PLINK PLUNK'S SERMON.

HOMELY ADVICE ON THE TREATMENT OF CHILDREN.

Information of Great Value to Parents and Others Who Propose to Get Married—Various Kinds of Children and How to Handle Them.

BEFORE a congregation which completely filled the little hall in which Brother Plink Plunk preaches every Sunday, that rough and ready but full of common sense doctrine delivered himself of the following sermonette, which is particularly interesting to parents and those who expect at some future day to assume the responsibilities of married life:

My remarks to-day, deah breddern, will be on a berry interestin' subjeck, an' I would request dat no one who hez de welfare ob his family at heart will forgit dat he's in duty boun' to listen to me widout fallin' asleep, an' in order to prevent any ob de members ob de flock from dozin' I'll try to make my remahks as short an' sharp as possible.

Dis is an age ob children, deah breddern, an' de expresshun "De chile am de father ob de man" was nebber more strongly illustrated dan it is in America to-day. No matter where ya go, no matter which way ya turn, evidence ob de growin' precociousness ob childrep is placed before yer eyes, an' yer led to think dat perhaps after a while de ting keeps up, de race ob children 'll become extinct, an' people 'll come into de worl' full grown.

I will illustrate my remahks by commentin' on de different kinds ob children dat we meet wid in our everyday life, an' de different ways dere parents hab ob bringin' dese different children up, an' offerin' some suggestions to parents which may be ob some use to dem in de handlin' of their offspring.

THE "KNOWING" CHILD.

Fust and foremost comes de knowin' child, de child dat begins to "take notice" before he's taken out ob de cradle; de child dat can read before it knows how to spell.

Dis kine ob a child am one ob de biggest nuisances on de face ob de earth, deah breddren, becuz he's nebber satisfied unless he's askin' questions. His little homely face an' one great big interrogation point all de time, an' he's always gittin' his dotin parents into hot water on account ob his habit ob inquisitiveness. Eberything he sees he wants to know about an' also a good many tings dat he don't see.

De consequence is dat by de time de knowin' kid is four years old he is about ten times as smaht as his parents, and none of de fairy stories dat are usually sicha pleasure to youngsters are of any interest to him whatever. W'en his little baby sister is born an' dey bring him upstairs to see her an' tell him de good old tale about her bein brought down from Hebben by an angel w'ile de family was all asleep, de knowin kid jists smiles an' winks his left eye at his father in a way w'ich seems to say, "Don't try to stuff dis chicken wid any such gran'mother's chin as dat," an' de fond fader hugs himself wid joy at de wonderful smahtness ob his four-year-old prodigy.

De knowin' child is nebber afraid to go to bed alone, becuz he knows dat all dis talk about "bugaboos" an' "ghosts" is nonsense, invented for de purpose ob scarin children, an' he got ober being scared jist as soon as he wuz born.

De knowin' child am always a great annoyance to his older sister, especially if de older sister happens to hab a beau; becuz he'll be sure to sneak into de parlor after de young man arrives, an' w'ile his sister is finishin' up her titivatin' an makin' herself look charmin' de youngster proceeds to entertain de visitor.

Sometimes he is satisfied wid makin' de young man feel uncomfortable by askin' impertinent questions about himself an' his intenshuns regahdin' his sister, but berry offen he spen's his time in givin' away family secrets an' so spillin' his big sister's chances in de matrimonial line completely.

De knowin' kid kin gib away enuff family information in five minutes to keep his big sister busy explainin' for six months, and eben den dere will be some points dat he amount ob explainin' will explain.

THE "ONLY" CHILD.

Anudder specimen ob de child tribe dat I wish to call yer attenshun to, deah breddern, is de "only" child.

Wen a fadder an' mudder hab only one child, ob course dey think dere nebber wuz anudder kid dat was half as smaht or as good lookin' or as clever as dat dere partic'lar production, an' dey fill de child up wid dis idea until de child begins to think he or she's made ob some different kind o' mud from de rest ob de human race, but de rest ob de human race keeps on de eben tenor ob its way an' jest smiles at de amusin' antics ob de child dat thinks it's one ob de "special pattern," "one-in-a-box," "hands off" class.

THE PRETTY CHILD.

Sometimes in a lahge family, deah breddern, it happens dat one child (ginerally a girl) is poetier dan any ob de udders, an' ob course she is made much ob an' petted at de expense ob de rest ob de children; de color ob her eyes, de curliness ob her hair, de lubly shape ob her hands an' feet, de curve ob her eyebrows, an' all de udder points dat make her so attractive, are spoken ob an' commented on until dat child begins to think dere wuz nebber anybody in de world half as lubly as herself, an' she goes fru life wid a constant hunger for admiration an' flattery dat's impossible to satisfy. In de end she wishes dat she wuz only a plain, eberyday gal, jest like her sisters, so dat she wouldn't hab to be always wonderin' whedder she is 'as pooty as she used to be."

THE "STUPID" CHILD.

Sometimes parents are afflicted wid wot is known as a "stupid" child, an' instid ob bein kind an' considerate to it, an' tryin' to enlighten its foggy intellect, dey ginerally poke fun at it, an' beat it, an' do eberyting possible to make it stupider dan eber. Consequenshally de "stupid" child grows up to knowledge dat his parents are his worst enemies instid ob bein' his best friends, an' he does eberyting in his power to make dem regret dat he ever wuz bohn; whereas, if he had been taken rightly at de staht, he might hab developed into a good citizen an' an ornament to society.

OTHER CHILDREN.

I don't want you to tink, deah breddern, dat I take a pessimistical view ob dis children question, becuz I don't. De examples I had placed before yer mind's eye are only intended to illustrate my remahks on de differences in children. I want to say right here dat dere's nothing in dis yar world dat gibs me more pleasure dan lookin' at an' playin' wid a real sweet little youngster; one ob de kind dat looks up at ya wid wide open eyes an' wonders wot yer goin' to do next—a real, genuine child dat believes in fairy stories an' Santa Claus an' Jack de Giant Killer an' all de udder pooty illusions dat help to make childhood de happiest time in a pusson's life.

Gib me de innocent, laffin, open faced child ebery time in preference to de know-it-all, wooden featured kid dat's an old man before it's time to take him out ob de kilts ob babyhime an' put him into de short pants ob early boyhood.

ADVICE TO PARENTS.

I will close these remarks wid a few words ob advice to parents in regahd to de proper bringin' up of children.

Ef a child is "knowin'" or extra smaht, don't encourage him too much in his pursuit ob knowledge, or else he'll fine out a good many tings dat you'd gib millions ob dollars, if ya had dem, not to hab him know.

Ef ya hab an only child don't fill him up wid de idea dat dere nebber was sich a child born as he is, becuz he's likely to make a fool ob himself on account ob his imagined superiority, an' he'll hab cause to hate ya for givin' him sich a false idea ob himself.

Ef ya hab a pooty child don't flatter her up wid de idea dat she's de mos' beautiful ting dat ever came from de hands ob God, becuz she may be led in after life to seek for admiration from de wrong source an' so bring your gray hairs down in sorrow to de grave.

Ef ya hab a "stupid" child, be kind an' good to him. His stupidness may only be temporary; many ob de smahtest men de world has ever known were what is called as "stupid boys."

Above all tings, keep your children children as long as possible. God knows dey will learn enuff ob de world and its wickedness in after life, an' de longer ya kin keep de taint ob sin from liftin' de veil ob innocence from dere young lives de more cause dey'll hab to bless ya wen dey encounter de stagg an' snarls ob existence later on in life.

The Saddest Part.

When Billie Bass was but a child
She came to me one day
And laid her head upon my cheek
In her sweet baby way.

"Papa," she said, "I want a doll."
What could her father do?
With heart quite full of parent love
I straightway bought her two.

The years sped on. The crown of youth
Lay on her maiden brow.
Again she came to me and said,
"I want a pony now."

The pony came. How glad was I
To see her happy face,
And on my wrinkled heart their lay
No blighting sorrow's trace.

Alas! how easy 'tis to give
Our treasures of the heart
To those we love, but oh, how hard
It is from them to part.

For yesterday she came again,
Just as a child of three,
And, blushing, said, "He's there down stairs,
Papa, and he wants me."

LOVE STORIES IN BRIEF.

The Shortest Proposal of Marriage on Record—Jocularities.

Here are some paragraphs concerning the tender passion. They were found floating about on the sea of anonymity:

A gentleman was deeply in love. He met the object of his affections one evening at a crowded ball, and, as he could not find an opportunity of talking to her he contrived to slip into her hand a piece of paper with the two words, "Will you?" written upon it.

The reply was equally brief:
"Won't I?"

A student once remarking in company that he could make an impromptu rhyme upon any word that might be given to him, was requested to try his powers on "didodum," whereupon he gave the following: "When Dido's lover to Dido would not come, Dido sat moping, and was Dido dumb."

A good Rochester (N.Y.) pastor, a widower, proposed to a young lady a short time since, but was rejected. His feelings had the second severe test when a widow neighbor sent him the following text to preach from: "You ask and receive not, because you ask a miss."

He—Is this the first time you've ever been in love, darling? She (thoughtlessly)—Yes, but it's so nice that I hope it won't be the last!

A Terrible Trouble Now Prevalent in Our Dominion!

The medical profession acknowledge that melancholia is a grave disease, especially as it often leads on to self-destruction and insanity. Many eminent physicians have devoted much time and attention to the study of this terrible trouble; and at the present time the subject is being investigated by a few of our leading medical men.

It is generally conceded, that melancholia proceeds from sleeplessness, nerve disorders and depression of spirits. The melancholic man or woman is the victim of terrible hallucinations, fearful dreams, and a belief that life is always threatened. It is not uncommon to see melancholiacs attempt suicide and destruction.

Up to the present time no treatment has proved of greater value, or so effectual, as Paine's Celery Compound. The best medical men in our land prescribe Paine's Celery Compound regularly for cases of melancholia, and the grandest results invariably follow. No other remedy is so well adapted to reach the root of this dreaded trouble.

Paine's Celery Compound soon calms the nervous system; it gives strength to the weakened body; and brings repose and sweet sleep, which the sufferer needs more than anything else. Thousands of melancholics in Canada have been renewed through the agency of Paine's Celery Compound. Men and women who were almost despaired of, have been restored to friends perfectly cured. This grand medicine has no equal in the field of disease and suffering. The results achieved yearly far exceed all the efforts of ordinary physicians. It never fails in its glorious work of renewing and building up the weak and broken down. Reader, if any of your friends are inclined to be melancholic, or show any of the symptoms that lead to this dreadful trouble, strongly advise the use of Paine's Celery Compound; when you do this you give golden and precious advice.

So Palpable, You Know.

Waiter—But, sir, you have asked the price of the best rooms; they are not yet empty. It's only the little ones at the back that are vacant.

Proprietor—Idiot! can't you see they're a honeymooning couple?

Accounting for His Rapid Transit.

A young lady was sitting in the armchair one night, when in rushed her lover.

"Oh, Joe, what is the matter?" she asked, somewhat alarmed.

"I have just won a medal from the Humane Society, my dear, for saving a fellow-creature's life. He was working with me on the top of the house, when he slipped and fell; you needn't believe it, but I ran down the ladder that quick I actually caught him before he got to the ground."

"You don't say so!" she exclaimed. "He must have stepped on the road for a drink."
