SEWERAGE SYSTEMS.

The great question before the people of this province is sewerage, and several of the smaller cities, through their councils, have under consideration the schemes that are best calculated to preserve the public health. Peterboro and Brantford have undertaken the complete reorganization of their sewerage systems, and it is remarkable that they purpose to have it conducted along the most approved lines. Drainage is now recognized as the most important feature of municipal government, and the larger the place grows the more urgent becomes the necessity for the safe removal of its liquid impurities. Now Kingston has instructed his engineer to report upon what he considers the best method of improving the sewerage plan, and a sufficient sum has been appropriated to meet the expense of the work. The idea is not only to get a map of the drains as they now exist, but suggestions as to the manner in which the system can be made more in keeping with the requirements of the times. The Brockville system has been commended for its perfection of operation and effect on the public health, but it may be difficult of introduction here. Upon that point the city engineer can speak more authoritatively, and it is not improbable that he will be asked to do it. Perhaps he can visit Brockville and inspect its new works, and give an opinion as to the practicability of the sewerage system in use there. It is separate from the drains which carry off the surface and cellar water, and is so carefully trapped that the poisonous gases don't escape. That the little town to the east of ours is well circumstanced in regard to its sewerage arrangements has been evidenced by the favorable comments passed upon them by experts in sanitary science. Kingston may have legislators who are above taking lessons from presumably lesser lights, but it is not so long since the Mail admitted that in sanitary reform Toronto was behind Brockville, and no one felt insulted by the remark. Let us have all the light we can get on sewerage, for if there is anything our people want to be posted on it is this.

HUMBUGGING VINCENT.

The Sheffield Independent contains some curious correspondence between Col. Howard Vincent and Sir Charles Tupper concerning the attitude of the Canadian people on the reciprocity question, and the extent to which their action affects the fair trade schemes. A great meeting had been held in the Sheffield chamber of commerce, and Col. Vincent had made a long speech in defence of his fad. He was followed by a Mr. Leader, a business man, who, referring to the desire of the Canadian government to secure some sort of a reciprocal arrangement with the United States, said:

"It seemed to him that what Colonel Howard Vincent wished to do was to enable the Canadians not to treat England better, but worse, by giving some preferential treatment to American goods.

"Colonel Howard Vincent: No, no; not at all.'

"Mr. Leader, proceeding, said they had this extraordinary spectacle presented to them, that their patriotic friends who had uttered so many very beautiful sentiments to the chamber that afternoon, was actually taking part in a campaign to help the Canadians to cut the throats of the people of the mother country.'

* * * *

"Mr. Leader remarked that the agitation got up in Canada was one to enable the people of the dominion to give some preferential treatment to the Americans, and Colonel Howard Vincent was helping the Canadians in that performance.'"

Mr. Vincent, in his distress, turned to Sir Charles Tupper for assistance, and the high commissioner at once proceeded to libel the liberals of Canada by saying that they wanted free trade with the United States, with a prohibitory tariff against Britain, while the tories wanted reciprocity in natural products, which, he adds, "would not in any way interfere with the interests of this country, and they have taken their stand of no discrimination against England." How can Sir Charles Tupper palm off such nonsense on the people of England? He knows that the national policy, on which the present conservative government is supposed to stand, is discriminatory against Britain, and that it was boldly launched knowing that it would be hostile to British manufactures. It is only since Hon. Mr. Foster's return from Washington, where he and his colleagues went on a fool's errand, that there has been any talk of preferential trade between Canada and the mother country, and the finance minister is seemingly desirous of letting the issue rest on a little talk. The Sheffield Independent scores Col. Vincent when it says he has been speaking too freely on a subject of which he is none too familiar. England, he tells the Canadians, is ready to submit to an import duty on food if only Canada will speak the word and give preferential treatment to English goods. He talks outright protection in Canada as the basis of this precious empire trade league; in Sheffield he is found in spasms of assurances that his anti-treaty crusade has no connection whatever with the establishment over the way—the circus which boasts as the chief feature of its stud the spotted horse protection, rescued with difficulty from the knacker's yard. Or Sir Charles Tupper it could say a great deal in castic criticism without hurting his skin. He has to do something to earn his salary, but he could be more usefully employed than in feeding the egotism of Col. Vincent, who is to the British parliament what Mr. Davin is to the Canadian commons. The position is anomalous and so well understood as to require no definition.

A FARMERS' RE-UNION.

A PUBLIC MEETING CALLED, BUT NO BUSINESS DONE.

A Merry Time Was Passed and the Recent Appointments Discussed Warmly—Refreshments Served at Intervals—A City Speculator and an Unwary Farmer Have a Wordy War.

Between 300 and 400 farmers from the surrounding district were gathered at the Windsor hotel, Saturday afternoon, in anticipation of an indignation meeting being held with reference to the recent appointments of Wm. Glenn, as lockmaster at Washburn, and R. Anglin as lockmaster at Kingston Mills. From all appearances the men who called the meeting were not bold enough to come to the front and bring those present to order. No one seemed to know who had called the meeting, but still the farmers had all received notice to attend. From 1:30 o'clock till about 3:30 o'clock the hotel was packed with farmers and the proprietor at last found it necessary to convert the counter in his office into a bar so great was the demand for refreshments. The men were indignant because no meeting was held and claimed they had been duped by some mischievous city man who apparently looked upon it as a capital joke to circulate the rumor. The sidewalk in front of the hotel were impassable at times and not a few pedestrians were obliged to take the road in passing. Breaking up into groups the farmers discussed, with much vigor, the appointments of lockmasters. The majority were certainly of the opinion that McGillivray should have been given the vacancy and not a few spoke impressively in Mr. Dean's interests. Just at a time when the excitement was high a wealthy speculator appeared on the scene. After inquiring into the nature of the affair he offered to wager, with P. McLaughlin, that he (McLaughlin) was the man who called the meeting. He denied the charge and said that it was not a plan of his to secure business. The speculator called the crowd to the bar and treated. During this time the discussion was warm in different corners of the room and when perhaps half the crowd had been served, an Iveresy farmer pushed his way forward to the bar shouting at the top of his voice. Making a clean sweep with his hand he knocked all the glasses from the counter, smashing them into many pieces. He then mounted the bar and demanded in a loud voice an explanation from the speculator as to his object in treating the crowd. The speaker said he was a conservative at heart and a defender of his country, and he would allow no man of another nationality to do such a thing upon such an occasion without explaining the reason. This excited the crowd and shouts and threats emanated from all quarters of the bar-room. When he could get a hearing the speculator explained the matter satisfactorily, and, after being shown the error of his supposition, the farmer was only too glad to shake hands over the affair and admit his mistake. Thus endeth the twelfth lesson in indignation meetings. First get your appointment; then laugh at the other fellow.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Rebellion of 1837.

LONDON, April 4.—(To the Editor of the WHIG): In the exciting winter of 1837, with numbers of other loyalists of both political parties, I turned out to defend our homes and maintain the connection with the mother country. During that winter the hardships we endured cannot be conceived by the people of to day. There was then no railroads or canals, and very few roads, and what there was very bad; neither a commissariat department, uniforms, guns nor ammunition. I got the loan of a rifle from Colonel Bostwick, and ammunition from a loyal neighbor—others had to do likewise. We went to Norwich and dispersed the rebels, taking a number of prisoners. In order to live we were compelled to beg, borrow or steal. We never got a cent of pay but I had the pleasure of meeting my father and three brothers, who were serving under Col. McNab. Shortly after we were dismissed, and there was a lull until the rebellion broke out again, when numbers of sympathisers from as far as Kentucky congregated at Detroit. I then joined Col. Askin's regiment, and for six months saw active service on the frontier, principally on the Detroit river. It would be tedious to go into the details of the campaign: sufficient to say that a large number were killed and wounded on both sides; that the rebels and their Yankee sympathizers were defeated, and a number of them taken prisoners. One incident, I think, is worthy to be recorded. A comrade, just before we started, was joined by his wife, who had somehow got hold of a sword, and she accompanied her husband from the day we started until the day we returned, both of them coming home safe and sound. This time we got a sort of a uniform, $8 per month and rations—when the commissariat officers could find them.

The United States have had a rebellion. In order to get men to put it down they had sometimes to draft the men—in other words, force them to go, as well as paying large bounties, and when the war was over that government behaved handsomely to the survivors and to the widows and orphans of those who fell. What have the volunteers of 1837-38 got—medals, pensions, land? I have yet to hear of such things. True, we got a rebellion losses bill passed by our parliament, but the rebels, whom, at the call of the government, we turned out to subdue, got nearly all the money. Surely there are some patriots: members of parliament who will see this wrong is righted, and encourage our young men, in case of need, to turn out at the first tap of the drum, even if, as in 1837-38, not a British soldier was in Ontario.—Yours truly, JOHN BONSER.

COMPLIMENTARY TO MR. CALVIN.

His Argument Appeals to All Fair-Minded Men.

In referring to Hiram A. Calvin's open letter to Premier Abbott dealing with the rebate on the canal tolls question, the Oswego Times says:

"Mr. Calvin is an extensive lumber shipper and vessel owner of Canada, and has always been a strong supporter of the Macdonald government. He resides in Kingston and is thoroughly conversant with the shipping trade of Canada. Whether he voices the sentiment of the majority of Canadians we cannot say, but that his argument appeals to all fair-minded men no one can deny, and the course he advocates as regards Canadian canals is only fair and right, and according to the spirit of the treaty of Washington this country tacitly agreed to throw open all government canals to the use of Canadians, but with the understanding that Canada would treat our citizens the same in regard to her government canals, which she has never done."

Political Proverbs.

It's hard to believe, but it is sokshally a fact, that some men air in politicks for onner and glory. The peanut politishan is in it for the rake-off.

The dollar mark is gettin' to be our nashunal emblem.

Chromos to be Loaned.

The exodus of young farmers from Ontario to the North-West and the emigration of French Canadians from Quebec to the States threaten to deplete the two older provinces. Their legislatures may yet have to offer chromos as an inducement for the rest of us to remain.—Hamilton Times.

Excursions to Canadian North-West, British Columbia and California on March 11th and 15th, and every Friday and Tuesday thereafter through the months of March and April. R. J. Wilson, ticket agent, C.P.R. company's telegraph office, Clarence street.

It is reported that Capt. McKenzie, of the Salvation army, Picton, was relieved of a pocket book, containing between two and three dollars, on Monday evening. It would seem that the spiritual injunction, "Watch and pray," should be more closely heeded.

One day last week Phil Woodcock, Tweed, was making Rome howl, so to speak, when he was taken in charge by a constable and placed in the cooler, but before settling down for the night he smashed the stove and pipes. It cost him $19.50 in hard cash to regain his liberty.

The "Schalensteines" of Switzerland.

In many parts of Switzerland smooth flat stones, evidently hand polished, are often picked up. They are covered with lines, dots, circles and half circles, and are known to the Switzers as "schalensteines." The origin and use of these stones has long been a mooted point among the learned. Some have thought that they were charms, others that they were meant to commemorate the dead. The characters upon them have long since been declared to be undecipherable hieroglyphics, but it has been reserved for Herr Rodiger, of Bellach, to suggest a theory that comes anyways near explaining their true origin and use.

The schalensteines, he says, are topographical charts, as a comparison of them with any modern map of the district in which they may be found will show. The engraved dots correspond with existing towns and villages, the lines with the roads. Even the forks and the mountain passes are indicated with precision that is truly surprising. Herr Rodiger has examined many of these stones from various parts of Switzerland, Italy and Austria, and is sure that they are rude outline maps of the country in which they are found. He has a large collection of them in his possession which, taken collectively, form a most accurate map of Solathurn, the canton in which the majority of them were picked up. Another significant and curious fact concerning the schalensteines is that they are found most plentiful at intervals of about six miles, and usually at places where crossroads cross or fork.—St. Louis Republic.

A Member of the Lobby.

She was an innocent woman, and when her husband went to Washington on some business or other connected with the legislative branch of the government she accepted his explanations without suspicion. Not long ago a lady friend met her.

"I understand your husband has been in Washington some time," said the lady.

"Oh, yes," replied Mrs. X——, "and he will not return until congress adjourns."

"What is he doing there?"

"I don't know exactly the nature of the work," was the innocent reply, "but he writes me that he is a parliamentary solicitor."

"Oh," said the other, equally as unsophisticated, "that must pay very well."

"Indeed it does," exclaimed the wife, "for he sends me a big check every week besides a sealskin coat, a set of diamonds and any amount of other nice things between times."

"My, my," sighed the other woman enviously, "I wish my husband could get a government position too."—Detroit Free Press.

Chantry Notes.

CHANTRY, March 29.—B. Derbyshire's child is having a hard time with the scarlet fever; not much hopes of her recovery. Miss Ida Knowlton is still confined to the house. Miss Lucy Chamberlain is very low. James Smith, Harlem, is the proud possessor of six and a half pounds of joy in the shape of a wee girl. Miss Addie Knowlton, evangelist, is visiting her parents. John Ballis and Southey Elliott and Mr. Fargo's little girl are also on the sick list. Alex. Stevenson, Harlem, has moved back on his farm, New Boyne. John Ames, blacksmith, is setting up business in James Smith's shop, Harlem. H. E. Eyre sold a pure bred Ayrshire to Mr. Johnson, of Oak Leaf, last week. H. E. now boasts a herd of eight females and two males. Our inventor, G. J. Alford, has been finishing several thousands of his sap spouts. The maple syrup manufactured in this locality defies competition and is shipped far and near.

The Commercial Man's Grip.

I have long looked for a preparation that would keep my head clear of Dandruff, but always failed to receive any material benefit until a friend recommended Anti-Dandruff, which I used with perfect success. It not only removed the Dandruff with three applications, but stopped the annoying itching of the scalp and rendered the hair soft and pliable without leaving an appearance of a dressing being used. It now occupies a permanent position in my grip. It is pleasant to use, and with pleasure I recommend it.

Desert Lake Items.

April 6.—Jason Orser was called to the bedside of his brother George, who is very ill in Watertown, N.Y. Mrs. Amey is slowly recovering. Mrs. A. Hoppins, Glendower, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. A. Orser, here. Oliver Snook had his foot cut badly the other day. The shantymen are done and settling up for their winter's work. Sugar makers report a good yield of sap this year. Mrs. J. M. Snook is ill. Visitors: Mr. and Mrs. T. Campbell, Perth Road.

Two Women Murdered.

HOUSTON, Texas, April 4.—Mrs. Anna C. Shaw, an aged lady, and her widowed sister, Mrs. Johnson, were found dead with their throats cut at 278 Prairie street, where they had lived with Mrs. Shaw's son, Walter E. Shaw. The latter is missing, and it is believed that he has committed suicide by jumping into the Buffalo river.

Three Years For Snatching a Purse.

Thomas Stone, the youth who snatched a purse in Toronto a few nights ago, was sentenced to three years imprisonment in the Kingston penitentiary. His record is a bad one. Five terms he has served for larceny, and a sixth conviction in 1888 for burglary secured him three years residence in the limestone city.

Lived Nearly a Century.

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill., April 4.—Mrs. Rodina Cobes, the oldest woman in this country, died this evening. She was ninety-six years old and was the widow of a soldier of the war of 1812. She had resided in this country sixty years and had seen the fifth generation of her descendants.

A NOTABLE POLITICIAN.

CONGRESSMAN BLAND.

The Missourian Who Believes in the Free Coinage of Silver.

Hon. Richard Parks Bland, whose recent struggle for the free coinage of silver has made his name known over two continents, was born Aug. 19, 1835, in Ohio county, Ky. He went west at an early age, and followed the lines of advancing civilization to the Pacific coast. After a varied experience in mining he located in Nevada, where he was treasurer of Carson county for three years.

Soon after the war closed he located in Lebanon, Mo., was elected to congress in 1872, and has been re-elected biennially ever since, being now in his tenth term of service. As a practical miner his knowledge of silver led him to study the financial question carefully, and he became convinced an ardent advocate of the free coinage of silver. In the Forty-fourth congress he was appointed chairman of the committee on mines and mining, and as such introduced the original "Bland bill" for the free coinage of silver at the same ratio as before the so called demonetization of 1873.

R. P. BLAND.

This bill having been amended in the senate, was known as the Bland-Allison bill, and became a law in 1878. It passed the senate by 48 votes to 21 and the house by 203 to 72, the latter on agreeing with the senate amendments. It was promptly vetoed by President Hayes, and on the same day (Feb. 28, 1878) was passed over his veto by 196 to 73 in the house and 46 to 19 in the senate.

This act provided for the coinage of $2,000,000 worth of silver a month, and remained in operation till repealed by the so called Sherman law of 1890. Mr. Bland meanwhile continued to advocate his original measure, and the recent vote thereon furnishes both sides with figures on which they demonstrate their respective claims as to public sentiment.

Sixty Times a Husband.

Sixty living wives! And a one armed man at that, and far from handsome. Such is the record of James Taylor, alias Langdon, alias Benton, alias about twenty other titles in various states, now in jail in New York. Sixty is the number of wives who have reported to date, and there are several back townships to hear from.

The amusing part of it is that he was arrested for swindling, and has never yet been arrested for bigamy. Miss Henrietta Coste, a hairdresser and known as Mme. Leroy, married Taylor last November and started with him to Niagara Falls; he robbed her of $800 cash and a diamond ring valued at $250, and skipped. She swore vengeance, watched and waited and Taylor is in for it at last.

JAMES TAYLOR.

When arrested he was a resident of St. Mark's place, New York city, and was about to marry Mrs. Julietta Johnson. This being published, with his description, two more New York women appeared and identified him as their flange. Finally Justice Grady recognized him as a man whom he had tried several years ago for swindling.

The rogues' gallery was searched and his portrait found and distributed. Notice came in promptly that he had married Mrs. Walk, of Mansfield, Alleghany county, Pa., two years ago and robbed and deserted her. Five other women, married, robbed and deserted, soon reported from western Pennsylvania. His usual way was to pose as a wealthy rancher from California or elsewhere in the far west. He made appropriate presents, married, persuaded the ladies to sell their property for cash before starting west with him, and then followed robbery and desertion. When first brought into court he begged Miss Coste to be merciful and whispered something to her. She stamped her foot indignantly and replied:

"I didn't marry you for love. I don't want a man to love me; I want a man to take care of me."

Her vengeance, therefore, is of the kind that does not readily relax. In all these cases there is one amazing feature, namely, the ease and rapidity with which almost any sort of a man can get married. And to good women, too! Vegily, there is some foundation for the old and spiteful saying, "Man loves to roam, but woman is the marrying animal."

St. Patrick's Ward.

A wealthy citizen of St. Patrick's Ward, Queen St. West, Toronto, Ont., writes as follows: "St. Jacobs Oil is certainly a very efficacious remedy, as it cured me of a severe burn on the hand, after other remedies had failed to relieve me and it has been used by other members of my family with very good effects." THOMAS MURRAY.

A meeting to organize a lodge of the Patrons of Industry was held at Loradale last Tuesday. The organizer, however, did not meet with much success.
