady, and in order to see her safely landed, Mr. Bowman rowed the lady across himself. As a result of the cab driver's avarice he is likely to lose his license.

Suit Against The City.

James Daly, Rideau street, will have a suit against the city for damages through the blocking of a sewer. Last year a grate was taken out of a sewer in Rideau street, and in consequence the earth fell in, chocking the sewer, resulting in the flooding of cellars emptying into the sewer. Mr. Daly's two children are dangerously ill through the effect of the flooding, and he intends taking proceedings against the city.

THE LUXURY OF MAN'S DIET

PLAIN FOOD, ON THE WHOLE, IS BEST.

Rich Man, Whose Palate Is Seasoned With Rare and Costly Viands is Not Much Better Off.

Of course the wealthy man pays a good deal more for his breakfast, luncheon and dinner than does the poor man, but is Dives, physiologically and physically speaking, any better for it? We doubt it.

Plain food is, on the whole, more acceptable to the ecopomy than are rich morsels. It is very questionable whether from the strictly nutritive point of view champagne and oysters are, after all, in health an advance upon ginger beer and cockles, whether turtle is preferable to calf's head, or caviare to soft herring roe, or plovers' eggs superior to the ordinary eggs of the barn door bird. But there is a vast difference between the price of champagne, say, at 10 shillings a bottle and ginger beer at a penny a bottle, and between oysters at 3s. 6d. a dozen and cockles at 50 for a penny, and between turtle soup at 10s. 6d. a pint and calf's head soup at sixpence a plateful.

We shall be pretty correct in stating that the man who buys common eggs instead of plovers' eggs and calf's head instead of turtle and a pigeon instead of a partridge is the gainer, at any rate from the economically nutritive point of view. In other words, the price of an article of food by no means sets upon it its food value, and the difference represented between the price of champagne and ginger beer, between that of oysters and cockles, etc., is the price paid for pleasing the palate, which extravagance is probably the penalty of a mental rather than a bodily demand.

But physiologically it is akin to substituting diamonds for coals in the steam engine. Luxurious foods are, strictly speaking, creature comforts, while plain foods are bodily necessities. It must be admitted, however, that, as a rule, choice tasting game and meats are necessarily tender and therefore easy of assimilation. But clearly there must be a limit to the appropriation of food by the body, and this limit may be reached just as easily by means of good, plain and tender food as by food of a rarer sort.

According to this view, there must be a great physiological extravagance going on from day to day. In the matter of beverages the same sort of extravagance occurs. Enormous prices are given for a particularly choice wine, but here, again, it is practically certain that the human economy gains little or nothing by it.

Does the man who drinks a claret of choice vintage at, say, 10 shillings a bottle derive any material advantage over the man who drinks his shilling bottle of vin ordinaire? It is doubtful. In any case, the prices asked for wine at big hotels are so monstrously high and the wine offered is so often bad that this fact alone accounts for an increasing demand for whisky as a dinner beverage. There are obviously considerable physiological sin and wantonness committed in the choice of food and in the quantity consumed.

Wanted to Be Kicked.

It is related of Horace Greeley, whose handwriting was notoriously illegible, that on one occasion an editorial of his fell into the hands of a new compositor, who made a fearful bungle of it. As he set it the bit of copy made sense, but it was not the meaning Mr. Greeley intended to convey.

The following evening Mr. Greeley reached the office in no enviable mood and lost little time in tramping up to the composing room on the floor above. Here he encountered the night foreman, and the air was blue with the chief's imprecations. As soon as it became possible to make oneself heard above this verbal tempest Mr. Greeley was informed of the circumstances and that it was not really the fault of the compositor, who had done the best he could, but that the blame should rest on the assistant foreman, whose carelessness was the cause of the new man getting the "copy" from the "hook."

As the argument appealed to Mr. Greeley's intelligence and he suddenly realized that in giving way to his passion he was making a spectacle of himself he called out in his squeaky treble, "Won't somebody please kick me down stairs?" and shuffled out of the room.

A Feat In Shooting.

"I've seen a good deal of sharpshooting in my day," said a civil war veteran of Broome county, "but I've never seen equaled a feat performed often by a neighbor of mine. He was a man with a marvelously quick eye, and he could shoot quicker and straighter than any man in our neighborhood. His best trick was shooting two swallows with one bullet. He would make bets on this, and when feeling right would win the money nine times out of ten. It is hard enough to shoot one swallow on the wing, and to shoot two of them with one bullet increases the difficulty tenfold. He would stand by the side of the pond, and when two swallows crossed each other's aerial paths he would shoot just as they would intersect. He seldom missed killing them the first shot, and when he did miss he paid up like a major. Usually the other fellow was stuck, though."

Conveying a Mild Rebuke.

"That is ungrammatical," said Mr. Upperby, a smart young man much given to criticism. "What is?" asked his business partner, an elderly, blue eyed man of a sly humor but unfailing good nature.

"That sentence you just now uttered."

"Perhaps it was. I did not notice how I spoke it. By the way, suppose you look in Webster's Dictionary and see if you pronounced that word 'ungrammatical' correctly."

"I am quite certain I did," returned Mr. Upperby, taking the volume down from the shelf and opening it.

"Why," he exclaimed, after a moment's search, "I can't find it in Webster!"

"I thought perhaps you couldn't," rejoined his partner, with a twinkle in his eye.

Out of Harm's Way.

"What made you jump into the midst of the fight?" inquired the friend. "You had nothing to do with the feud those men were trying to settle."

"That's perfectly true," answered Colonel Stillwell. "But I had to take sides one way or the other. I couldn't take chances on being an innocent bystander."

Letter Writing.

This is the way he wrote to her: "Molly, I has not had a line from you in three weeks. Has you throwed me over?"

And this is the way she answered him: "John, hain't you heard tell that I am on a sick bed, where I am slowly a-dyin an can't write a line to save my life, you fool, you?"

Bacon—What are points on the races we read so much about?

Egbert—Why, the points are the things which the fellows get stuck on.

She—You say he is very formal?

He—I should say so. Why, if he saw a man walking off with his umbrella, I don't think he'd speak to him without an introduction.

Mrs. Styles—Are you going out on your wheel today, Bridget?

Bridget—Indade, I'm not, mum. I'd not break the Sabbath day, mum.

"I'm glad there's something you're not going to break, Bridget."

He—I have been in the next room asking your father for your hand in marriage.

Another Illusion Destroyed.

"I wish you hadn't had your hair cut so short, Harold!" exclaimed the young woman, turning from him involuntarily.

"What difference does it make, dearest?" asked Harold, with tender anxiety.

"You—you have destroyed an illusion," she sighed. "That is all."

"You didn't think I was a poet, did you, Clara, because I wore my hair long?"

"No, I never suspected you of being a poet."

"Nor an artist?"

"No."

"Then what illusion have I destroyed?" he demanded.

"Perhaps I should say, Harold," she answered, with tears in her voice, "that you have unconsciously revealed a fact I never suspected, dear. Your ears don't match."—London Stray Stories.

The Bright Side.

"Mercy!" implored the farmer, falling upon his knees.

The man lowered as to his brows.

"Mercy!" exclaimed he austerely. "Be thankful that I am merely selling you a lightning rod and not taking your wife's order for portraits of all the family enlarged in crayon!"

At this just rebuke the farmer dried his tears and cheerfully signed the note and mortgage.—Detroit Journal.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S

CHLORODYNE.

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

Chlorodyne is admitted by the profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered.

Chlorodyne is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma.

Chlorodyne effectually checks and arrests those too often fatal diseases: Diphtheria, Fever, Croup, Ague.

Chlorodyne acts like a charm in Diarrhoea and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery.

Chlorodyne effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation and Spasms.

Chlorodyne is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis, etc.

From W. Vesalius, Pettigrew, M.D., formerly Lecturer at St. George's Hospital, London—"I have no hesitation in stating that I have never met with any medicine so efficacious as an Anti-spasmodic and a Sedative I have used it in consumption, Asthma, Diarrhoea, and other diseases; and I am perfectly satisfied with the result."

"Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians that he received a despatch from Her Majesty's Council at Manila to the effect that Cholera has been raging fearfully, and that the only REMEDY of any service was CHLORODYNE.—See Lancet, 1st December, 1864.

CAUTION—BEWARE OF PIRACY AND IMITATIONS.

CAUTION—Vice Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated that DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE was undoubtedly the inventor of CHLORODYNE; that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, which he regretted to say had been sworn to.—See Times, July 13th, 1864.

Sold in bottle of 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each. None is genuine without the words "Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne" on the Government Stamp. Overwhelming Medical Testimony accompanies each bottle.
