MR. O'DONOHUE'S MISSION.

The conservative party finds fault because D. J. O'Donohue, the government's anti-sweating agent, is running about and appearing to be engaged in political errands. It is only a suspicion. Mr. O'Donohue's work requires that he go wherever there are government contracts so that he may inquire into them and see that their conditions in regard to labour are being fulfiled. He would not do much good by sitting in Ottawa and asking questions. He knows what is going on by investigations on the spot. He is simply an inspector, and his work can only be done by a personal devotion to the details of his office. At the same time Mr. O'Donohue, as a most pronounced liberal, is not likely to hide his political ideas should occasion arise for a discussion of them. Dan. would sooner resign office than deny he is a grit.

QUESTION OF WHIPPING.

The teacher whose case has come before the county judge has been taught a lesson, and through him a lesson has been taught to all who are similarly engaged. Scholars require correction at times, but that correction should be fairly and reasonably indulged in. The instrument by which the punishment is applied should also be acceptable and for the guidance of all concerned some regulation should be passed in regard to it. A good strap is the conventional article, but a piece of horse trace, a walking cane, and a ruler have been used and with these blows may be inflicted which will have permanent effects. The judge is correct in saying that discipline must be maintained in the schools and without a resort to practices which are in any sense unjustifiable.

This corporeal punishment recalls the the differences of opinion which exist in high circles in the whipping question. Youthful offenders against law and morality have been chastised in the police station, by direction of the magistrate, with a proper gad. This chastisement was deemed necessary and to be preferred to the sending of the boys to jail. It was necessary to impress upon them that they had done a wrong, and it was felt that this could best be done by whipping it into them. The senate, in amending the criminal code, sought to give legal sanction to the practice of the magistrate by fashioning a clause which covered it, and the commons refused to give this sanction. The Whig agrees with the senate that "the objection of the commons to whipping is purely sentimental, that it would be better to give the boys a birching and let them go than to send them to the common jail as had been done where there were not reformatories."

There is some virtue in the rod, when it is judiciously wielded. It may be spared to the great detriment and injury of the youth. The counsel is to use it, well and thoughtfully, and with some respect for the authority which it represents.

TAXING THE CHINESE.

The liberal government has made one step forward in the way of checking Chinese immigration. It has increased the tax upon immigrants of this class from $50 to $100 per head. This increase will not satisfy the average British Columbian. The Chinese have become a nuisance and a burden in the Pacific province. They do not lose their national identity. They do not assimulate with the population, and do not adopt the ways and means of the Canadians.

W. C. Nicholl, formerly editor of the Hamilton Herald, now editor of the Vancouver Province, in an article to the Canadian Magazine, describes the Chinese as a profligate and degenerate race which cannot be educated out of their thievish ways. They work for low wages, but they steal all they can lay their hands on, and become, in the long run, very expensive servants. Of immigrants of their quality the country is pretty well served already, and the government could have compromised with the British Columbians and advanced the tax to one-half the amount they have suggested, namely $250.

The Japanese have of late been complained of. They are more enlightened, more intelligent, more practical, more useful, and inclined to adopt European ideas. They are, too, the allies just now of Great Britain in the eastern embroglio, and the government does not deem it wise to antagonize them. But a commission will be appointed to enquire into the facts and lay them before the imperial government for its information. Perhaps, eventually, something will have to be done to restrain the Jap as well as the Celestial.

Of course the tory opposition is not satisfied. The party that was in power until 1896, that during the preceding year had appeals made to it regarding the Chinese, and turned a deaf ear to them, is now most willing to suppress the Asiaties. Col. Prior and Mr. Wallace are especially distressed because both Chinese and Japanese are not cast off. But they could not be pleased and remain consistent members of the opposition.

HE CANNOT BE SAVED.

The Vancouver liberal association has been moved to do something in behalf of Lieutenant-Governor McInnes. It has passed a resolution approving of the action of his honor during the recent crisis, and "strongly disapproving of any action by the liberal government leading to his removal." That is the Vancouver association has assumed the responsibility of his service, and hopes thereby to save him the consequences of it. But it will not do.

Mr. McInnes pushed the Semlin government out of office. He refused to let it act though on a division it had a majority who were willing it should go on. He called into his confidence a representative of the minority. He trusted his mind and his political life, to Mr. Martin, and with the latter's defeat the lieutenant-governor nearly lost his head. Sir Wilfred Laurier rightly interpreted the situation when he said that in dismissing the government and appealing to the people Mr McInnes put himself in their hands and would have to abide by their verdict.

There is evidence that he does not regard it as he was expected to do. He does not read a want of confidence in the result of the election. He simply receives the resignation of Mr. Martin, accepts it, and calls to his side another one, and intrusts him with the forming of a government. The Vancouver liberals would seek to stand between Mr. McInnes and the Ottawa government. They do not want him to be disturbed. But they are putting politics before principle, and introducing a new element into the discussion, the element of political chance.

The precedent of a lieutenant-governor, playing fast and loose with his responsibility, of discussing governments and dissolving parliaments, in a whimsical way, and offering no apology or atonement to an offended people when they manifest their displeasures, will not do. Mr. McInnes, during the election, was represented by his son as weary of office, as seeking retirement, as having long since sent his resignation to the Ottawa government. His desires ought to be gratified at once. Saltpetre will not save him now.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The St. James Gazette suggests that Mr. Tarte be called home to make his speeches among a people who understand him better. Sensible advice.

The medical profession is great in etiquette and dignity, but there is not much left of either when a vacant office is under consideration and an election is on!

The Fox Bay settlers, en route from Anticosti to Manitoba, where they will settle on government land, were most profuse in the thanks to the Ottawa government for all its kindness to them.

Col. Girouard has won fresh distinction as director of railways in South Africa. His skill in handling heavy traffic, in effecting changes or repairs rapidly, is remarkable. He is perhaps the most distinguished graduate of the Royal military college.

Kruger is maintaining his head and nerve. He has the money with him—all he could collect and borrow before leaving Pretoria—but he is making and issuing paper money in payment for war expenses. But it is not being accepted and so becomes money to burn.

Mrs. Gladstone's career was almost as notable as that of her husband. He was the great leader and speaker, but she was the consort whose judgment and care made his work successful. No public man has amounted to much without a wife who has entered sympathically into all his ideas and plans.

Mr. Monk has been very careful in his motion regarding the concentrated food, to charge neither member of government nor contractor with fraud. He lets himself down very easily. The question resolves itself into: Is the food the contingent received of the same quality as that which was tested in Kingston?

Found The Ring.

Some days ago a Princess street jeweller received a ring to repair. He laid it to one side and when he went again to the spot found it missing. When the owner called he explained matters. A couple of days afterwards the owner called and asked who scrubbed the store. Her name was given in confidence, whereupon the owner of the ring said that the woman mentioned had her ring; she performed work at the home of the young lady and it was while employed there that the owner saw the ring on the woman's finger. A visit to the woman, and a demand for the return of the ring, resulted in its being handed back to the jeweller.

We can't see how people have to have feet that hurt.

AS THROUGH A MIRACLE.

THE WOMAN WAS BEDRIDDEN FOR FORTY-SEVEN YEARS.

Believes She Was Cured in Answer to Prayers—Remarkable Story From New Orleans.

New Orleans Times-Democrat.

After lying helplessly on her back for forty-seven years Mrs. Josephine Hasam, the authoress-poetess, residing at 1352 St. Mary street, without premonition or thought, attempted to walk yesterday and succeeded.

A year ago, on Ascension Thursday, a lamp was lighted in St. Alphonsus church, and it was agreed by the congregation to say novenas for Mrs. Hasam's recovery. Yesterday Mrs. Hasam was, as usual on Sunday, lifted from her bed to a small vehicle and wheeled to St. Alphonsus church. After the services she returned, and for the first time in years felt an impulse to walk. She found little trouble in getting about the room, and was made so happy by the discovery of her returned power that she became hysterical. After she recovered her composure she tried to walk again, and then summoned her children and grand children, who trooped in one by one, if anything, more surprised than the invalid.

The news soon spread through the neighborhood and to the church, and throughout the day people poured in to congratulate the family. Mrs Hasam and her children are convinced that the recovery was a direct response to the prayers said, and the devout one of St. Alphonsus, without exception, expressed a conviction that it was due to supernatural interposition.

Mrs. Hasam is sixty seven years of age, but is wonderfully preserved, and does not appear a day over forty-five. Her maiden name was Ormsby. In 1852 she was married to Thomas Hasam, a pioneer lumber dealer, who died in 1885. During her youth Mrs. Hasam contributed to the leading magazines of the day, and was considered an adept in the use of English and a poetess with a future.

Her invalidism was caused by a pelvic trouble at the age of twenty. For years thereafter specialists throughout the country were consulted. They operated on Mrs. Hasam, but without avail. The last operation was performed by a local physician fifteen years ago, since which no medical practitioner has been called into the case. During that period the invalid had no medical attention of any kind. She was paralysed in the region of the hips, and could not stand on her feet, even when held in that position by willing arms, without suffering excruciating pain.

"Yes, I can walk. I have walked about the rooms to-day, the first time in forty-seven years," said Mrs. Hasam joyfully to a reporter last night. "I hope it is a final and complete recovery, but I don't know. I may not be able to walk to-morrow."

"Of course, I firmly believe it is through a supernatural power this boon has been granted me. For a year my friends have been saying novenas for me. My recovery, I feel sure, is an answer to our prayers. I cannot believe otherwise. I hope it will be a lasting one."

The children of Mrs. Hasam are: Thomas R. Hasam a commission merchant in the city of Mexico; Sidney Hasam, a local manufacturer of boxes, and Joseph Hasam, who is employed in the city hall. Sidney Hasam was seen at his residence, 1415 St. Mary street, and said his mother's recovery was a great surprise to him, and must be a greater one to the medical fraternity, which had given the case up as incurable. He said he could not account for the recovery except through miraculous interposition.

A Courteous Message.

Church circles are interested by the letter of congratualtion sent by the emperor of China to the pope on his ninetieth birthday:

"Emperor of the great region of the great reign of Rome! In the twelfth moon of this year comes the ninetieth anniversary of your birth. This longevity, which has been as a prolonged spring to all the reigns of Europe, is an extraordinary fact. We know that during the twenty years of your reign you have exhorted men to do that which is righteous, wherefore the whole universe exults and is grateful to you.

"On the occasion, therefore, of this happy event we desire to present our best congratulation to you in a most cordial manner. In the first place, we hope that you will celebrate your birthday in good and robust health; and, secondly, that you may live to complete the hundredth year of your life. We also desire that christians and non-christians, both in China and other countries, may live together in mutual harmony, and that all may enjoy the blessings of a prosperous peace. Of this, in truth, we entertain a firm hope."

And after this sweet offering the Chinese officials proceeded to encourage mobs to burn Roman Catholic missions.

Elect Non.-Com. Officers.

The newly formed field ambulance corp had a drill last night. F. Carr-Harris, graduate of the Royal military college, resigned his place in the corp to accept a commission in the 4th Hussars. The vacancy will be filled by Cecil Jones. The members last night elected Whinton and "Bunty" Dalton corporals. A lance corporal is yet to be chosen. At the camp next week the members of the corp will drill one hour and listen to a lecture for one hour; in the afternoon they will drill for another hour.

What's The Matter With This Paint?

Nothing! only that it paints a larger surface better and more economically than any other paint on the market. It gives a fine, even finished appearance without any streaky or blotchy spots such as inferior paint inevitably leaves.

RAMSAY'S PAINTS

are the result of long experience and scientific research. Composed of the finest oils, pigments and colors—mixed in exact proportions by the best and latest machinery—they are simply unsurpassable. Unlike ordinary paints, they will not crack or blister, rain and sun have little effect on them. They are really unfadable, and they protect and preserve all they cover.

Struck By A Train.

Lansdowne, June 15.—Torrance Harpell, a section man working on the section west of here, under foreman Jackson, was struck by a freight train this morning, and though badly cut and bruised, no serious results are feared. He was stooping over with his back towards the train, and though the foreman shouted to him he did not hear. He was fortunately outside the rail, otherwise he would no doubt have been killed. He is a stepson of E. Vanalstine, foreman, here.

Rev. John J. Sheahan, chancellor of the Roman Catholic diocese of Buffalo, died suddenly Thursday night, of erysipelas. He was thirty-six years old and was born in that city. Aside from his theological learning he had attained celebrity as a musical composer and as an expert on electricity.
