SCHOOL PICTURES.

A feature of the report which Mr. Ellis presented to the school board last evening was a reference to the taste which the interior decorations of American schools presented. Everywhere he went there were pictures in the rooms, good ones, the contemplation of which had its refining effects. The one thing to be deplored in Kingston—where so much improvement has been made in school affairs in recent years—is the cheap and nasty material which is to be found in so many schools in the form of chromos. Let us have a change in the manner of decorating the school rooms, for here the lessons of life are taught, and from the earliest period of contact with the school the highest and best influences should be around and about the pupil.

ELECTION OF A BISHOP.

The Canadian Churchman regrets that the recent attempt at election of a bishop in Kingston should have brought forth distinctive clerical and laymen's candidates. No such thing! There were no candidates and no partizan, as shown by unanimous choice of Dean Williams. Rev. Prof. Worrell received the bulk of the large vote because he was the choice, but he was not canvassed for. Must there not be a preference, and it must go to someone? "An influential layman" is charged with martialling the forces on his behalf. This also is untrue. He did not canvass for Prof. Worrell, or write a letter on his behalf, or even speak to him in advance though meeting him very often. Some clergymen did lobby during the election as also did one or two laymen, but it was in the excitement of contest, and did not affect the main vote, which was decided in delegates' own minds before the election opened from their well-grounded opinions of the two leading names proposed.

CLAMOUR FOR MONEY.

There was a meeting of the graduates of the Provincial University in Toronto on Tuesday night, and the Mail editorially the meaning of it. It represented a movement which aims at impressing public opinion in favour of the university, and especially in favour of its financial schemes. Hitherto the university has been regarded as a public institution, the needs and requirements of which should be without question. Now its demands are treated on their merits, and with a view to their effects upon education generally, and the friends of the university feel concerned about it.

The new alumni association will "insist upon a fair measure of state aid for their alma mater in its present hour of need." It is added:

"A hearty support is being given the movement which has for its object the placing of the institution upon a sound financial basis, and, by an organized effort on the part of the thousands of graduates, who were represented at last night's reunion, much will undoubtedly be accomplished. Hitherto the scanty influence of university opinion has sometimes been made the subject of remark, but this is largely accounted for by the absence of any means of bringing that opinion to bear in a definite and united way. The association will thus be able to render a great and useful service, and it is on such occasions as that which is reported to-day that the real power of the alumni may be estimated. They exercise a great and ever-increasing influence upon the public life of the country, and there can surely be no reason for apprehension regarding the welfare and prosperity of the university if the spirit of loyalty and determination that is now in evidence among them is maintained."

This association will differ from all others of the name in that its object is not to keep alive college friendships and college associations, and promote its maternal welfare by personal and presistent sacrifices, but to plan attacks on the public treasury from time to time. In the past some organized movement, touching the political sources of power, has been missing; it will be missing no longer. Backed by the voting force of the elections, as urged by the association, the government cannot refuse it money grants, in proportion to its requirements. How the people outside of the association may view its work remains to be seen. There may be something in the argument that the state should have its educational progress marked by facilities from the public school to the university, but the necessity of it is not at all manifest.

The state should either do all the higher education at the public expense, or it should aid all the institutions that are contributors to it in the same way and to the same extent. Queen's, McMaster and Victoria colleges have reaped large advantages from the loyalty of their graduates and friends, and it is a downright injustice to them that they have to compete with a state-aided college whose graduates and friends have done nothing but clamour for public money.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It is suggested that the dominion ballot be numbered. Why not? If it is a good thing in provincial elections it should be good in federal elections. As a means of identification, in election trials, it is complete.

The opposition in the commons cannot bide the development of events in British Columbia. They want Sir Wilfrid Laurier to bounce the lieutenant-governor. In any case the official report of the election will be awaited.

The penitentiary enquiries have lost a lot of money but the government has found out a lot. The commissioner's report on the Dorchester prison exhibit, and on the performances of Warden Foster, is evidence in point.

It is announced that Mr. Tarte is coming to Canada in July. The exposition will not then be closed. The average tory cannot understand his movements. He suspects that an election is near and so he calls out, "Get ready." Yes, get on your fighting clothes at once.

Mr. Monk, M.P., has made his charges in the Vitaline case, and a committee of the house will get at all the facts. Now the minister of militia is accused of negligence in making a contract hurriedly and in shipping the goods before they had been rigidly inspected.

The Mail thinks Mr. Sifton should pay the Mackenzie & Mann account against the government for work done on the Yukon railway which the senate would not endorse. Mr. Sifton is not a Sir Charles Tupper. He is not a millionaire, not responsible for the work of the senate.

It is a melancholy reflection which a committee of the synod of Toronto presented at a meeting on Wednesday, that people were being appealed to for money in vain unless they were offered in return an equivalent in the form of a ticket for a skirt dance, an operetta or comedietta. Has the commission to the first disciples lost its force?

The horse was killed by its rough passage over the fall and rapids.

Fell From The Roof.

Late yesterday afternoon William Maiden, while shingling the roof of his house on Main street, met with a severe accident. One of the blocks on which he was standing gave way, precipitating him to the ground, where he struck his forehead. M. Consciousness returns at short intervals. It is not thought that any bones are broken.

New Cuban Tariff.

Havana, June 15.—For some time past the revenues of Cuba have been steadily decreasing, due to the prospective tariff changes, which have caused immense quantities of goods to be imported in bond, the merchants believing that on certain lines of goods the duties of the new tariff, which becomes effective today, would be lower. Merchandise in bond here is valued at $100,000.

Sir Gordon has been requested by governor Sir Alfred Milner to form a new ministry. A coalition ministry may be formed. It is expected that J. Mrs. James Smith, 44 Charles St., Kingston, says: "I always had backache more or less. Accompanying it was hard headaches and nervous, restless nights. My kidneys were inactive and caused me more or less inconvenience. Those difficulties have been removed by Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets. Mrs. John Simmons, 152 Dufferin St., Kingston, says: "I gave Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets that J. B. McLeod, the druggist, introduced, to my daughter and the most satisfactory results followed. My daughter had been suffering from kidney trouble for a long time. There was bloating, backache, languor, depression and dizziness. We had the best physician treating her before that. She was invigorated and relieved from pain. The secretions were corrected and that constant weariness banished. There has been no dropsical symptoms since. We think a great deal of those tablets and do not hesitate to recommend them."
