THE ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

THE GOVERNMENT QUESTIONED ON ITS MINING POLICY.

A Few Subsidies to Railways to Connect With the Iron Ore Deposits the Extent of the Encouragement Promised by the Legislature.

TORONTO, May 26.—If there is any truth in that old superstition that a bird's visit to an inhabited house means death to one of its members, then certainly should the Assembly's session have died yesterday. Early in the morning a venturesome sparrow found his way into the chamber, where he remained, with occasional flittings of inspection, until at 1.20 a.m., disgusted by half a dozen divisions, he retired to his perch on a piece of scroll work and viewed, with one bright eye open, the members as they filed wearily out.

The House did not seem anxious to waste any time. It was determined if possible to clear off the order paper, so that third readings, second readings, considerations in committee were reeled off with bewildering rapidity.

Perhaps the longest discussion was on Mr. Davis' motion, that the report of the Public Accounts Committee be adopted. Mr. Marter arose, charged with the information that he has elicited in committee. He talked of eggs and coal, of Mr. Noxon and Warden Massie, of Mr. Wheeler and Mr. Scott, of everything, in fact, of which the public has been informed with reference to the Public Accounts Committee.

The Provincial Secretary excused the appointment of Mr. Noxon, as has been detailed before, and with reference to that outstanding account of the province against the Brandon Manufacturing Company, repeated what he had already said in committee.

After Mr. Fraser had explained that his two-hour debate was irregular and out of order the report was adopted.

During the morning session concurrence in supply had taken most of the time and the tail end of the afternoon was taken up with the passing of the supplementary estimates. These amount to $242,471.16. The most important items are: County of Oxford House of Refuge $4000, maintenance and repairs of public buildings $35,605, colonization roads $17,100, expense of maintaining the Ontario exhibit at the Columbian Exposition $57,000, expenses of legislation, public institutions, maintenance and salaries for January, 1894, $80,000.

Then all flowed along serenely until these railway aid resolutions came up:

To the Irondale, Bancroft and Ottawa Railway Company from a point 10 miles east of Irondale at the end of the portion of said railway to which aid was granted in 1892, and thence easterly 15 miles, $3000 per mile.

To the Ottawa, Arnprior and Parry Sound Railway Company from Barry's Bay, westerly 35 miles, $3000 per mile.

To the Kingston, Napanee and Western Railway Company for such extensions or branches of its projected and authorized line of railway north of the village of Tweed as will not exceed 30 miles in all, and will enable the said company to connect its existing line of railway with the iron ore deposits lying northward of said village of Tweed, $3000 per mile.

To the Central Counties Railway Company, from Hawkesbury to South Indian, $2000 per mile.

Now it will be observed that the Government in this railway aid is making some attempt to develop the mineral resources of the province.

Mr. Meredith, while concurring in this laudable effort, objected that the policy was not broad enough and that the aid was piecemeal, not generous. He made an amendment [illegible] Harty [illegible] with the Opposition. [illegible] hardly immediately afterwards introduced his bill regarding the resolutions.

These resolutions have been on the order paper for four days. They appeared shortly after Mr. Hardy's announcement that a mining policy would be enunciated.

Mr. Meredith's remarks were exceedingly pertinent. The meagre outline the Government had brought down did not accord well with Mr. Hardy's announcement of an intended mining policy. He accused them of keeping it back in order to use it as an effective weapon at the next general elections.

Mr. Conmee, who had joined issue with the Opposition, coincided with what Mr. Meredith had said. This scheme, he considered, a great exercise of imagination on the part of any Government who should dub such a fragmentary thing a policy.

He had seen his friend, the Commissioner of Crown Lands, turn many sharp corners very cleverly, but never a sharper one than this. This was, succinctly, what Mr. Conmee said, and he further showed his displeasure by registering, as aforesaid, an Opposition vote.

Mr. Hardy pooh-poohed his honorable friend's remarks and cried "nonsense" when he was accused of concealing a bludgeon for the next election.

Mr. Hardy further said that the Government had not deemed it advisable to grant money to establish smelting furnaces, nor to grant bonuses for the manufacture of pigiron. None of the proposed companies had shown that they were on a sufficiently sound financial basis or given any warrant of success. He did not think it wise to interfere with private enterprise.

The member for Algoma fought for the development of our mineral resources. He moved that when Mr. Hardy's bill regarding the resolutions came up for its third reading that these words be added "and that it is the opinion of this House that during the recess the Government should consider and submit to the House some measure looking to the development of the mineral resources of the province."

Mr. Fraser objected to it as being a violation of all Parliamentary practice.

Mr. Meredith took up the gauntlet for the man from Algoma.

The flanges on the [illegible] believed that the robbed of the pipe were never [illegible] ed which renders it [illegible] After [illegible] of value the robbers fired [illegible] shots in close range of the heads of the crew and bid them good-bye, saying they would like to meet them at the World's Fair.

EXCITEMENT KILLED HIM.

James Reilly Died While His Sons Had a Drunken Row.

NEW YORK, May 26.—James Reilly of 222 Richardson-street, Williamsburg, dropped dead while his three sons, James, Joseph and Frank, were fighting at his home at 1 o'clock yesterday morning.

Mr. Reilly was 58 years old, was employed as a jeweler in this city, and owned considerable real estate. His sons, whose ages are between 23 and 28 years of age, had frequent drunken quarrels. A year ago Mr. Reilly married a girl 17 years old.

The three sons were out on a spree together on Wednesday night. When they got home at midnight there was a heated discussion over some trivial matter. Their father attempted to stop the row by forcing Joseph into a hall bedroom. The other sons objected to any interference and they became engaged in a three cornered fight. They punched one another and rolled on the floor together. The father tried to stop them, and finally called to his wife to get a policeman. When she left the house Reilly was trembling and seemed almost overcome by nervousness.

When she returned with Policeman O'Shea the young men were still fighting, and their father lay dead on the floor. The policeman accused the sons of having murdered their father. This charge made them realize what had happened, and they gave up the fight and submitted to arrest. Dr. F. L. Corish said Reilly died of heart disease.

The sons were arraigned before Justice Watson in the Ewen-street police court, and were discharged.

BEHRING SEA ARBITRATION.

Sir Charles Russell Argues on the Question of Territorial Rights.

PARIS, May 26.—At the session of the Behring Sea arbitrators yesterday Sir Charles Russell discussed the alleged rights of the Americans to the sealing industry. He denied the right of the Americans to demand an extension beyond the ordinary limits of the law, and said that if the American contention were logically carried out the Canadian salmon and codfish industries would be entitled to extra territorial protection.

Sir John Thompson asked under what branch of their plea did the Americans wish it understood this discussion took place.

The Americans vehemently objected to the introduction of this question.

Sir Charles Russell denied that the United States could justify the seizure of foreign vessels in time of peace as an act of self defence. His next proceeded to examine the international law governing seizures of foreign vessels in time of peace and in war.

THE ROYAL SOCIETY.

Efforts to Have the British Association Meet in Canada in 1895.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 26.—At the annual meeting of the Royal Society yesterday Prof. R. Ramsay Wright of Toronto University stated that the Canadian Institute of Toronto had been making efforts to get the British Association for the Advancement of Science to meet in Toronto in 1895. He suggested that the Royal Society pass a resolution to this effect.

Attention was called to the fact that the Canadian Institute had not made any report to the Royal Society.

Prof. Wright pointed out that the Canadian Institute was a very old association and he objected to its being placed in a subordinate position by asking it to report to the Royal Society.

These remarks drew forth a protest from Dr. Bourinot against provincialism, who at the same time stated that the societies that reported to the Royal were not in subordinate positions, but were associates of the larger body.

Finally a resolution was passed with the view of inducing the British Association to meet in Canada in 1895.

LORD SALISBURY ON UNION.

IRELAND BENEFITED BY CLOSE CONNECTION WITH BRITAIN.

Ireland, He Said, Had been Benefitted By the Union—If the Home Rule Bill is Defeated the Conservatives Would Not Bring in a Similar Scheme.

BELFAST, May 26.—Lord Salisbury in responding to the address presented to him at Ulster Hall yesterday contended that the union of Great Britain and Ireland had not proved a failure.

If Ireland had experienced periods of distress Ireland on the whole had been benefitted by the union.

Mr. Gladstone had challenged his (Salisbury's) declaration that twenty years of resolute government would suffice to establish peace and prosperity in Ireland. The fact was that even only six years of Conservative rule had shown, that these remedies would succeed.

Lord Salisbury repudiated the reports from Gladstonian sources to the effect that if Home Rule should be defeated now the Conservatives and their Liberal-Unionist allies would suggest a similar scheme. This report had no foundation in truth.

Whenever the Conservatives should be again in charge of the Government they would go back to the policy which they had already put to the test with satisfactory results.

Lord Salisbury afterwards took a train for Baroncourt, in County Tyrone, the seat of the Duke of Abercorn.

QUEBEC'S DESIRED LOAN.

The Province Advised Not to Attempt to Raise Money at Present.

LONDON, May 26.—In view of the Australian crisis, the Hon. John S. Hall has been advised not to attempt to float the Quebec loan, and he will probably continue on the lines of the temporary plans.

It is quite untrue to say that the extent of the debt of the Province of Quebec is causing alarm.

The efforts of the Taillon Ministry to regain the prestige lost by Mercier is restoring confidence in the province in London.

Money could only be raised at the present time by any country at a great sacrifice.

The oculist, however, cautioned Mr. Gladstone that special precautions were still necessary.

HAMILTON, May 26.—Two young men unaccustomed to handling a sailboat were upset in the bay yesterday. Mr. L. THEY HANGED A DEAD MAN.

He Had Cut His Throat When He Heard Them Coming.

CORUNNA, Mich., May 26.—Last night William Sullivan, the murderer of Layton Leetch at Durand, heard from his cell in the jail here the shouts of a mob of more than 1000 people and the splintering of the doors that stood between his life and the avengers of the man he had murdered.

Realizing that his stay on earth was short, Sullivan grasped a piece of broken bottle that he had in some way smuggled into his cell and sawed at his throat with its ragged edge. As he severed his jugular vein and fell to the floor the outer door gave way. There was a short struggle between the Sheriff and his deputies and the mob, and the defense of the jail was over.

The door of Sullivan's cell was battered down with sledge hammers, and in a moment the miserable wretch, with the blood flowing from his throat, was being dragged along the corridors with a rope about his neck. Every inch of the 50 feet of manilla was grasped by willing hands, and the unresisting weight at the other end of it was soon dangling from the limb of a tree less than 100 feet from the jail.

Sullivan's body was lowered a dozen times, and each time it was assaulted with bare hands, with sticks, stones and boot heels. Even the murderer's clothes were torn from his body. After amusing itself for some time in this way the crowd took the rope from the limb and started on a run around town, dragging the blood-stained, dust-covered and mutilated body.

Over sidewalks and against trees it bumped, through mud puddles and street filth it was dragged, until finally tiring of their sport the crowd left it lying in front of a saloon and sent word to the sheriff that their revenge was complete and that he could have the body. Dozens of men jumped upon the head and face of the dead criminal, and crushes out all human semblance with their boot heels.

While the crowd was dragging the body about the streets and was in a frenzy of rage, there were cries of "Let's build a bonfire and burn the brute's body!" This was taken up on all sides and preparations had actually begun to this end and when some of the cooler heads induced the mob to give up the scheme and turn the body over to the sheriff.

The men who led the assault on the jail numbered not more than 100, 60 of whom are said to have been personal friends and neighbors of Leetch at Durand. Most of them were masked, and there is no one this morning who admits that he recognized any of them.

No shots were fired by the sheriff or his deputies, of which there were a dozen, although the sheriff declares that the defenders pounded the mob over the head with pieces of the battered-down door and the butts of their revolvers until overcome.

The Durand party left town by the midnight eastbound train, singing and apparently as happy as larks over the work accomplished. The remainder of the crowd soon after disappeared and in a few hours the town had assumed its natural appearance.

Sullivan's murder of Leetch last winter was a peculiarly atrocious one. The murder was of an excessively low order of intelligence, savage and cruel in the extreme. He was only 22 years old. Last Sunday he was caught in Detroit, and it was only by the strategem of taking him in a freight car that the officers succeeded in avoiding a mob in broad daylight and in getting him to the jail in this city. At Durand a furious mob held all the passenger trains from Detroit until they had been thoroughly searched.

Notwithstanding Sullivan's character and the crime which he committed, the people are profoundly shocked over the mob's barbarities. It is reported that there [illegible] the capital punishment bills [illegible] which has passed one house of the Legislature, now has no chance of becoming a law.

A coroner's jury gave a verdict of suicide in Sullivan's case. There is no doubt that he was dead before the men reached him.

ON FIRE AT SEA.

Sodium A[illegible]ng the Russian Chicago Exhibits Sets a Ship Ablaze.

BALTIMORE, May 26.—The remainder of the great Russian exhibit for the World's Fair arrived here to-day in the British steamship Wivenhoe, Capt. R. D. Clark, which left Hamburg on April 23. The exhibit will be shipped to Chicago at once.

Capt. Clark says that among the Russian exhibits were two cases of chemicals. The notice on the top of each case stated that they were not dangerous, so they were placed on deck. On the third day out from Cardiff a gale sprang up and raged throughout the night. As he was going aft about daybreak he was astounded to see the whole after part of his ship one solid mass of fire.

Flames leaped from the after decks and apparently from the hold and swept the towering masts.

Roth sea and storm at times were very violent and Captain Clark felt that his craft was doomed.

Just then a tremendous wave struck the Wivenhoe, throwing her on her beamends. Darkness also took possession of the deck, the leaping flames had disappeared. A hasty examination was made to see if the hold was on fire, but it was not, nor was there a sign of the 10 iron bound cases they were shipped at Hamburg.

The bills of lading were gotten up to see what they contained, and he learned from them that he had been carrying metallic natrium, or, as it is commonly known, metal sodium, a chemical used by photographers, which burns when exposed to air or water. The cases had been carried overboard.

SUNDAY OPENING OPPOSED.

An Injunction to be Taken Out Against the Sabbath Desecration.

CHICAGO, May 26.—The first shot in the Sunday opening fight has been fired. United States District Attorney Milchrist, following a conference with Attorney-General Olney in Washington, has sent a lengthy telegram of instructions to Assistant District Attorney Hand in Chicago.

That official has already begun the work of drawing up a bill for an injunction restraining the World's Fair officials from opening the gates Sunday.

The application for an injunction will be filed in the United States District Court as soon as completed, which will be Friday or Saturday.

This afternoon Mr. Hand said Congress provided for Sunday closing without giving the commission any discretionary power in the matter. This is the stand we will take. What the District Court will decide is a question.

We expect to file the bill in time to secure an injunction which will close the gates this Sunday. It will be directed to both directory and commission.

SHOT HIS LITTLE PLAYMATE.

Little Micky Stanton Didn't Mean to Kill Her, But the Pistol Was Loaded.

SING SING, May 26.—Little Micky Stanton, a 7-year-old boy of this place, yesterday shot Emma Williams, a 4-year-old playmate, in the head. The shooting occurred in the house of Emma's mother, who is a widow. It was thought last night that the little victim would die within a few hours.

The weapon used was a cheap revolver which had been carelessly left about the house by James Johnson, who boards there. The children were alone when the affair occurred. As near as can be learned from Micky's story he found the pistol under the boarder's pillow and crawled under the bed with it to play burglar. He did not think it was loaded, and when he snapped it at his playmate had no intention of harming her.

The bullet had passed in a little to the rear of the left temple and had lodged in the brain.

The unfortunate mother fainted while the child's wounds were being dressed. The doctors say the chances are about one in a hundred that the child will recover.

TORONTO, May 27.—John J. Ryan, Canada's amateur champion sculler, will leave for England, Monday, to row in the Henley regatta. His friends are confident he will defeat the English amateur scullers. TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE CONVENTION NOW IN SESSION IN THE CITY.

R. K. Row Gives a Suggested Ten Years' Course of Reading For Children—The Literature Would be Very Stimulating—The Other Proceedings.

Dr. Spankie opened the meeting in the Y.M.C.A. hall, Thursday afternoon, in a few happy words and introduced R. K. Row to deliver the president's address on "A Ten Years' Reading Course for Children." The speaker took the ground that the majority of the girls and boys when leaving our elementary or high school, had neither the taste, the knowledge, nor the mental power necessary to enable them to pursue the reading of good English books. They prefer the pastries, the trifles and confections of literature to that which is simple and wholesome. The soundness of this position he thought would be established by any fair and reasonable tests, but he would not attempt to prove it because each one would have to investigate for himself and apparently all would admit it.

The causes he considered to lie in the natural taste of young children for stories, followed by a desire for that which is exciting and sensational. With no wise guidance and too often a bad example, surrounded on every hand by literature that cost little money and less effort to extract the sensational story, with no encouragement to develop a taste for the artistic in literature, it is no wonder our boys approach the age of manhood with no higher ideal than the detective story or some "thrilling adventure"; or that our girls go into long gowns and society fascinated with Rider Haggard and Pansy.

No concerted effort was being made to check the evil, libraries of various kinds having the most beneficial aims and the grandest possibilities are usually only a negative good and a positive evil. Teachers must take the matter in hand. Many parents recognized the evils but saw no remedy. He would suggest circulating and commanding an approved list of books adapted to three stages: An initial stage, from five or six years to eight or nine; an intermediate stage, covering the years from nine to twelve or thirteen, and a final period extending to the age of sixteen. If children read only good books for ten years they would read no other kind afterwards.

Mr. Row regards the course suggested as very incomplete and imperfect in arrangement, but allows it to be published now to call attention to the subject and solicit suggestions from persons interested. Anyone who knows books of a really educative character will confer a favor by sending the name to Mr. Row and indicating all about what age it should be read. The revised and enlarged list will be published at a later time:

Miss E. Murray, Queen street school, read a brief paper pointing out the advantages of teaching phonics to the primary class. She then called a class and illustrated the power the little ones had gained to read at sight words of two or three syllables. Such words as "picnic," "attend" and "umbrella" were read at a glance, and the oral spelling of words not previously taught was equally good.

A. F. Newlands followed with a paper on "The Advantages of Vertical Writing." By the most convincing evidence he showed the system to be more legible, rapid, hygienic, economic, easily learned and easily taught than the sloping style. The county teachers seemed much interested, and several afterward expressed their determination to introduce it into their schools as soon as they could acquire skill in writing it.
