Henry Newbolt in Spectator.

Unheeded, overbold.

O tears of human passion,
Blur not the image true:
This was not folly's fashion,
This was the man we knew.

All these combined with thankfulness

HE WON THE CROSS.

A Valiant British Soldier In Gallant Deeds.

M.A.P., London.

Sergt. Hook, who looks after the hats and coats at the British museum, London, has seen a lot of service in South Africa. He won the Victoria cross as a private in "the gallant 24th" (the South Wales Borderers), in the terrible affair at Rorke's Drift. At that desperate encounter with the Zulus and at Isandhlwana against the same foe, the 24th lost the appalling total of twenty-one officers and 587 men, and received no fewer than eight Victoria crosses.

For four hours Sergt. Hook and two other men held the hospital wards at Rorke's Drift against the desperate onslaughts of overwhelming numbers of Zulu warriors. When his two companions fell, and he ran short of ammunition, Hook defended the threshold of the building with his bayonet, and at every lull in the attack he piled corpse upon corpse of the slain enemy in the doorway, along with anything else he could lay hands on, until he made a solid barricade reaching to his shoulders. When the Zulus set the place on fire, Hook seized a pick and broke through three walls of sun-dried bricks, one after the other. Then, with the help of lance-corporal Williams, who came to his relief, he managed to rescue the eight sick and wounded in the hospital and convey them to the inner defence just before the place burst into flames. It was four o'clock in the morning before the Zulus drew off, after more than twelve hours desperate fighting.

Immediately after the fight Hook had a sharp tussle with a wounded Zulu. Wandering over the scene of the struggle to see if any of his comrades were still alive, the sergeant came upon a great giant of a savage, who, as he passed, clutched the stock of his rifle, and, getting on his knees, made a terrific effort to gain possession of the weapon. There was a rare struggle for mastery. The Zulu was nearly as tall as Hook, even when on his knees, but in the end Hook managed to wrench the gun away, and giving the Zulu a desperate blow in the wind, bowled him over. Then the sergeant, stepping back a few paces, finished his desperate antagonist with a bullet in the head.

For weeks after the fight of that night Sergt. Hook was a victim to nightmare. In the middle of his sleep he would jump up in bed, his eyeballs starting from his head, his hair on end, his face and body dripping with perspiration, imagining himself surrounded by shrieking savages on the point of plunging their assegais into him. This was the effect of the shock to his nerves. Even now, the veteran will tell you, he sometimes feels dizzy about the head—and well he might.

CARPENTERS' STRIKE.

The Union Will Not Benefit at Present From It.

The carpenters' union will seemingly gain nothing by the strike at R. Davis & Sons' shipyard. About fourteen men at work there struck for $2 a day, an increase of twenty-five cents. This took place at noon yesterday, and this morning Mr. Davis had eleven new men at work, all non-union and most of them receiving $1.50 a day. Matthew Davis was interviewed this morning about the strike, and said:

"The men notified me last week that they would quit on Saturday if their wages were not raised to two dollars a day. I replied that if they were not satisfied with their wages they could leave immediately. They worked on till Tuesday at noon and then quit. I have had no trouble in getting men, and better ones than most of those who struck. To tell you the truth I am glad the men did strike, for not only will I be rid of troublers, but I will be saved money, as the present force of men offered to work at a lower rate.

"In my opinion the carpenters' union did a wrong thing in allowing the men to strike at this season for there is little demand for labor. If they had waited until May it would have been better for them. The carpenters' union here has no principles upon which to work, and are not able to direct any strike for they have no capital. The strikers will now go about the streets idle, while they might just as well have been earning $19.50 a week. As far as we are concerned we will not be the means of raising the wages, for contractors here cannot pay the amount demanded. Our company raised the wages of the men ten cents a day in January, and since last fall have spent $18,000 in Kingston. There are any number of carpenters around, and good ones too, who do not belong to the union. A few of the strikers told me they would rather work on but as they belonged to the union they had to support the others and so are now idle against their own will."

HE WILL YIELD TO SENATE

COMPELLED TO ACCEPT THE TREATY AMENDMENTS

If They Are Adopted—If Britain Demurs He Will Try to Persuade Congress to Modify the Clause.

Washington, March 14.—The ratification by the senate of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, as amended by the committee of foreign relations, will probably occur, although there is a danger of its rejection by the British government. Knowing that lord Pauncefote had advised his government against the acceptance of the amendment the administration is apprehensive that this recommendation will be adopted, especially in view of the adverse comments upon the new provision published by lord Salisbury's organ. Though the president would have preferred that the senate accept the treaty as it originally stood, it is understood he will accept the amendment should it be accepted by the senate.

COMMERCIAL MATTERS.

What is Going on in the Business World—The Market News.

The first of the new crop of Brazil nuts are expected to arrive in New York in about two weeks.

The stock of prunes in Toronto is estimated by competent authority at not over eighty cars, against more than twice that quantity at this time last year.

During the last six weeks there has been an unusual stiffening in the provision market, both in Great Britain and Canada. Pork products have gone up ½c. to ¾c. on a pound.

The Farmers' co-operative packing company is the name of a new pork packing concern to be established at Brantford. Already $150,000 has been subscribed, and the stock will be increased to $200,000.

London reports Valencia raisins firm at 32s. to 35s. A seventy-ton shipment arrived recently from Spain, but it exerted no influence on the market. Sultanas drag, but the price, 25s. to 35s., or 10s. below last year's figures, creates some attraction and sales promise to be larger.

A company has been organized at Little Current, Manitoulin island, Ont., which offers, if granted a bonus, to build a railroad and spend $2,000,000 in mineral development. The island has a population of 15,000, which is steadily advancing. Better transportation facilities should be afforded to assist in developing this district, rich in natural resources.

In its last issue the Canadian Grocer says: "Throughout the past winter the Canadian home market has absorbed so much butter that there has been practically no surplus for export, and hardly enough to meet local requirements. The result is that prices have been maintained from one to two cents higher than were attained at corresponding periods a year ago.

Mail advices from London say that without any larger business in provisions the market for currants remains about the same at 14s. 3d. for fair quality. Panniti are in good demand and sell for 24s. to 28s., according to quality. The fairly active trade of the past few weeks has reduced the available supply. Vostizza in quarter cases have sold as high as 22½s.

Probably the most interesting feature in regard to canned goods is the development of a stronger tone in raspberries and strawberries, consequent upon a better inquiry from Ontario points. As a result of this better inquiry some of the wholesale houses have advanced their quotations 10c. per dozen, and now quote strawberries and raspberries at $1.60 to $1.70. There is a little movement in canned apples, principally for 3's, at from 90c. to 95c.

Toronto Retail Market.

Death Of John Lauder.

The death occurred on Monday, March 12th in Chicago, of John Lauder, one of the landmarks of Kingston. Deceased left here three months ago for Chicago to spend a while with his children, four of whom reside there. He was a resident of Kingston for over sixty years. Mr. Lauder was a contractor, and helped to build many prominent buildings in the limestone city, including the post office and the city buildings. For twenty years he was trade instructor at the penitentiary. Lately he has been living a retired life.

Deceased was born in Barnstaple, England, eighty-five years ago. He married Miss Grace Essery, who survives him. Six children also survive. They are George, G. T. R. agent at Thedford, John, Chicago, Robert, Texas, Mrs. Geraldi, Mrs. Judd and Mrs. Fuller, Chicago. Mr. Lauder was a Methodist in religion, a member of the Williamsville Methodist church. The remains arrived this afternoon from Chicago, and the funeral took place from Corbett's undertaking establishment to Cataraqui cemetery.

The Strike Continues.

Yesterday afternoon C. R. Whitehead, general manager of the Dominion cotton mills company, met the strikers. He told them that "within six weeks the new machinery would be running; it is faster and would enable them to earn more money. To the claim of the employees that their wages had been reduced one-half he gave a straight denial. The strikers offered to go back if their wages were advanced twenty per cent., but manager Whitehead said such a contingency would force the company to close down the mill. The employees then offered to return to work for an advance of fifteen per cent., but this also was unacceptable. The manager asked those who desired to return to work to stand up. Seven complied. The meeting ended unsatisfactorily.

The winders at the cotton mill went back to work this afternoon, their wages having been raised from forty-eight cents to sixty cents per day.

The Contracts Awarded.

The successful tenderers for the additions and alterations to Crumley Bros. store on Princess street are: Masonry, brick laying, plastering and cast iron work, Alexander Newlands; carpentry and joiner work, Joseph Hooper; plumbing, galvanized iron, metal ceiling and hot water heating, F. A Practical Address.

Dr. Herald gave a practical address on "Nursing" to the soldiers' wives' league in the amphitheatre of the general hospital yesterday afternoon. Several of the nurses assisted in the illustrations given, a patient being used for the purpose.

ONE of MANY WHO WERE CURED

Eight years ago I was taken sick with typhoid fever, after which I had pleurisy, with water in my side, and a bad cough—raising blood. This left me helpless, so that I could not work for two years. My case seemed to puzzle the best physicians. I became somewhat better, so that I could do some light work, but last winter I was taken with a severe attack of grip which left me unfit for work again. On the 5th of May, 1899, I began taking OUR NATIVE HERBS and in a fortnight I felt better. After taking it one month, my cough and blood raising stopped altogether. Now, I am able to do my own work and my recovery is due entirely to Our Native Herbs.
