For Weddings.

June is the month for weddings. Poets rave over women—lovely woman! Musicians sing and write of her, and all agree that really beautiful women and really beautiful flowers are the loveliest things in the world. Our flowers and the loveliest women are always seen together. If you are leading a bride to the altar you will need some of our lovely flowers. We have still a few hundred Bedding Plants to dispose of which we will sell cheap to close out the balance of our Bedding Stock for this season. At the Floralum, Market Square.

Denyes'; Miss Sarah Moore at G. Watts'; Mrs. S. D. Clarke, Violet, at Mrs. Day's; William Cairns at his father's, Miss Effie and Mrs. Henry Stornes at Anson Storms'.

Yarker Yieldings.

Yarker, June 20.—There are a good many who will remember the circus in Napanee as they were relieved of their money by pick-pockets. The Rathbun drive got through here all right, having plenty of water. The McLaughlin employees will get through with their work here this week, when they will leave for their homes at Ottawa. Crops in this section are looking well. Rev. G. S. White preached here on Sunday. Mr. Moles and family, of Arnprior, are at A. W. Benjamin's. Mrs. Breault, of Tweed, is here, and also Mrs. J. Gilliran, of Alexandria Bay. A. C. Scott has secured a position in Kingston. Frank Crimmons, Watertown, N.Y., has started house keeping, moving into the terrace. E. W. Benjamin is building his summer cottage at Sydenham. Mrs. Toby, of Napanee, called on many here Saturday last. The wheel factory is running over time to keep pace with orders. Marshall Peters, of Thorpe, and Marshall Jackson, of Tweed, were in town this week. Messrs. Hayden, Ryan, Finkle and J. C. Connelly, are now at Sydenham lake.

Strathcona Statements.

Strathcona Station, June 19.—W. McAvoy raised his barn lately, 150 men were present. The Rathbun company's drive has camped here. Mrs. John Murphy, all over four weeks, has been removed to her father's, R. Pybus. F. Ham's little girl fell from a stool and broke her arm. Mr. McHenry has a sore leg he injured it some time ago. Mrs. Morgan is able to be out, although not fully recovered from grippe. The ice cream festival in the Methodist church, 13th inst., was a success. D. A. Nesbit, B.A., Newburgh, occupied the chair and was the life of the entertainment. Mrs. B. Rose deserves the thanks of the congregation for the work she did in connection with it. Mrs. R. Ramsay and Mrs. H. Martin are spending a few days in Kingston visiting their brother, Mr. Glenn. J. Turnbull and Miss Denne were the guests of Mrs. Lott lately. H. Harrington is recovering from blood poisoning. Mr. Marton lost a good colt lately. Word has been received here that William Foreward, Michigan, was dead. He married Miss Nancy Martin, of this place, a few years ago. Mrs. Foreward was well known here as the Martins are one of the pioneer families of Canada. Some who attended the circus in Napanee yesterday were disappointed. Mrs. Crowley, of Toronto, sang in Newburgh Sunday evening. Mrs. James Ackerman is in very poor health.

A Fine Singing Concert.

Harrowsmith, June 18.—The concert by the singing class under direction of Prof. Beal, Brockville, had a full house. A quartette, Misses Boyce and Bell and Mr. Bell, Colebrook, with Prof. Beal, were well received. Mrs. Lacy, Sydenham, always a prime favorite of Harrowsmith audiences, sang the "Blue Alsatian Mountains" and "Mona," and was enthusiastically applauded. A duet by Mabel Graves and Annie Brady was nicely rendered. Solo parts were taken by Mrs. Hunter, Misses Sinclair, Myrtle Gallagher and Mabel Graves. The younger folk, Gracie Graves and Minnie Sproule in soprana and alto duets, and Master Ross Hunter with his piccalo, were not behind their elders. Rev. Reeve, of Sydenham, after a humorous introduction spoke of the war, but particularly of lord Roberts. Rev. Kelly complimented Prof. Beal on his excellent work. The singing in church had wonderfully improved and the attitude of the young people was more reverent. Daniel Graves has sold his trotting horse Prince Waxford to Mr. Wilder, of Kingston, who will take the horse to Winnipeg. Those who know say Mr. Wilder had to pay a fancy price for the horse. Mrs. G. A. Redmond is improving. No preaching in the Presbyterian church next Sabbath, but Sabbath school as usual.

After Seven Years' Absence.

Vennachar, June 18.—A picnic will be held in Gregg's grove on July 4th. The law suit between John Flake and William Connors was settled in the usual way, each one paying half the costs. Wilbur Sweetnam has made some improvements on his house. Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Sweetnam start to-day for an extended visit with friends and relatives in Prince Edward county and several cities in the United States. They have been in failing health for some time and it is to be hoped the change will do them much good. A. C. Sweetnam made a flying trip to Kingston last week. Mr. Burrows, I.P.S., visited our school last week and was much pleased with it. Thomas Patience, a former resident, visiting his invalid mother and others, returned to Shenandoah, Iowa, last Wednesday. After an absence of about seven years, his friends were glad to see him looking so hale and hearty. Mr. Bell and Miss Nora Rodgers, Rose Hill, visited at George Hughes' last week. R. W. Conner went to Tamworth this week on business. Prosper Cowan has gone to Sharbot Lake to work. Miss M. Conner and Miss Annie Pelwe arrived from Oswego, N.Y., last week to visit their parents. They spent two days in Kingston with Miss Clara Howarth. Miss Conner leaves to-day to return to duties as nurse in training in Oswego hospital. Mrs. Jacob Drader returned on Saturday after an absence of nearly a year. Visitors at R. Conner's: Mrs. Stalker and Mrs. Minnie, Mallory Hill, and A. H. and Miss Tillie Lane, Denbigh. G. E. Price has the contract of building Solomon Reloe's new house.

HAVEN'T HEARD OF THE WAR.

People Who Are Ten Years Behind the Times and Are Happy.

With hundreds of thousands of men at peril of their lives in South Africa, the news from the front occupying three fifths of every newspaper, it seems hard to conceive of any intelligent being who hasn't heard of the war. But there are plenty.

In fact, there are whole communities in Britain small, but still communities—that knew nothing of the empire's struggle till quite lately. It is only last week that a stranger entered a small hamlet in East Cumberland, and broached the subject of the war, to find that not a soul in the place had heard of it. There were only fourteen souls altogether, eight of them grown up, but it is extraordinary that even so few should be so vastly ignorant. The inhabitants are mostly shepherds and pig owners, and it is their boast that hardly one newspaper a year enters the hamlet, which is eight miles from the nearest village, and that not a single letter has ever arrived there during its history.

Isolated cases of people who "don't know" are pretty frequent, even in England. In the wilder parts of Ireland and Scotland there are plenty of the queen's subjects who do not know we are pounding the Boers. This is a little surprising to the average citizen, who by this time has a feeling that we have always been at war, and always shall be, so full of it is the air. One must remember that hundreds of people have never heard of Africa.

Abroad there are endless people who know nothing of England's conflict, but in some parts, notably the South American republics, there are entire countries who haven't yet got the news. If you were to ask the average Chilian or Peruvian, drinking bitter coffee outside his dwelling, when he thought the war would end, he would have no notion what you were talking about, and would tell you he did not know it had begun. But the chief Chilian paper, the Liberatad, did get hold of the news the other day, and spread it abroad. But only the paper's few subscribers and their friends know, and many a Peruvian now young will live to a good old age and die without ever hearing of the Anglo-Boer war of 1899-1900. News is not a strong point in those parts.

HOW HE WAS CAUGHT.

Winston Churchill, Correspondent, Describes His Capture.

I turned and ran between the rails of the track, and the only thought I believed was this: "Boer marksmanship." Two bullets passed, both within a foot of either side. I flung myself against the bank of the cutting. But they gave no cover. Another glance at the figures, one was now kneeling to aim. Again I darted forward. Movement seemed the only chance. Again two soft kisses sucked in the air, but nothing struck me. This I could not endure. I must get out of the cutting—that cursed corridor. I scrambled up the bank. The earth sprang up beside me and something touched my hand, but outside the cutting was a tiny depression. I crouched in this, struggling to get my wind. On the other side of the railway a horseman galloped up, shouting to me and waving his hand. He was scarcely forty yards off. With a rifle I could have killed him easily. I knew nothing of white flags, and the and the bullets had made me savage. I reached down for my Mauser pistol.

"This one, at least," I said, and, indeed, it was a certainty, but, alas! I had left the weapon in the cab of the engine, in order to be free to work at the wreckage. What then? There was a wire fence between me and the horseman. Should I continue to fly? The idea of another shot at such a short range decided me. Death stood before me, grim, sullen death, without his light-hearted companion, chance. So I held up my hand, and, like Mr. Jorrock's foxes, cried: "Capivy." Then I was herded with the other prisoners in a miserable group, and about the same time I noticed that my hand was bleeding, and it began to pour with rain. Two days before I had written to an officer in high command at home, whose friendship I have the honor to enjoy: "There has been a great deal too much surrendering in this war, and I hope people who do this will not be encouraged." Fate had intervened; yet, though her tone was full of irony, she seemed to say, as I think Ruskin once said, "It matters very little whether your judgments of people are true or untrue, and very much whether they are kind or unkind," and, repeating that, I will make an end."

Wedded At Soperton.

"Long View," Soperton, the pretty home of Robert Taber, was the scene of a very brilliant wedding on Wednesday evening, June 13th, at 8.30 o'clock. The principals were Wesley Taylor Towriss, Glen Buell, and Miss Blanche Taber. As the bridal party took their places under a beautiful horseshoe of white marguerites, Mrs. J. Murphy, Oak Leaf, played "Mendelsohn's Wedding March." The bride was given away by her father. She looked lovely in a dress of cream poplin, trimmed with satin, lace and pearls. She carried a bouquet of cream roses and white carnations and smylax. The bridesmaid, Miss Emma Dalton, Brockville, cousin of the bride, looked charming in white organdie over blue. Watson Percivall supported the groom. After the ceremony, performed by Rev. D. Earl, Delta, assisted by Rev. A. G. Robertson, Oxford Mills, the guests, about thirty in number, sat down to a very recherche supper. The floral decorations of both supper room and drawing rooms were handsome. Pink and white roses and lilies predominated in supper room, and ferns and daisies in parlors. The happy couple left on the early train the following morning for a trip to Toronto, Bolton and other western places. The large list of presents showed the esteem in which the bride was held.
