IT PERVADES ALL SOCIETY.

PREDOMINATING MODES OF THOUGHT ARE CHRISTIAN.

Decreasing Difference in Social Forms Between Saints and Rest of the World — The Basis of God's Authority.

Rev. Ernest Thomas, B.A., Maitland, preached able and thoughtful sermons in Queen street Methodist church yesterday—sermons that will create discussion and meditation. They showed a broadening spirit among the younger men of the church in the attitude towards the world and its amusements, but at the same time holding fast to the doctrines of the power and influence of the holy spirit in sanctifying and purifying lives. The audiences were good and the congregational singing quite inspiring. The subject of the morning sermon was "Saints in Caesar's Household." After showing the moral and social character of the imperial court the preacher indicated the new christian tone of Paul's circle which came to mark some of the pagans. But, though there were saints in the court, there were yet much of Caesar's household in the saints. At all times while christianity has transformed men, men have modified christianity. The conquest of the Greek world reduced christianity to a system of ideas, the conflict with Rome yielded a christian institution and the conversion of the German race gave us the discordance and progressiveness of Protestantism. One may expect to find a decreasing difference in social forms between the saints and the rest of the world for the world of today is prevaded by christian modes of thought. It is a mistake, therefore, to fail in recognition of christianity in those who retain some of the social usages of the larger world in which they live. The chief characteristic of Paul's saints was a recognition of the spiritual lordship of Jesus Christ. This recognition amounting to identification with Jesus will, as the goal of that authority, soon transform all life. Evangelism, therefore, can never be adequate. Men must be led, not only to see the supreme authority of Jesus, but to discover the spirit and present significance of His mission.

The evening sermon was on "The Basis of Religious Authority," and found its text in the opening words of the ten commandments. The preacher found a similarity in Israel's arrest by the cliffs of Sinai and the periods of arrested enterprise in life which compel reflection and demand recognition of certain guiding principles. Authority can find no adequate basis in creative power or ownership without conceding the principle which vetoes slavery. Two views have been set forth—the power of a superior in rank "to keep a subordinate in order," and the consent of the governed. God bases His authority on the fact that he perceived Israel's capacity while Israel was content with sordidness, and having superior insight, having led Israel out of the house of bondage, He claims the future direction of the movement he inaugurated. This principle identifies the glory of God with the good of man and precludes any idea of arbitrariness from divine law. Sin, too, is seen not as crime against external authority, but as the violation of the fundamental condition of any true good. Salvation cannot then be any external act, but must consist in the reconciling of the human life to the divine programme. Loss is in the alienation of interest which makes impossible a share with God in the joy of erecting a complete humanity.

Memorial Service In St. Andrew's.

In St. Andrew's church on Sunday morning a memorial service was held, and Rev. J. Mackie, M.A., made a touching reference to the deaths of James Minnes, sr., and W. M. Drennan, late city clerk. His text was "To die is gain" Philippians vii, 21. The preacher said:

"So spake a man waiting for death, and it came at last—martyrdom. But all men have not to wait for death to see the spectre slowly but certainly making for him. There is sometimes a rush, a sudden swoop, and in a clutch that no hand can loosen the prey is held, and with a flight that no power can stay, the soul is borne hence. Has it not been so in these few days? Were we not all startled, shocked, to hear of the cutting away of W. Melville Drennan, the city clerk, in the twinkling of an eye, while he was busy here and there, and ever busy, with the celebrations of loyal hearts? Were we not all deeply solemnized at the awful suddenness of the call to Melville Drennan to go down through death to God and eternity? In silence and in sorrow did we not bear his mortal remains beyond the city to the place of graves, feeling that the city had sustained a loss—the loss of a man who had labored to his own hurt—to promote her interests; of a man of untiring energy, perpetual buoyancy of spirits in spite of fogs and drags, and disappointments, and thoroughness in the discharge of every duty laid upon him. But in a moment and in the prime of his manhood he was gone. May we not forget.

"Not altogether so sudden to the city was the death of James Minnes, but a few hours before the death of Mr. Drennan. The city was in a manner prepared for it. It was known for some time, to the deep regret of the whole community that a serious malady had laid hold upon him, that human skill was doing its utmost, but with small success and temporary, and that defeat before long was inevitable. This conviction the patient sufferer also reached. Having exhausted all means suggested by human love and knowledge, he turned to God in Christ and meekly faced eternity. 'I leave the world without a tear, save for the friends I hold so dear.' That was his last sentiment. The city heard of his death with sorrow, knowing that one of her most prominent citizens was taken, that one of her most successful sons had ended his career; that one of her shrewdest and best business men had finished his course, that a man of unblemished character, held in high esteem for his many virtues, and powerful in all commercial and political movements within his bounds had ceased to be.

"St Andrew's mourned for her own, and mourns. One of her own children and hers without a break for sixty-five years, was taken from her; one who for many years had cheerfully given his time and thought to the management of her temporal affairs; who at all times and in every way sought her good and welfare; who possessed the confidence and respect of all his fellow-worshippers, and the gratitude of not a few of them, to whom in need he had proved a friend in deed. But if in the city and in the church there is a sense of loss and sorrow, what must it be, how deep and real in the home where he was at his very best? What must it be in the restful retreat where in the tender love of wife and grown up sons and daughters, he so abundantly enjoyed the rich reward of a devoted husband and wisely indulgent father. He had lived and labored for them, who had made a sweet and happy home for them, and whose life was made by their lives a continual sunshine? Ah! it is there where the loss is great and the grief is deep. We know it, and we turn our hearts towards it in sympathy and pray our God to console and bless the widow and the fatherless and to give grace to them and every one of us that we may so live that to us all death, whether sudden, or seen approaching, may be gain."

A POPULAR MARRIAGE.

Edward Hartrick and Miss Sadie A. Potter Married.

A happy event took place Saturday evening at Portsmouth, when Rev. Godfrey Shore performed the service which united in marriage Edward Hartrick, second son of John Hartrick, and Miss Sadie A. Potter, eldest daughter of William Potter, first engineer of Rockwood hospital for the insane. The ceremony took place at the home of the parents of the bride, before a large number of assembled friends. Miss Edith Culcheth supported the bride, who looked charming in a gown of pearl grey with white satin trimmings. The bridesmaid wore a gown of white organdie. Frank Hartrick, brother of the groom, performed the honors for the groom. When the ceremony was concluded the guests partook of a sumptuous repast, during the course of which the health of the popular bride and groom was toasted. The balance of the evening was given over to festivities.

Mr. and Mrs. Hartrick are two popular young people of Portsmouth and their wide circle of friends unite in wishing them every success and happiness in their voyage through life on the sea of matrimony. The popularity of the bride was attested to by the large array of beautiful gifts of which she was the recipient. These came from friends in Kingston, Toronto, Portsmouth, Peterboro, Montreal, Topeka, Kan., and elsewhere. The magnificent array of gifts from Hamilton, where the bride formerly resided, was particularly noteworthy. The happy couple left last night per steamer North King for Rochester and other points in New York state on a wedding journey. Returning a week hence they will take up residence amid their host of friends at Portsmouth. The groom is an electrician in the employment of H. I. Breck.

BOERS WON'T COME.

Stay in Africa and Work Out Their Own Salvation.

Boston, Mass., June 4.—A. D. Wolmarans, one of the Boer envoys, wore a deep band of crepe around his silk hat, and frequently applied a handkerchief to his eyes, as he took the train for Springfield. This was because chairman Fischer of the delegation had received a telegram informing him of the death of the son of Mr. Wolmarans, who was killed in a recent engagement with the British.

Mr. Fischer, when asked if he had heard that an agent of the Union Pacific railroad was on the way from the west to tender the Boers a grant of 1,000,000 acres of land on the river Platte with an invitation to settle there, replied:

"I have heard that some such offer is to be made, but know nothing of it officially. While we would thank the American people and the railroad officials mentioned for their generosity and kindly spirit in which the offer is made, we would have to decline it. I think our people would prefer to remain and work out their own salvation, even though they were forced to under the English flag. If we should be crushed this time, it will be only for a brief time, for liberty must and shall prevail in South Africa. Patriotism never dies out."

An Act Of Insubordination.

Hamilton Herald

Corporal Courtney, of "A" battery, Kingston, is a martyr to principle. On May 24th the corporal was ordered to march a squad of batterymen to the canteen, there to drink the queen's health in beer. Being a temperance man, he refused to obey the order, and for this act of insubordination he has been reduced to the ranks.

Undoubtedly the corporal was guilty of insubordination. It was not his to make reply or reason why; his duty was to obey the order of his superior officer. But the incident should not be allowed to end with the punishment of corporal Courtney. The people of Canada will wish to know whether any officer connected with the Canadian militia has a right to order men to drink beer. It is not related whether the men who were marched to the canteen were all beer drinkers. If there were any total abstainers amongst them and if these abstainers had refused to obey the order to drink the queen's health in beer, no doubt they also would have been guilty of insubordination and liable to punishment.

A soldier should not be required unnecessarily to perform any duty which is contrary to his moral principles. In the case of corporal Courtney there was such a requirement, and the officer whose outrageous order the corporal disobeyed should be disciplined as well as the corporal. Men who wear the queen's uniform must be free to drink beer or leave it alone, as they see fit.

Famous Lecturer Here.

Thomas M. Doutney, the celebrated temperance lecturer, is in the city. Upwards of ten years ago Mr. Doutney lectured in Kingston for a week, drawing immense audiences and doing a vast amount of good. He is an ex-hotel-keeper who was led into the paths of truth and has since being doing his duty towards humanity by trying to lead into paths of righteousness those who err through drinking from the cup which inebriates. Mr. Doutney has had a successful career as a temperance lecturer, and will likely return here at a later date to give a series of lectures.

Possibly the only justification for the story bulletined—not by the Whig—that Gen. Roberts had been shot was that he "got shot from a Johannesburg hardware store."

R. L. Smith and wife disagreed at St. Louis, Mo. The father decided to leave and sold his claim to his son to his wife for $15.

Thomas Tutt, who was taken seriously ill at the police station a few days ago, and removed to the general hospital, has recovered.

A child at Marion, Ind., was using a lead pencil when it fell. The pencil was driven into the eye and broke off. Luckily the eye was not damaged.

It is a good thing that Gen. Roberts did not get "half shot." Had he been in Canada he might, for the bulletins seem to have gone off at half-cock.

Stab wounds that he had received on last Wednesday night, while fighting over a beer glass, resulted on Sunday in the death of Patrick Falday, in the New York hospital.

The boiler of the Dominion and steel company crusher, at George's river quarries, C.B., exploded on Monday. Engineer Perry was killed. He belongs to Londonderry, N.S.

At Tiro, Ohio, John Trage, an employee of a mill, fell across a saw and was sawed in two. Trage had just resumed work, having been off sick, and it is thought he fainted and fell across the saw.

H. Moretsky deserted his wife and three children in New York and eloped to Chicago with another woman. He was followed and when he learned this he shot himself. His wife, now in Chicago, is at his bedside.

Adam Young, retired farmer from Galt took a dose of laudanum in his boarding house at Hamilton on Wednesday, and died Sunday afternoon from the effects of the poison and from a complication of diseases. Young was unmarried.

Christian There, a young woman, was attacked by a St. Louis mob because she rode in a street car driven by non-union men. They tore off every inch of her clothing except her shoes, threw stones at her, etc. She sought refuge in a cellar.

The task of making up the staff for local artillery camps is bung delayed owing to the inability of the D. O. C. to secure a brigadier. There is a scarcity of competent officers to fill this important position, and the few available ones have been engaged to go elsewhere.

SIX HOURS BURIED.

The Saving of Trumpour's Life Was Pure Luck.

Picton, Ont., June 4.—Fred Trumpour, West Lake, was not killed by the caving in of a well on Saturday. When the well caved in it formed an arch above Mr. Trumpour, but hurling a large stone upon his head, under which he stood for a considerable length of time until he found his body getting numb, when he bent his head down, allowing the stone to roll on his shoulders, not daring to let it roll to the ground for fear the jar would bring the mass of earth and stones above down upon him. He stood thus for six hours, at a depth of twenty-six feet, until men could shovel a way to him. When rescued he was found in a stooping position, but beyond a few bruises was none the worse for his hairbreadth escape. His position was most perilous, and the only possible way in which he could get a supply of air was through the suction shaft of the pump, which reached the top of the well.

Preached To The Chinese.

Montreal, Que., June 4.—The first time a Chinese service was held in the Montreal jail was yesterday, when Rev. Mr. Thompson, Protestant missionary to the Chinese in this city, preached to 149 celestials who are undergoing imprisonment for failure to pay the civic laundry tax.

The William Drysdale company, the well-known firm of book publishers and stationers have decided to go into liquidation and a meeting has been appointed for those interested on June 18th. Alexander A. Murphy is the provisional liquidator.

Home From The East.

Dr. Harry McCammon returned this morning from Nova Scotia, where he spent the past month. He met many graduates of Queen's down there, all of whom are doing well. Among the number were Drs. Moore and Kent, Revs. H. R. Grant and Mr. Henderson. At Halifax he visited Lieut.-Col. Skinner, who is looking well and getting along first-rate. At Stellerton he visited the house in which principal Grant was born. The place is a land mark of the town.

Wipe Out Accursed Grits.

Picton, June 2.—The conservatives of Prince Edward county held a large mass meeting here to-day to launch the candidature of George O. Alcorn, Q.C., Picton, for the commons. The opera house was crowded, and several hundred were unable to gain admittance. Sir Charles Tupper was the chief speaker, the veteran leader coming up from Ottawa to lend his weight and personage toward stimulating local enthusiasm. His reception was very cordial, and his speech a general campaign effort.

Building A Breakwater.

The dredge from Buffalo, which is working in the harbor at Cape Vincent, became disabled on Friday, and two experts were sent for and arrived from Buffalo on Saturday afternoon. The line of the proposed breakwater is laid out, being marked with poles and floating buoys. It will, when completed, be a great protection to the harbor.

ALDERMEN IN DOUBT.

Which Committee Is Responsible For John Hall's Dwelling.

Some of the aldermen would like to know what civic committee has control of the dwelling house in rear of the Ontario fire station and occupied by fireman John Hall. The house does not possess a very necessary modern convenience—a sink. Complaints have been made to the health authorities that slops from this dwelling creates a nuisance and a request is made to have the matter remedied. The complaint of medical health officer Ira to the city council was referred to the fire and light committee, but the members of that unit say the house is not controlled by them, that the occupant pays a rental and the committee receiving the same should make all repairs. No member of the fire and light committee knows which unit of the council draws the rental for this dwelling; the budget statement does not give the information. However, the required enlightenment will likely be received at to-night's meeting of the council, when the fire and light committee will report that it has no jurisdiction in the matter.

To comply with the request to place a sink in this house will entail a great expense. There is a shallow drain at present beneath the fire station, but to continue this to the dwelling would bring it so near the surface as to make it useless in winter, as it would freeze. To build a new drain from the house to the Ontario street sewer would be costly as considerable rock cutting would be necessary. It would be equally as expensive to carry a drain from the back of the house into the slip in rear of Richardson & Sons' grain elevator office, and besides it would be necessary to obtain the consent of the Grand Trunk and K. & P. railroad companies to lay the sewer under their tracks. The means of giving relief to complainants is not as simple as it looks on the surface.

Very Surprising Reports Come in for

DR. PITCHER'S Backache Kidney Tablets.

Cures Are Made of Ills They Are Not Advertised For.

A mass of strange symptoms are often reported as relieved by Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets, symptoms that are generally common to other diseases than those of the kidney and bladder.

This, however, is not at all surprising when we consider the fact that the kidneys, the urinary tract, and the bowels are the great waste pipes of the system, and the perfect working of these organs means the elimination of all sorts of material that, retained and reabsorbed, would only cause trouble in all directions. It is due then to this riddance of the system by the kidneys and bowels of waste and dangerous substances, liquid and solid, that relief is obtained in so many instances from symptoms they are not advertised to cure.

Frank O'Rourke, 45 James street, Kingston, says: "My back ached constantly. I was so lame that I could hardly turn in bed; getting up after sitting a while caused sharp twinges to catch me in the back. There was a dark red color to the urine and an inclination to urinate frequently. I wore plasters and used other remedies without getting any relief till I read of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets. They immediately brought about a change. I have never had anything like them. I am quite free of that annoyance now and I can heartily recommend Dr. Pitcher's Kidney Tablets to anyone suffering in that way."

If you have the slightest symptom of kidney or bladder trouble you can test this great medicine free. Arrangements have been made whereby every reader of this paper can obtain a trial package of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets absolutely free by enclosing two cent stamp for postage to the Pitcher Tablet Co., Toronto, Ont. When giving address mention this paper.

If you are convinced that Pitcher's Tablets are what you want you can purchase regular size for 50c. per bottle. If not obtainable at druggists, they will send them free of postage on receipt of price.
