CLOTHING!

QUALITY.
VARIETY.
STYLE.

These are predominant features in every department of this house. You will find how much we value them as the all-important essentials of our business when you have occasion to inspect any particular line of Clothing, or when you look through our matchless collection of Men's Underwear, Hose, Gloves, Ties, Collars, Cuffs or any other apparel desired.

And then there is the perfectly logical reason—of being the largest direct buyers and importers—to give weight to the claim that we can, and do, afford a special advantage to our patrons in prices.

THE INSPECTOR'S JAUNT.

DR. SPANKIE TELLS ABOUT THE BEAUTIES OF BANFF.

He Describes the Country in That Section of the Rockies—He Had a Very Enjoyable Vacation and Returns Full of Vigor—The West Is Thriving.

Dr. Spankie returned Friday from the west, having spent two months in visiting it. A WHIG reporter saw him at his office, court house, and elicited the following information:

"Where have you been, doctor, and what was your object?"

"I have been to see our great west. After my illness last winter I did not gain strength and was advised to go away for a time, and thinking that I should know our own land first I went off to the west on the colonist excursion which left here on Sept. 5th. My ticket was to Calgary but I went on to Banff, thence into British Columbia. I made stops at Winnipeg, Portage la Prairie, Medicine Hat, Calgary and other places, all of which gave evidence of modern life and prosperity. Winnipeg and Vancouver are wonderful cities for their years, the former not of age and the latter not in its teens yet. Both will be great commercial centres, and the towns between make great pretensions, seeming to say, 'I feel as big as you are although I am so small.' Calgary is the centre of the western ranching country, and during my stay there I rode a great deal about the country and visited the homes and ranches of two former Wolfe Islanders, Messrs. W. Wills and T. A. Hatfield, both of whom have comfortable homes and choice lands and seem to be thoroughly satisfied with the country. They are engaging in mixed farming and ranching and declare they have no desire to again do business in the east.

"A splendid view of the Rocky mountains is obtained here, although the distance is about fifty miles it does not seem more than one-tenth of it. After spending a week here I went on to British Columbia just to see the mountains and their passes and then returned to Banff to accomplish the object for which I set out—the recovery of health and strength. I am quite satisfied with my stay at Banff and it will always have a high place in my estimation as a resort for convalescents and those run down in health from overwork or other curable cause. It is a peculiar place, being thoroughly sui generis, and a little about it may interest your readers, although it is so widely known.

"As signifying a spot in the Rockies Banff is perhaps the most familiar household name on the American continent and it is destined to become in a very short time one of the most familiar names throughout the world.

"As a station on the C.P.R. it is the place where all who can spare the time stop over to break the journey and few indeed carry out their original intentions of proceeding east or west the next day but instead find themselves so in love with their surroundings that they often remain for weeks or months as their circumstances permit. One may read of Banff but he never knows it until he sees it. Its invigorating rest invites the tired business man; its delightful scenery which is conceded to be simply indescribably grand holds the tourist, while its high, dry, bracing mountain air and efficacious hot mineral springs are a haven of bliss to the sufferers from those chronic affections that at home make life a drudge and misery.

"The sportsman too, finds here a paradise. He has but to stroll around the mountains outside of the frequented drives to quench his desire for game, or drop his line in the sparkling waters of the beautiful lakes and rivers to appease his appetite for the finny tribe—salmon, and mountain trout and others—the finest this world affords. As a resting-up place, it is already known and frequented by all business men along the route; as a resort for the tourist and pleasure seeker, it is bound to hold a first place, and live as long as the everlasting mountains that surround it. But it is as a boon to the sufferer, that it is to find its greatest service—its greatest service I say, because the sportsman and the tourist may go elsewhere and faring less be still satisfied, but the Banff hot springs are only at Banff.

"These springs are natural mineral waters, that bubble out from the mountain sides at temperature varying from 80° to 125° Fahrenheit. The waters from the different springs have been analyzed at different times, and are found to hold in solution, various compounds of sulphur, calcium, magnesium, sodium and other substances.

"Though quite recently known to the white man, these springs were resorted to by invalids of the red race throughout many generations. Not being possessed of the skill and power to make difficult and dangerous places conveniently and safely accessible the Indian visited what is now known as the 'cave,' a huge cavity in the side of Sulphur mountain, and instead of tunnelling an approach to it as his conquerors did, his companions let him into it through a hole in its dome by means of a rope, and it is forty feet from dome to the surface of the water, and necessarily dark, the light being only through this small opening by which he entered, one can easily understand how strong was the faith of the wounded or sick 'brave' in the benefit to be derived.

"To many white men I fear the hot air and water, together with the strong smell of sulphur and the darkness of the pit, would rather suggest to them the name of a place to be shunned than entered, the nether regions, and doubly so when once in and wading, lose your footing, quickly slipping into one of the holes through which the water boils, and suddenly thinking of some unsettled accounts with the manager of Inferno. These dangers however, are now only imaginary.

"The depth of the water is kept at about four feet by the means of outlets and ropes extend across the water surface for those who are timid, and the cave itself is entered by an artificial tunnel and lighted by lamps. Though a little weird it is fascinating and a bath here is richly enjoyed. The basin is an open pond on the side of the same mountain and is also nicely fitted up for swimming in. Both the 'cave' and 'basin' are under dominion government control, and a register is provided at each for the names of visitors.

"These are now places of interest to the tourist as also are the hot springs proper, familiarly known as the 'fountain head' and where the water boils up hottest—a distance of about three miles from the station; one may also take a canoe, skiff or steam launch and visit the Vermillion lakes, beautiful sheets of mountain water, about ten miles up the Bow river and through the most delightful of scenery. Lake Minnewanka is distant about eight miles and is reached by a beautiful drive over mountain, river and canyon.

"Here also a good sized steam launch lies waiting to take you at most reasonable rates for a twenty mile sail on this pretty mountain Killarney. Moonlight excursions are given regularly on this lake, and it is fun for the more experienced ones to listen to the oohs and other expressions of emotion signifying the delight of the passengers with the scenes brought into view at every turn of the launch as it winds its intricate way round bluff and shallows. Sun-Dance Canon, The Loop and other scenic places are near at hand. The mountain drives are most pleasant and are a series of roads in themselves, while trails branch out in all directions. Horseback rides to the peaks are very exciting and give great satisfaction to the tourists who are venturesome enough to undertake them.

"The hotels are good and comfortable. I stopped at the Sanitarium. It is the most beautifully and conveniently situated, snugly set on the sunny slope leading to Sulphur mountain and overlooking the Bow river, near its junction with the Spray, and surrounded by tastily laid out lawns, with shade trees, tennis ground, etc., it is indeed a lovely and enchanting picture. The hotel itself is a commodious three-storey building, with broad piazzas and all the conveniences of the age. The manager is W. H. Scarth, a young man from Ontario, and while in his hands it is safe to say that dulness and depression shall never lurk in or around the Sanitarium. Entertainment, comfort and benefit for the guests seem to be the sole objects of every official.

"While here I met and became quite intimately acquainted with Dr. R. G. Brett, the medical director, and a man well worth meeting. At every station west of Winnipeg where I stopped and made known my intention of going to Banff, I was always advised to see Dr. Brett, so that my curiosity was aroused over my anticipated meeting with this doctor. I met him and I shall never regret it. I thought he was quite partial to me, for he had me accompany him in much of his practice during the month I remained at Banff.

"I do not believe there is another physician or surgeon in Canada doing the amount of work this man does. He has about 500 railroad men and miners under his charge and does a consulting practice all along the Western and Pacific divisions of the C.P.R., while his private hospital is the resort for patients from Winnipeg to Victoria. He is a voluminous reader and has a lovely library with not a standard medical or surgical work missing, and his own stock of surgical instruments and appliances surpasses that of any hospital I have visited.

"He is a member of the legislative assembly and was for three years premier of the territories. His election is generally by acclamation, and he is firmly engrafted into the affections of his people. He keeps assistants in his professional work and has performed successfully almost every operation in modern surgery. Amongst so many railroad men and miners accidents are only too common so that I had frequent opportunities of seeing him operate on these and also on private patients at his hospital, where professional nurses and other necessary assistants carefully look after the comfort of patients. Dr. Brett intends visiting Germany and other places this winter in order to further add to his efficiency as a surgeon. He is a graduate of Toronto and has been twenty years in practice.

"No doubt the change of scene, high altitude and clear, dry atmosphere as well as the best mineral waters and bathing and general pleasantness of surroundings contribute much towards the successful treatment of disease at this place. Reluctantly, indeed, I parted with Dr. Brett and this lovely place where, when I arrived, I had intended stopping only a day."

CRUSHED A LEG.

An Accident to Thomas Cuddiford on the K. & P. Railway.

Thomas Cuddiford, who met with the serious accident at Folger station, yesterday afternoon, arrived in the city on the five o'clock train. The unfortunate fell between the cars and may lose one of his legs as a result. Cars were being shunted on the siding and Mr. Cuddiford took hold of the brake on one of the flat cars to check the speed. The brake was adjustable and slipped out of its place, throwing the brakesman on the rails. Cuddiford tried hard to save himself but could not scramble out in time. A leg was caught below the knee and lacerated considerably. The bone was broken. Cuddiford was carried to the train on a plank and a telegram sent to Dr. Coutlee, Sharbot Lake, asking him to meet the train. The doctor accompanied Cuddiford to the general hospital. He rested well last night and it was not known this morning whether the leg would have to be amputated.

There Will Be Waiting Again.

This year's Christmas season is to be brightened by the publication of a lovely Christmas number of the Montreal "Star," said by those who have had a private view to be a wonderful publication, that will astonish the Christmas souvenir buying world, both here and abroad. It is easy to understand how it is that the publishers are never able to print enough Christmas "Stars" to provide a copy for all comers. It is an immense undertaking and requires a whole year to produce one edition. The Christmas "Star" will be in the hands of newsdealers, but there is of sheer necessity a limit to the supply and unfortunately there seems no limit to the demand.

Queen's College Notes

The regular prayer-meeting of the Y.M.C.A. was held last night and was well attended. The attendance is larger this year than it has been in the past. W. W. Peck led the meeting, the subject of which was "Sabbath Observance." Some important matters are coming up at Alma Mater to-night. Everybody is preparing. The second number of the "Journal" was distributed this morning. At a meeting of the concursus this morning a true bill was brought in against one of the elder students for contempt of professors and contempt of court.

There Was A Large Market.

There was a large market, to-day, but not quite as large as that of last Saturday. There was a grand display of vegetables, meats and fowls. The quotations are: Potatoes, 60c to 70c per bag; beef, 4c to 5c per lb; butter, 20c to 22c per lb; rolls, 18c to 20c per lb; tubs, 17c to 18c per lb; ducks, 50c to 60c apiece; geese, 50c to 60c each; turkeys, 60c to $1 apiece; lamb, 5c to 6c per lb; mutton, 4c to 5c per lb; pork, 6c to 7c per lb; hog, 6c to 7c per lb; apples, 80c to $1 per bag.

"The Broker" May Go On.

H. B. Telgmann may put on his play "The Broker" on the road. Mr. Telgmann is now negotiating with Mr. Etheridge, of Buffalo, who takes part in "Nobility" to take the play around the country. Mr. Etheridge is satisfied that the play could be made a success. Mr. Telgmann knows what a good title is. All his shows are well named.

Left For Ottawa.

William Quayle, a progressive young man with "a nose for news," left to-day to join the staff of the Ottawa "Free Press." As the WHIG's valued correspondent in Odessa and Kingston he proved an adept at gathering and arranging news, and writing in a breezy fashion. With experience he will make his mark in journalistic circles.

Died In The Asylum.

Alexander Short, formerly connected with the printing bureau of the dominion government, Ottawa, died last night in Rockwood asylum. Last Tuesday he was attacked with fits that continued with great frequency. The remains were sent to the capital by the 11:30 o'clock train.

The Ocean Saloon, on King street, fell into the hands of the rectory of Kingston lately, on expiration of long lease. The Anglican clergymen of the city are the beneficiaries, and by them a new lease was refused for saloon purposes. This costs them over $70 a year each, a practical evidence of temperance.

The Revival Spreads.

The revival mission is daily entering on new developments. Yesterday at noon Mr. Schieverea conducted a service on the premises of McKelvey & Birch, and at the close the firm requested him to hold another service there for their men at any time. Other large employers have sent in similar invitations. Arrangements, too, are being made for services in the university. The pastors have met with the most encouraging reception in all their visits.

In spite of threatening weather, choir practices and entertainments, several hundred people flocked to Sydenham street church, last night, for the close of the first week's services. Besides the pastors engaged in the mission there were on the platform the Revs. T. Fleming, (Presbyterian,) and F. W. Dobbs, (Anglican).

The preacher spoke of "The grace of God that bringeth salvation to all men." That grace which is the undeserved favor of God appeared at Calvary. How did God bring salvation to man? By lifting from him the burden of his sin. What is salvation? The adherence from sin. This salvation is brought to all men—because all men needed it and all may have it. It makes no difference how far you have gone from God. "But do you not believe in election?" "Yes, but the elected are the whosoever wills; the non-elected are the whosoever wonts. God can only bring the salvation to men. An Irishman trying to get his horse to drink dragged the beast's head down to the water, but it was no use and he drove it home again. God will never do that—he will use no force. When God brings salvation he also teaches them to live soberly, righteously and godly in this present world. We need no more revivals based on sentiment. We want revivals of home piety such as will lead father and mother to live as christians in the home. We need revivals of commercial honesty such as will prevent a merchant from passing off inferior goods. We need a revival of social purity; for the grace of God teaches men to deny ungodly lusts. So there is pardon for the past; there is also a blessed hope for the future.

At the close of this address a short, simple and solemn after meeting was held free from all excitement and during this some manifested their desire for a christian life.

Let Progress Be The Watchword,

Queen's College Journal.

Every student of Queen's has noted with pleasure the advances that Kingston has made during the summer in the matter of public works. The paving and improving of its streets along with the introduction of the electric street car service will do much towards increasing the business importance of the city in the minds of occasional visitors.

Too frequently these people noticing the condition of the streets and the seeming lack of public spirit and enterprise among its citizens, have accused Kingston of "Rip Van Winkleism," and concluded that its social life must be quite unendurable. When we have told of the exceptional kindness of all its citizens, and the push and business ability of many of its business men, our statements have often been accepted "cum grano salis." Yet, when one considers her unrivalled natural position, social and educational advantages, and above all the increasing public spirit of her citizens, it seems evident that Kingston should rapidly progress. Certainly as students we wish her every success. We trust that what the summer has accomplished is but the first movement of an awakened public spirit that will demand that our city take the position that nature has so eminently fitted her for and that she so justly deserves.

Municipal Nominations.

Christmas day this year falls on Monday, Dec. 25th, which is the last Monday in the month and the day fixed by law for the purpose of nominating candidates for municipal councils, consequently such meetings must be held on the Friday before. Municipal clerks will do well to bear this in mind.

The Admiral

Of a man of war is a king on board his vessel. The Admiral cigar is the king of cigars. True, but try one. Tasse, Wood & Co., Montreal.

Influenza Again.

Influenza is prevalent in the city. Many cases are reported, and in several instances more than one member of a family are confined to rooms. The physicians do not expect a big siege, however.

A Light Docket.

The board of health will probably not have another meeting before the December session as there is very little business to be brought up. The fall has been a very healthy one and the medical officer has few contagious cases to report.

Wanted A Pass To Ottawa.

Mrs. Gough, aged sixty-eight years, whose first husband, Edward Tolson, was buried here, arrived at the police station yesterday. She wanted a pass to Ottawa, where she had rich relatives who would keep her during her declining years.

Invaded The Store.

Yesterday afternoon thirteen of Sam. T. Jack's beauties invaded a dry-goods store and made free purchases. They spent their money freely and were very smart with the clerks. They purchased nearly $100 worth of goods and the clerks never had such pleasant work to do.

The Father Murphy Gold Cure.

Any persons desiring information regarding "Father Murphy's gold cure treatment" can obtain the same by applying to Wm. Burrows, 128 Johnston street or to Rev. C. E. and Mrs. Dobbs, Portsmouth, and 128 Johnston street, or to Father Murphy, 875 Dorcester street, Montreal.

Married At Howe Island.

On Tuesday evening a very pleasant event took place at Howe Island, when Miss Alma Beaubien was married to James Bishop, of Gananoque, by Rev. Father O'Gorman, in the presence of many guests. The bride was the recipient of a great many presents. Mr. and Mrs. Bishop left on an extended tour.

The Money All Right.

W. R. Dick, accountant, returned yesterday, from Hinchinbrook, where he has been engaged for a week auditing the treasurer's books and found that the monies for five or six years have been honestly expended, but that the books had not been well kept. Mr. Dick found that the treasurer had actually paid out for the township more money than he received.

Will Get A Present.

In view of the retirement of Dr. Carlyle from the Toronto normal school, at the close of the present session, after thirty-six years of service, it is proposed to present him with an address and some suitable souvenir. A committee has been appointed to carry out the proposal, and Inspector Spankie has been asked to bring the matter before his inspectorate. The doctor will forward contributions to Toronto.

Death Of Mrs. James Redden.

Many citizens will sympathise with James Redden, one of our most respected citizens, in the death of his wife, which occurred to-day. She has been a sufferer for many years, and although she knew the disease could not be cured, she bore her lot cheerfully. She was an amiable person, a good wife and kind mother. The news of her death was sorrowfully learned by a host of sincere friends.

Kingstonians Contribute.

Hon. G. W. Ross has issued a new compilation of patriotic recitations and arbor day exercises in which appears the poem by Miss Machar on "Dominion Day"; "A Public Spirit Necessary for Canada" by Sir Richard Cartwright; "The Grandeur of Canada" and "Canada, a Link in the Empire," by Principal Grant. A piece by Evan McColl, late of Kingston, is entitled, "Leaving Scotland for Canada."

Last Night's Play.

Every section of the opera house except the parquette was well filled last night with patrons of Sam T. Jack. The play put on was "Old Age and Youth," a spectacular burlesque. The play was very good and some catchy jokes were sprung. Skirt dances, contortionists and acrobats were features of the performance. The girls were altogether painted beautifully and brought forth plaudits from the "gods."

Encampment Officers.

These are the officers of the new encampment of Oddfellows, Cataraqui, No. 79, started last night by A. H. Blackeby, of Galt, grand patriarch, assisted by K. McIver, acting as grand scribe: John McIver, C.P.; George Wilkinson, H.P.; R. Meek, S.W.; D. Callaghan, R.S.; W. M. Sine, F.S.; S. W. Hobart, Treas.; H. Sharpe, J.W. There are forty candidates for initiation at the next meeting of the camp on the 30th.

A China Wedding Anniversary.

John Hewton, manager of the Kingston hosiery company, and wife celebrated their twentieth wedding anniversary last evening. A large company of friends assembled at their home and thoroughly enjoyed a few hours with the estimable couple and family. The gifts of china were choice. The congratulations were indeed hearty, with wishes that the future would be rich in blessings for the family.

May Run An Excursion.

In a few days the "John Bull" engine from England and the magnificent Wagner train is to be at Watertown, returning from the world's fair. All the schools will be closed upon the occasion. Chairman Shaw says he would go in for Kingston closing her schools on that day to give the older pupils a chance to go over. Mr. Shaw thinks hundreds of people could be carried out of Kingston if reasonable excursion rates could be secured.

A Noted Lecturer

Coming with views of the world's fair. Adam Brown, ex-M. P., of Hamilton, world's fair commissioner, has accepted an invitation to Kingston, and will give our people an exhibition finer than anything of its kind ever shown here. At great cost he secured 120 of the very finest views to be had. As a lecturer he has a wide reputation, and in Toronto and Hamilton the largest halls were filled to overflowing, hundreds were turned away. He will be here on the 5th of December. The opera house has been secured.

Miss Nora Clench.

The London, Eng., daily "Telegraph" has to say of Miss Clench: "Miss Nora Clench's violin recital was an unqualified success. She gave equal delight to her audience in Sonatas by Schumann, Bach's Chaconne and dances by Dvorak. The instrument used was the celebrated 'Dolphin Strad.' Miss Clench will shortly leave England for a winter concert tour of forty performances in America, and will return next spring."—Daily "Telegraph," London, Eng. She appears at the opera house, assisted by Miss Frank Mackelcan and others on Dec. 6th.

The Judge Held That There Was No Recourse But a Verdict.

Special to the Whig.

OTTAWA, Nov. 18.—In the Connolly-McGreevy case this morning, at the conclusion of the prosecution, Judge Rose said that as there were large sums of money paid over to Thomas McGreevy, Larkin Connolly & Co., for which there appears to have been no value received, he had no course left open to him than to allow the case to go to the jury, and the defense was immediately called upon to bring on their evidence. Aylsworth endeavored to show that the money received by Thomas McGreevy was for political purposes and not for his personal benefit. The judge said that one was as bad as the other and the plea offered was no excuse for the client who had received the money.

Deaconess' Work.

What is a deacon? is a question that is often asked, now that so many denominations are seeking to secure their services. She is a lady willing to devote her whole time to the work of Christ, in His church; she is a trained authorized worker. In order to train such women, a committee has been formed in connection with the Church of England Training House for deaconesses. Officers, Hon. president, the Bishop of Toronto, president, N. W. Hoyles, Q.C.; secretary, Miss A. M. Thacker; head deaconess, Miss Wilson. Committee, Lady Gzowski, Mrs. Hoyles, Mrs. S. H. Blake, Mrs. R. Gilmour, Miss Gillespie, Rev. H. G. Baldwin, Rev. G. M. Wrong, Rev. W. J. Armitage, Rev. Bernard Bryan, Dr. W. W. Baldwin, Beverley Jones.

Ladies who offer for the work will receive two years' training. Lectures will be given on bible study, church history, the Prayer Book, and other subjects likely to help them in teaching others.

Practical work will be carried on in parishes, offered as a field for this work. St. Philip's parish is also open, somewhat first, as its many poor streets offer a capital training ground, where mother's meetings, sewing schools, etc., may be carried on with good effect.

Training in nursing will be given, so that a deaconess may be able to bandage and dress a wound, and tell a mother what to do in case of an accident where no doctor is at hand, or where the case is not serious enough to need one. The true vocation of a deaconess is to try to lead men and women to Christ, and for His sake to help them in all possible ways. That such trained workers, giving up their whole time, will be an invaluable help to overworked clergymen in town and country, no one can doubt. The committee also hope that many of the deaconesses will become missionaries, both in the north-west, where such able helpers are sadly needed, and also in the foreign fields, where the laborers are so few and the field so large.

They commend this work to the sympathy of many friends. They ask them to help in finding women willing to come forward for this noble service; they ask prayer for a blessing on this work, and they ask money, without which it is impossible to carry it on. No subscriptions will be asked personally, and the committee will be grateful if those interested and anxious to help will send in their gifts to the treasurer or to any member of the committee.

Honorably Discharged.

Last Tuesday it was reported to the WHIG that Michael Corkey, his wife and son Walter had been charged with stealing rails and pickets from the fence at Barriefield camp field. The charge when developed proved to be one of malicious injury to property, and the defendants proved that they had not touched the fence and had only cut branches from fallen trees on an unclosed common, not owned by complainant. They were honorably discharged by magistrate Walker. This judgment will meet with
