Giving blood could save a life this weekend

Before the Victoria Day long weekend, Canadian Blood Services is asking people to take a moment to save a life.

A blood donation clinic will held tomorrow (Friday, May 17) at Town Hall, 1225 Trafalgar Rd., South Atrium from 1-7 p.m.

While there is a continuous need for all blood types, there is always a greater need for the 'universal donor' — donors with O-negative blood.

Canadian Blood Services staff said when someone is dying there is no time to check blood type, so hospital patients receive O-negative.

It is the blood type used in the most critical situations, e.g. for neonates, patients with compromised immune systems, and trauma victims.

To make a future appointment to donate blood, visit www.blood.ca or call 1-888-2DONATE (1-888-236-6283).
