A VERY SUDDEN DEATH.

Alexander G. Flett Was Stricken With Apoplexy.

The death summons came very suddenly to Alexander G. Flett, merchant tailor, on Friday afternoon. Mr. Flett was at his store all morning, and apparently in the best of health. He went home to dinner about two o'clock, intending to take a long walk during the afternoon. While sitting at the table he was suddenly stricken with apoplexy, and expired almost immediately. The news of Mr. Flett's death was received with profound sorrow by his friends.

Deceased was born in Glasgow, Scotland, fifty-six years ago. When a young man, he came to Canada, first settling in Toronto, and then coming to Kingston, where he has lived for the past twenty-five years. He was at one time a member of the clothing firm of Dunlar & Co. During the past fifteen or sixteen years he has been in the tailoring business himself, his store being in the opera house block.

Mr. Flett married Miss Elizabeth Bruce Gordon, of Toronto, who, with one son, Alexander, survive. The other four children rest in Cataraqui cemetery. One brother, James, in Edinburgh, and a sister, Mrs. Hood, of Oamaru, New Zealand, also survive.

Deceased was an elder in Chalmers church, and in politics was a liberal. In business, Mr. Flett was diligent and faithful. The Scotch characteristics were strong within him, and he had a warm heart and a generous hand. By his death a good man has passed away, and entered into the rest prepared for the people of God.

New Division Court Clerk.

James S. Robinson, son of ex-alderman William Robinson, the war horse of Cataraqui ward, has been appointed clerk of the first division court of Frontenac county, replacing his father, who desired to be relieved of the duties of the office. The newly appointed clerk has acted as his father's clerk for the past two years and is thoroughly conversant with the office routine. He has the confidence of the public and is sure to give the same satisfaction to patrons as has characterized the office since its occupancy by "uncle William."

LETTERS FROM THE FRONT.

KINGSTONIANS WRITE HOME OF WAR EXPERIENCES.

Canadians All Well—First Contingent Near Bloemfontein at Time of Writing—Second Contingent Making Progress Towards Kimberley.

Yesterday, Mrs. Eby, Union street, received a short letter from her son, Pte. D. M. Eby, member of the first Canadian contingent at present on service in South Africa. The missive is dated Orange Free State, March 8th., and is very brief, as the writer intimates that both time and writing paper are very short. Continuing the writer says: "We are about forty-five miles south east of Bloemfontein and going in that direction. We marched twenty miles yesterday chasing Boers all the way. They surrendered to French's cavalry this morning. We are having rather a tough time of it just now. We don't mind the marching and fighting, but the transports can't keep up and we don't get our rations regularly. We are all in good health, but have been away from civilization since 12th of February. Alfred McCormack, is company cook at present. Things look now as if we will be here for some time."

Pte Dunlop Writes Home.

Thursday ex-alderman William Dunlop received a short letter from his son, Pte. Elliott Dunlop, member of the first contingent. The letter was written on the march while the contingent was chasing Boers in the Orange Free State. The writer stated that he was in good health and spirits. Writing paper is very scarce among the Canadians. Pte. Dunlop wrote his missive on a small scrap of paper, doubled it over from both ends and sewed the edges through in lieu of an envelope, marking on the outside "no envelopes, no stamps." This thin missive came through all right and was welcomed by Pte. Dunlop's friends.

Letter From Gr. Darlington.

Thursday a friend received a letter from Gr. Darlington, member of the artillery detachment of the second Canadian contingent on service in South Africa. The letter was dated "Victoria Road, Sunday, March 11th." The writer states that he is well and gaining in flesh. The Canadians had so far enjoyed themselves and had no reason to complain about treatment. The battery left Cape Town on March 7th by train, disembarking at Victoria West and marching to the encampment where the letter was written.

"We are surrounded by Boers. They have four cannon, but we have six and have with us, besides, the Canadian mounted rifles and imperial yeomanry; before we fire a shot we will have an army of 1,000 men, and opposed to us is a Boer army of 3,000. We are encamped 175 miles south of Kimberley and expect to make an attack to-morrow. Our rations consist of hard tack, tea, coffee and canned meats; some of the boys have broken their artificial teeth biting the hard tack. The weather is warm during the day but cold at night; we are in the South African autumn. We constantly see the Boer scouts around us and can plainly see them signalling at night with lights. One night we expected an attack and our men slept under arms on the advance line."

Gr. Darlington enclosed in his letter a "silver" leaf of a plant which grows on a mountain top overlooking Cape Town, but which will not grow any other place in the world.

HEAVY BOMBARDMENT.

But It Did Not Amount to Anything.

London, April 14, (2.30 p.m.)— The only development reported up to 2 p.m., to-day in the cable despatches received here from South Africa was the heavy bombardment of the British trenches at Wartentown, April 13th, which resulted in no damage, the Boers apparently being under the impression that the British meditated an attack.

Treachery in Natal.

London, April 14.— The Daily Telegraph has the following from Elandslaagte, dated April 13:

"The Boers are changing their tactics and are moving from Glencoe westward, with a view of threatening our lines of communication to Ladysmith. On Tuesday a corps of carbineers and a number of Thorneycroft's Horse narrowly escaped being cut off owing to the treachery of a Kaffir and a native guide."

A Remarkable Story.

London, April 14.—The Boer peace envoys have documents, according to the Rome correspondent of the Daily News, showing that urgent advances to the Transvaal to wage war were originally made by Germany.

Off For The Hague.

AN IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.

A HAMILTON MAN HAS SOME IDEAS.

Claims That He Can Drive a Steamer Through The Water at Double Present Speed—To Do Away From The Propeller Screw.

Hamilton, April 14.—R. Baker, a marine engineer of this city, claims to have made a discovery which will have the effect of revolutionizing marine navigation. Fit his scheme to an Allan liner, the inventor asserts, and the big boat will cover the distance from Montreal to Liverpool in four days, and that, too, at half the present expenditure of fuel.

Mr. Baker's invention, in a few words, is a system of direct propelling action. The screw propellor is done away with entirely and the power is supplied by four water cylinders with direct acting pistons located at the stern of the vessel. These are arranged in line, or in such a manner that the pistons operate against the sea water. In addition to the cylinders at the stern, there are two at the bow for stopping the vessel or reversing its motion. These are open to the water and in pairs and connected at the inner ends by an air pipe, thus removing atmospheric pressure and avoiding a vacuum.

Allen—Ackerman.

At the residence of George Brady, 42 Division street, at noon Friday, Miss Sadie Ackerman was united in marriage to Clark Allen, manager of the Rathbun company's agency at Peterboro, and formerly of Kingston. Rev. James Elliott performed the ceremony in presence of about twenty-five guests, several of whom were from distant places, as Chicago, London, Toronto and Watertown, N.Y. The bride was attired in fawn ladies' cloth, and carried a bouquet of white carnations. The bridesmaid, Miss Moxley, wore a dress of white organdie and carried pink carnations. Little Walter Stewart acted as page. The groom was assisted by Albert Rea.

After the popular young couple had been united, they received the congratulations of the guests, who then sat down to a sumptuous wedding breakfast. A fine display of presents was shown. The newly married couple left on the Bay of Quinte train for a western trip, after which they will take up residence in Peterboro.

Kingston Heard From.

Mrs. S. Kingston, Verona, has received a letter from her son, Samuel, a soldier of the United States service in the Philippines, having gone there in September last. On February 15th his regiment, the 26th, was not fighting, but taking a rest. Occasionally a leader is run in and his case attended to. Three of them, brothers, are shut up in Iloilo. This is not the warm season, but Kingston would like to see old Canada again, and the snow. He had written four letters from Iloilo but only one had been received. He has been fortunate in being preserved from sickness.

An Inconsolable Loss.

On Thursday afternoon a dog was struck by a street car on Princess street. The owners, two ladies, secured a cab and had the animal taken home where a veterinary surgeon attened to it. It died during the night, however, and the grief of the owners was great. A white coffin was got for it, and decent burial given the remains. It is said that an action will be entered against the street railway company for the dog's death.
