A VERY LIVELY ICE TROT.

THE FREE-FOR-ALL CONTEST WAS DECIDEDLY INTERESTING.

Five Heats Necessary to Decide the Race—Ten Horses in the Three-Minute Spurt, But a Procession For the Majority—The Green Race Decided.

It seemed to be the unanimous opinion, yesterday afternoon, that the free-for-all trot was one of the best exhibitions of first-class horse racing possible to occur. The ice was excellent, the contestants evenly matched, the judges gave no occasion for a murmur, the crowd, an enthusiastic race-horse assemblage, and the racers themselves appeared as fresh as lilies. The attendance is estimated at over 3,500 people, and probably this count was not far wrong. An advantage over the day previous was the perfection of the weather; what wind there was [illegible] be south-west, and, accordingly, was not very troublesome. About all the betting done by the outside ring concerned this race. The fact of there being only three horses to start had an influence on backers. Each horse had its many supporters, but men, old in experience, left the race rested between Minnie and Frank L. Minnie got the pole, with Frank L. at her right and Daisy S. next. Minnie was all off this heat as regards steady trotting. Her driver could not make her keep her feet. Still, however, it is doubtful if the horse gained anything on such breaks. Minnie kept the lead the second time round and a pretty race was seen as the horses came down the home stretch. Frank L. swerved to one side and it looked as if he would win, but as the equine flew past the judges' stand it was seen that Minnie was a head in. Mr. Wallace, driver of Frank L., wanted a trotting race, he said. Fair play should be given and a horse running set back. In the second heat the tables were turned. The horses ended neck and neck, causing the judges to spend some time in reaching a decision. It was given in favor of Frank L. on account of Minnie running.

There was a heap of money on Minnie and one of her backers induced James Guess to handle the horse's ribbons. The owner had driven the first two heats. Guess had complete control of the horse. He had trained her and could get more speed than any other man. Odds were now given on Minnie. In the third heat she finished a neck ahead of Frank L., in 2:55. Excitement was intense and to make it even greater the fourth attempt to settle the race was a dead heat between Minnie and Frank L. The horses were nose and nose as they flew in. Frank L. had broken once in the mile and Minnie retained her feet as she did in all following heats. The time was 2:56. The crowd was impatient, the flyers lined up for the fifth heat, got off nicely, "and a race for your life," as someone said, ensued. Minnie got the lead and held it. Daisy S. crouched on her on the back stretch but to no avail. The pass could not be made and Minnie finished not more than a nose the winner. In all heats Daisy S. was a good third. Three more evenly matched horses it would be hard to find.

FREE-FOR-ALL TROT.

Minnie, W. D. McRae	1	2	1	0	1
Frank L., L. A. Beach	2	1	2	0	2
Daisy S., W. P. Corkey	3	3	3	3	3

Time—2:56, 2:54, 2:55, 2:56, 2:59.

Ten horses in a three-minute race makes quite a bunch, but still the race did not conclude badly. All interest had been centred in the free-for-all, and the crowd in their present mood could hardly appreciate anything good coming from the three-minute horses. Protests were numerous, as usual. H. Harkness protested Golden Prince as coming from Amherst Island and Sirtattan Chief, a Gananoque horse, in the green race. J. Butterfield for A. Dafoe, owner of Maud D., entered a paper against Island Chief as not eligible for the three-minute race.

The horses got off this way: Factory Chief, Bessy M., Bayonet, Little Maud, Little Fred, Maud D., Maggie M., Island Chief, Bessie G., Neighbor. It seemed to be no trouble to single out the winners, although Bessie M. fooled the majority on the start. She got away like a marked horse and never seemed to relax her speed. The result was on the home spurt. Bayonet could not cover the gap between them and Maud D. got a good third. Maud D. had every appearance of a race horse. Bayonet had trotted in the 2:40 race on Thursday and was not as fresh as his owner would liked to have seen him. There seemed to be little difficulty in deciding the race. The Belleville horse will, no doubt, make a mark this summer. He won the next three heats straight, and the time received was quite as good as that of the free-for-all with not one-third the starters. The first, by Bessie M., gave her second place in the race. Bayonet got two seconds and a third. In the first heat Mackie did loose work with Bessie M. The judges set his horse back to second place. Then Mackie withdrew.

THREE-MINUTE CLASS.

Factory Girl, Geo. Darragh	5	7	5	4
Bayonet, W. J. Lyons	6	2	3	2
Bessie M., B. Brisco	1	3	2	1
Maud D., J. Butterfield	3	1	1	1
Little Maud, H. Mackie	2	dr.
Neighbor, A. N. Parks	9	5	7	6
Maggie M., H. Milling	8	4	9	6
Little Fred, Geo. Hulbert	10	8	dr.
Island Chief, A. McCann	4	dr.
Bessie G., F. Metcalfe	7	6	4	3

Time—2:57, 3:00, 3:00, 2:58, 2:59.

The green race was finished, Sirtattan Chief having no difficulty in getting first money, with Golden Prince an easy second and Billy B. third. Jennie got fourth. The latter two are Kingston horses, and good work may come from them next summer.

Notes In The Wind.

Mr. Wallace is ready to bet that the track was at least a mile and one eighth, twice around.

The committee claims the track was 400 yards over the mile. According to this fast time was made.

A man wanted to bet, yesterday, that B. W. Folger was the best fast driver in town. B. W. was tickled.

W. J. Lyons, who entered Bayonet in the races, says he was well satisfied with the decision of the judges. They tried to give everyone fair play.

In the third heat of the three-minute race Bessie M. was pocketed. The sulky toppled over and the driver fell off. He was up and off in a second, however.

C. H. Corbett, Jas. McParland and Capt. Hudon were the judges yesterday. Satisfactory decisions were given in every case. Mr. Corbett is a good starter.

Mr. McParland would like to know how it is that on certain kinds of track horses with fast records can never make their class while green horses always do good work.

The matched race between F. Metcalfe's Bessie Gibson and H. Harkness' Jennie H. will have to be postponed, as Mr. Harkness is confined to his room through illness.

Arrangements are being made for a hack drivers', butchers', grocers' and carters' race, to occur on the ice in the harbor. The drivers to change horses, the best horse to win.

The judges were much pleased with the owner of Bayonet. He never had a thing to kick against and always seemed pleased with what he got. Bayonet is a Harrowsmith horse, with promising future. He won the 2:40 race and got third in the three minute class.

At one time it was thought a match could be made between the owner of Minnie and Mr. Beach, owner of Frank L. The latter offered $200 to $100, but would not stick to this. Mr. Wallace, driver, says on a good mile kite-shaped track Frank L. can beat Minnie "out of sight."

A NEW INSTITUTION.

Kingston Becoming a Greater Centre of Music.

The Mason & Risch Piano Company (limited), of Toronto, have leased for a term of years the entire building at 125 Princess street and will make extensive alterations and improvements.

The ground floor will be tastefully and artistically fitted up as a show room for pianos and organs. The upper floors will be adapted to the requirements of a conservatory of music. All the partitions will be removed from the second floor and it will be converted into a lecture and recital hall. The top floors will be made into apartments for instruction and practice. The credit, reputation and financial standing of the Mason & Risch Piano Company are of the best and their trade of the finest.

The company believe that Kingston possesses great possibilities as a musical centre and that only skillful, diligent and energetic application are required to develop them. An evidence of the company's faith it may be stated that Kingston is the only place in the province at which they will have a branch establishment, and that the branch here in respect to appointments and equipments will compare favorably with any similar establishment in Canada. Joseph W. Callahan, of Toronto, will remove here and assume the management. Mr. Callahan has had extensive experience as a salesman in the warerooms at Toronto, and is at present the general traveller of the house.

CITY AND VICINITY.

A Kindergarten Meeting.

Miss Bolton will give an address on "Kindergarten" in the city hall. Thursday evening, March 9th. Singing by the Kindergarten classes.

To-Night Only.

Gents, your choice of the best and nobbiest felt hats in Fred Pugh's bankrupt stock for $1. Pause for a moment and think of $2 and $3 hats clearing out for $1, at Dunbar's old stand, Wellington street.

Has Changed Hands.

Finley & Rysdon, St. Thomas, have purchased the hardware stock of McMahon for 75c on the dollar. Mr. Rysdon is interested in the Erie iron works. Allan McMahon will superintend the business here for the new firm.

Will Return To The States.

C. H. Powell, carpenter, will return to New Rochelle, N.Y., in a few weeks. Mr. Powell had a good job at carpentering there before Christmas. Through sickness, however, he was obliged to come home. He is now working on the str. Corsican, being repaired. A Belleville man is after his property on Picard street and a sale will probably be made.

Police Court—Saturday.

Daniel Murphy was the sole occupant of the dock at the police court this morning. The charge was drunkenness and a fine of $5 and costs or two months in jail was levied.

The police claim that it was at the request of Mrs. Delph that her husband was arrested. The magistrate sent Delph to jail for his wife's sake.

A Match In Kingston.

Queen's vs. Ottawa hockey match has been definitely arranged to occur at Kingston next Wednesday. This is to Queen's advantage and the boys are unanimous in asserting that the city champions stand a good show of winning. Queen's should remember that their defeat by Winnipeg was due entirely to the discouragement of the players in the first half. Let Queen's sustain the confidence imposed in her.

A Serious Charge.

A serious charge, that of bigamy with a blind girl, whom he has deserted, has been made publicly in Western Ontario against Capt. Andrews, life saver, a brave Kingston boy very eager for medals and applause, as conducive to a professional career. He has done so many noble acts and has conducted himself so well his friends will require more than newspaper charges by the girl's friends before losing their confidence in him.

Give Them Good Terms.

J. D. Thompson says the city wants an electric street car service. He would be in favor of giving the company the use of the streets for fifty years, providing the company will surrender its charter and keep the roads in perfect order. At the present time the city is not receiving any benefit from the company. It has got a perpetual charter, and the city has got to keep the streets in repair. Under the present system the streets are a disgrace.

St. Andrew's "At Home."

An "At Home" was held by the congregation of St. Andrew's church in the lecture hall, last night, where a very pleasant evening was spent. J. McIntyre, Q.C., acted as chairman and made a suitable address. S. Shannon opened the musical programme with a piano solo, "Haymaker's Dance," followed by W. G. Craig in a solo, "The Chase." Miss M. McIlroy played the "Invitation to Waltz" in her usual brilliant manner, after which the congregation partook of refreshments, generously supplied by the social section of the young ladies' guild, of which Miss McIlroy is convener. The "At Home" broke up with all joining hands and singing "Auld Lang Syne" in real old Scottish fashion. The members of the talent fund had a display of their work on hand, of which quite a lot was disposed of.

Goes to Toledo, Ohio.

Dr. A. F. Mavety has decided to accept the position offered him in Toledo, Ohio, with the Prudential life insurance company, and will go west next week. The doctor received the proposition several weeks ago, and it came in the shape of a great surprise. He made enquiries, visited New York and Toledo, and found the office so tangible that he has concluded that his interests would be conserved in taking it. He says he greatly regrets leaving Kingston, for which he has much love, but the outlook in Toledo is so bright that he considers it wise to go. He will also do a private practice there. He has been a resident of Kingston for five years, had a good practice and held many offices in colleges and societies. Himself and Mrs. Mavety were admirable entertainers, and in church and society circles held a warm place. Their removal will be sincerely regretted. Dr. Wood succeeds him here.

Ask For Opinions.

A citizen, talking about the electric street railway matter, said to-day that the members of the civic committee, appointed to deal with the subject, have not gone about it in the right way. Unless they employed some other means to arrive at a conclusion than they had adopted, the end would be a great way off, as far as they were concerned. If the committeemen were really desirous of bringing about a settlement they should instruct the city solicitor to write to other places for the opinion of street railway experts, men who thoroughly understand their business, as to what would be a fair basis on which to arrange a compromise between the city and the street railway company. The company had, in the perpetual charter, a very valuable asset, and it was hard to estimate its value. For its surrender they should be given a very liberal equivalent.

The aldermen are of the opinion that Mr. Folger should have made them a definite offer long before this. They have nothing before them from the company of a decided character.

"Go to sleep."

The "News" seems to have a low conception of Mr. Calvin, and his convictions. In an editorial it suggests that Mr. Calvin could decide as he did because the administration's majority would permit it. The WHIG and people who know him, place Mr. Calvin's principles at a higher estimate. There is no insincerity about him. If the administration's retention in power depended on his vote on tariff reform, then the government would have to fall. Mr. Calvin never lowers his standard for expediency's sake.

SEEKS A NEW MANAGER.

A Brighter Day Dawning For The Royal Mail Line.

The Montreal "Star" announces that Henry Folger, the steamboat end of that varied business element known as the Folger brothers, of Kingston, has been offered the post of general manager of the Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Company, with a liberal allowance. It is an especial compliment to the admiral of the Thousand Island fleet that he has been sought for the position. With extensive business interests and engagements he probably does not pine for new connections of an onerous nature, and the offer was a surprise to him. It has been accompanied by marks of confidence that would incline almost any one to accept. The engagement would be fortunate alike for the company and for the new manager. The controlling interest has fallen to the Messrs. Connolly and their friends, and this new control has sought at once to place the steamers in skilled and popular hands. The Royal mail line management has of late seemed, to use a marine expression, like a ship at sea without a rudder. Thoroughness and popularity were foreign to its name, its economy was misplaced and it made few friends in port or out of it, commanding patronage only because it held the river in its grasp. With N. K. Connolly as president, the line will have an enterprising head, whom everybody regards with favor and confidence. Under Henry Folger as manager it will secure the good will and incidental aid of the popular connections and influences of his friends in the railway systems of the United States and Canada, of the whole force of Upper St. Lawrence navigation lines, and of the vast public behind them, who would feel that soon there will be general efficiency and content. Mr. Folger mingles with keen business sense the courtesy of a gentleman, and endeavors to impart these elements to the officers of his steamers. They know that his policy is prudent and firm, that his word is his bond, and he readily commands the respect and obedience which alone ensure the highest efficiency. Connolly brothers and Folger brothers will make a strong combination and let us hope the good old mail line will steer back to the waters of prosperity, as befits the longest line in operation in America, covering also the most varied and picturesque routes.

MAKING UP ESTIMATES.

The Requirements of the Committees for the Coming Year.

Many of the civic committees met yesterday and arranged their estimates for the year. The wharves and harbor committee will recommend that $1,500 be allowed to be expended in the filling of the breakwater, and that application be made for the stone, taken out of the harbor, to be used in filling in the breakwater. It was moved by Ald. Bowes and carried that the committee recommend that the slip at the water works wharf be converted into a bathing place at a cost of $700, if the water works committee is willing.

The printing committee opened tenders for the city printing and the contract was awarded to the WHIG. Henderson & Co. will supply the stationery. The committee will ask for $2,000 to be expended by it in various ways, and for $400 to be used in completing the printing of the consolidated by-laws. No action was taken on the application of R. E. Burns for the city to advertise in the guide book to be issued by the canoe association. It was desired that one page be filled by the city at a cost of twenty-five dollars.

The fire water and light committee will ask for $16,000, four hundred more than last year. The increase is caused by the use of extra street lamps, and the increase in firemen's wages.

The parks committee will want about $1,850, and the city property committee about $1,500. The latter committee intend to make some repairs to the city buildings. The walls will likely be pointed outside and patches put in the ceilings. If it is satisfactory that civic committees should meet in the police court room, forty dollars will be spent in carpeting it.

On the advice of the city engineer the streets department will ask for $21,000. This was the nearest estimate for the streets department the engineer could make while the snow was on the ground. It is impossible to tell at the present time how much money the committee will need this year. The finance committee was to have met last evening to adjust the estimates that had been sent in. It is learned that the committee intend to cut the total expenditure very fine. It is not desired to increase the rate of taxation, and to avoid this any improvements or work that can be done without will not be continued. A great effort will be made to have the budget completed for the next meeting of the council.

CIRCLE OF THE CHURCHES.

News From All Denominations—Filling of the Pulpits.

TYPICAL SERVICE HELD.

THE SECOND SUNDAY SERVICE IN THE MISSION HOUSE.

Rev. George E. Hartwell Writes of a Service in Chen-Tu—The People Rushed in And Out—The Chinese When Converted Will Make Remarkable Preachers.

CHEN-TU, Dec. 15.—This service was held Sunday, Nov. 13th, 1892, in the outer court of our mission which is being used at present as a chapel. It began at the orthodox hour, half past ten. To call the people together a gong was beaten immediately in front of the chapel. The familiar hymn, "Jesus Loves Me" heartily sung by the few Chinamen who regularly attend our services quickly attracted a court full of people. The preacher was a Chinaman. A few verses in the III chapter of St. John were read and the sermon began. One peculiarity about a Chinese street congregation is their continual motion. The preacher may have seventy-five hearers in his presence throughout the whole service and yet preach to three or four hundred people. The oddity of this service consisted in the strange figures that at one time or another made up the congregation.

The first to attract attention were Buddhist priests dressed in long flowing yellow robes. They listened attentively for a few moments and passed out. Then two young men entered holding upon their right arm a large hawk. I expected to see them offer their birds for sale, but afterwards learned that these birds were held in much the same esteem in Chen-Tu as pug dogs are by some in America. Next I observed a man, dressed in furs and wearing a hat, designating his official rank, attended by a few friends, enter the court. In his train were servants carrying an elaborate tray which contained a large live rooster, a quarter of lamb, a piece of pork and a dressed duck. These were set down in the midst of the people. Everybody's attention was turned to this tray, but the preacher; he never paused. This small official had been cured of an ulcer, and according to Chinese ettiquette had brought the customary articles of food to express his gratitude.

A travelling meat shop next appeared. This consisted of two neatly-devised frames attached to the ends of a long pole and carried across the shoulder of a man. From both poles dangled large slices of beef, pork and mutton. This shop was hung up in a very conspicuous place near the gateway as if to sell to those who were passing out. The man, however, joined the group of listeners, listened attentively for a while, then shouldering his load started down the street.

The next attraction was on the street. A bride passed by on the way to her husband's home. In her train were a large number of ragged boys carrying Chinese mottos, men carrying flags and trays of provisions for the feast. All went well until a band reached the doorway playing a Chinese march. Suddenly there was a rustling through the congregation and presently from all sides rushed forth the small boy. In a few moments peace was restored and my eyes wandered over the then assembled crowd. The rows of seats upon the side and at the back were occupied by Chinese women. Their little feet from one to three inches in length were enclosed in fancifully worked shoes. Sometimes they would listen attentively, then when the preacher's discourse became to much involved they would talk among themselves. Alas! heathenism displays its withering hand in the undeveloped faculties of the women whose minds like their feet are kept enslaved.

Literary men, tradesmen and laboring men occupied the remaining seats. The Chinese resemble the Athenians, in that they are always ready to hear some new thing. To see a number of people in the court of a foreign residence was sufficient to attract all passers-by, who had any leisure. Men dressed in silks or satins, with hugh goggles astride their nose, mingled with half naked and shivering coolies. Peddlars, with various kinds of merchandise, were present. Two or three cloth merchants, with heaps of cotton by their side, occupied one seat. Resting his load of bowls upon the back of another seat was a pottery man, listening. Near the preacher stood a man holding a long crooked pole, from which dangled fine combs, tooth brushes, salt spoons, and an assortment of Chinese trinkets beautifully carved from bone. To the right arose a similar stick with boxes of foreign safety matches attached. A boy peddling peanuts could be seen skirmishing along the edge of the crowd, and finally walking up the aisle. A travelling restaurant where hot vice could be obtained at all hours established itself in a vacant corner. Baskets of vegetables almost blocked up the passage way at times. Sometimes the court would be quite filled with listeners, then a voice would cry tsoo (let us go) and half the congregation would depart. Fortunately there was a ground floor, so that their footsteps were inaudible.

Strange to say, the preacher paid no attention to these interruptions. He talked straight [illegible]g. The first part of the first [illegible] [illegible]ood, then, resuming his seat [illegible] as his subject required [illegible] emphasis. Once in a while he [illegible] as though collecting his thoughts, and then plunge into his subject with greater earnestness. Sometimes he would use a colloquial style, sometimes exhort and then invite. He reached one climax so naturally and so effectively I felt that the Chinamen, when well versed in scriptural truths, will make noble preachers. He began at the beginning of the gospel and ended with a description of the ascension. In this description every eye was fixed upon him and there was a deep silence. He was sitting when he began. As he drew near to the moment of our Lord's ascension his voice was almost hushed, then stretching forth his hands he began to wave gently upward, rising slowly to his feet as his emotions arose and carrying with him the rapt attention of the motley crowd he mentally reached the clouds whose fleecy folds he parted with a gentle movement of the hand and ushered the Prince of Peace into the presence of the Father. He sat down. It was twenty-five minutes to one. The service was over two hours long, yet many sat and listened attentively throughout.—GEORGE E. HARTWELL.

THE WATCH RECOVERED.

Merchant Who Deserted His Wife Has Been Heard From.

The WHIG has again been successful in bringing the wrong-doer to his senses. A couple of months ago an interview was obtained with Mrs. Merchant, Sydenham street, regarding the conduct of her husband. He had gone off on a big spree, leaving his family in poor circumstances and disposing of a gold watch belonging to R. J. Spoor, Wolfe Island, given him to repair. Merchant was a watchmaker and had been doing a "from door to door" business lately, canvassing for work. The other day Mr. Spoor received a letter from Merchant telling him that the watch was at Mrs. Julian's second-hand store. The writer stated that he had left the watch there for security, having borrowed a dollar. Merchant stated that his wife exaggerated his conduct in the WHIG'S interview. He had seen a copy of the paper. He claimed that he always supported his wife and used her right until his last drunk. From the composition of the letter Mr. Spoor is of opinion that Merchant thought he (Spoor) had a detective on the trail. Merchant stated that Spoor could go and get the watch and give the fact to the WHIG so that he (Merchant) would know that the watch was returned to the owner; then Merchant would send Spoor the costs. Mr. Spoor showed the reporter the watch. It has a very handsome gold case and cost $75. Mr. Spoor took an officer with him in going to the second-hand store. Mrs. Julian claimed she bought the watch from Merchant for $1. Spoor had to pay $2 to get it back. Mr. Spoor handed Merchant's letter over to his (Merchant's) wife. The woman says that her statement in the WHIG was true in every particular. Her husband did fail to support her. There is no date on the letter more than the post office stamp, and this is blurred and indistinct. It looks like Havelock, Ont., however. Merchant intimates that he will return to Kingston.

Cruel Jesting Causes Distress.

The "News," with cruel indifference, and with a desire to create a laugh, published this paragraph:

"There was a rumor circulated in the city to-day, which found some credence, to the effect that the mysterious disappearance of Felix Vanasky had been cleared up by the finding of his clothes behind the building occupied by Harry Harkness' bear, while Vanasky himself was supposed to be on the interior of the bear. The story was a bare-faced falsehood. Investigation was made. The bear was interviewed, and he denied the charge in toto."

The family and friends are greatly distressed over the publication. It may be considered very funny and a subject for joking in the "News" office, but to the family the disappearance of a husband and father is distressing, and more intense because of the suspense in not knowing where he is, though his death is generally regarded. The family are worthy of sympathy rather than mockery and jest. The WHIG has been asked to write this by their friends. It would be generally considered by some publishers that the results of silly paragraphs in regard to Messrs. Martin and Sullivan would have a lesson.
