SLATTERY'S SPEECH.

Some of the Things he Had to Say in the City Hall.

There was a fair attendance at the city hall last evening to hear ex-priest Slattery. Before entering upon his lecture the speaker devoted his attention to the News and its editorial of last night, and also to Major Mayne, regarding the latter's letter of a week previous. The News had compared him with the apostle Paul. He did not pretend to be as far advanced as Paul was, but the speaker thought it an insult to the people to compare them with the Corinthians. The News had acted unfairly in only publishing half of his letter in answer to Major Mayne. Referring to Major Mayne he said: "It is not right to tell anyone to stay away from my meetings. I want to know if it is legal or not, and before I leave Kingston I will know. It is astonishing to find a man in the service of the British crown standing up to favor Romanism. Can it be possible that a man learned in English history, as he is, cannot go back to the time when the very kingdom of England was under the power of the pope." He referred to Philip and the Romans, Queen Elizabeth being superseded by Mary, "and in the nineteenth century the major is glad to receive these people into his home! I doubt very much if the citizens of Kingston make the major their mouthpiece. He used the word, 'We' sometimes. 'We' the plural of excellence. I wonder who the 'we' referred to. I suppose by this time you know that I am an Irishman from my accent. So I am, and I'm not ashamed of it. I suppose that if I don't give some account of myself the editor or a reporter of the News, if such a person be present, to-night, will come out in the morning and ask who I am and where do I come from, and so forth." He then went on to tell of his early career, of his entering college, and being ordained a priest. The Catholic theology, he claimed to be two-fold, dogmatic and moral. The moral related to the sins committed by men and women here below. "No tongue or pen can ever described the moral theology. It should be more fittingly called immoral theology. Any man desiring to be a priest has to wade through the mire of iniquity for three or four years so as to have a thorough knowledge of the sins of men and women. There is not a priest in Kingston, to-night, from whose library, if I were given access, I could not bring immoral literature. After mature deliberation I determined to leave Catholicism, and I did come out like a man. A priest's life is a miserable one. It is compulsory with them to attend the sick bed, no matter the disease and take away the sins of the afflicted one before he is sent off to purgatory. People generally think priests are well kept and have the best of everything. Some have; others have not. The major said mine was a scheme for making money. Gentlemen, all I have to say is if that was my purpose I would never have left the priesthood. The priest is first every time. I know it. I was there myself; and there is no one knows it better than the poor people from whom are wrung their hard earnings. I advise the major to give up his profession and become a Roman Catholic priest."

Mr. Slattery burst an artery while doing hard work in Dublin diocese and became very weak. He was removed to an easier parish, Dandrum, which place had two convents and an asylum in charge of priests. "All these asylums belong to Rome. The Catholics cry out for separate schools. The next will be for separate jails."

He dwelt on his labors in the convents, the duties he performed, and noted that all was not love and harmony in the institutions of which he was spiritual adviser. He found much quarrelling and bickerings going on, until he was beside himself over the tattlings. Jealousy reigned. He said: "If you want to know what a convent is like just put ten or fifteen old maids together and you have a convent." He made an appeal for a government inspection of all nunneries. If they are as pure as painted Rome would not suffer in consequence.

He reviewed the cause of his awaken to the fact that Romanism was not the religion. It was over the doctrine of intention as promulgated by the council of Trent, which made baptism and thereafter penance, dependent upon the intention of the priest. The priest could make every baptism null and void by only pretending to baptise. The intention of a priest or of any man could not be known by another so that no one knew whether he was baptised in the true sense or not.

Capt. Thompson, of Duloth, a soldier of the queen and of God, was the first man to point him to Jesus Christ. When a priest he did not know the meaning of the verse, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and be saved." If any one of you were to go up to Dr. Cleary to-night and ask 'What must I do to be saved,' he would tell you a long rigmarole, but with no simple faith in it."

Speaking of his mother land, he said, "Ireland wants home rule; that means Rome rule. They will get home rule the day there is not an Orangeman left in the north of Ireland." The pope claimed to have a desire to educate the world. Look at Italy, his own country, that sent out to America, men with a monkey on one arm and a hand organ in the other. He referred to the battle of the Boyne as the greatest battle ever fought, and he was proud to stand in the town called the "Derry of Canada."

Mr. Slattery is under police protection while in the city. After the meeting last night he was escorted to the British American hotel by officers Tuttle and Bateson.

Suing For Water Rates.

To-day B. M. Britton was sued in the division court for street watering rates for 1887 and 1891. He had paid the rates for intervening years and had the receipts; he believed he had paid for the years sued. The evidence was heard and then Mr. Britton attacked the validity of the by-law. Mr. Agnew defended the city's pretensions. The case occupied much time, and finally Judge Wilkison took the case under advisement.

Fall Importation Of 1892.

Prevost has received all his importation for order work consisting of a large variety of Scotch tweed for suiting, and a great variety of overcoating. A special line of Oxford cloth for suiting or overcoating. Nothing to touch it in the city.

A great many people who promised subscriptions to the Midland Central fair are dilatory in making their payments.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark's selections will be nearly all new. Plan at Henderson's.

THE MURNEY TOWER SITE

IS WANTED FOR THE PLACING OF A SUMMER HOTEL.

B. M. Britton Writes a Letter To The City Council—The Scheme Should Be Vigorously Backed — Some Aldermen Anxious To Get Out of The Council Chamber.

No session of the city council was held last evening, because there was not a quorum present at 8:10 o'clock. Even the mayor, who has not been late since he took office, did not answer his name at the roll call. The aldermen present were: Alds. Carson, Curtis, Drennan, Fair, Gaskin, Hardy, Oberndorffer and Robinson.

When the minute hand pointed to ten minutes past eight Ald. Gaskin asked for the roll call and was seconded by Alds. Carson and Robinson. When it was found there was no quorum Ald. Gaskin gathered up an armful of papers and books, which he had brought from the engineer's office and left the room. He afterwards attended Slattery's lecture, with several other aldermen.

When the mayor arrived and was told what had taken place he was surprised and said: "Well, we will have to hold a special meeting, for there is much important business to transact. It is too bad the meeting was adjourned so promptly."

Alds. Polson, Herald, Rehan, Skinner and Elliott strolled in after the roll call, and could not understand why a meeting was not held. When told that it was because there was not enough members present on time they all, with one accord, said they could have been present on time had they known they were needed to make up a quorum.

"The aldermen are afraid of the cars," said Dr. Fee. "They want more time to consider the street railway matter."

There was a good programme of business prepared by the clerk for the council. It was intended to consider a number of by-laws. One of these provides that every citizen shall have on his or her premises a sink for carrying off foul water. There were many reports to pass, and the street railway matter was to have been settled. An important document was to have been read from B. M. Britton, as follows:

"I am in communication with gentlemen from the United States and Toronto who say they are willing to form a company and build a large hotel in Kingston, involving an outlay of probably about $150,000, provided the Murney tower field can be obtained as the site. So far as I now know no bonus is asked, no exemption from taxation, nor do the parties expect a gift of the land. It is a purely business matter, and the question is would the city be willing, on reasonable term, to sell to the proposed company or to assist the proposed company in procuring from the government that site at a very moderate price. The establishment would be something like the well-known 'Hydropathics' of England and Scotland and would probably, with reduced staff, be kept open all winter. The advantages to the city in having such are too numerous to mention. Even the expenditure of the first cost of such a building in the city would be something. The building and grounds would add greatly to the appearance of the city as the grounds would necessarily be tastefully laid out, and decorated, and would be an entirely new source of income to the city. It would attract to the city large numbers, certainly in summer and at least some in winter. It would not only benefit railways and steamboats, but the citizens generally. It would not in my opinion injure but, on the contrary, would benefit existing hotels. The object is not to compete for the present hotel business but to meet a want now felt and to bring people to Kingston to remain who now do not come, or if they come only touch at the city. The preliminary question is, can this site be secured on reasonable terms? I am prepared to give such further particulars as may be required."

The collector of taxes reports the total amount of taxes and percentage collected for 1891 to date: Total of taxes, $141,822.11; collected, $129,694 18; remitted, $9,508 02; total $139 202 20; percentage, 91.266.03; balance, $2 619 91; collected since last report, September 5th, $310.13. Street watering rates: Total to be collected, $1,700; collected to date, $873 35; balance, $826.65.

R. R. Row, president of Kingston teachers' institute, asks the council for the usual grant of $25 to the institute for 1892.

THE DOG SHOW.

The Attendance Has Been Fair—The Winners of the Prizes.

The attendance at the dog show was fair, but a rush is never expected on the first day. In the evening there were many present and the building looked very becoming. The judges started work in the afternoon, and by six o'clock had gone over the largest portion of the stock.

C. M. Tillman, of New York, commenced the judging yesterday afternoon and got through with some of the classes. As expected the competition was very keen and it took a long time to decide between some of the competitors. All of the dogs are now in place and to-day most of the judging will be completed. The methods of good judges are thorough, and a dog with faults has little chance of coming through the ordeal undetected.

There were some surprises in the judgments given, but the opinion is prevalent that this year's judges are the most competent the show committee have ever had. Dogs that have been around the circuit, face the music with the greatest assurance, but the novices seem bewildered and disturbed by the noise and confusion.

CITY AND VICINITY.

It Deserves Credit.

The board of health deserves great credit for inducing the county council to improve the drainage of the court house, jail and governor's residence. There is a main drain and several tributaries and all are more or less choked up.

The New Mantle Store.

The new mantle store on Wellington street, next door to the Boston fur store, is a busy place. The jackets and mantles sold at this establishment are direct importations from leading European makers and are said to be the best fitting garments ever shown in Kingston.

Eastern Dairymen's Association.

At a meeting of the dairymen's association of Eastern Ontario, held in Toronto, a resolution was passed fixing the first Wednesday and Thursday in January, 1893, for the next annual meeting and convention to be held at Kingston. The president, first and second vice-presidents and secretary, were appointed to engage speakers and a shorthand reporter, and to make all arrangement in the meeting.

To Beat the Record.

This morning, at 8 o'clock, G. F. Stevenson, of the Toronto bicycle club, started for Belleville and return with a view of beating Naismith's record over the same course, a distance of 100 miles. He started from the corner of Alfred and Princess streets, and R. J. Wilson took the time. Stevenson expected to be at Napanee on the return trip at 1 o'clock to-day. He was to have been in the Toronto road team which competed here, on July 2nd, but he was unable to be present and McLeod took his place.

Will Enforce The Law.

H. K. Smith, game warden of Belleville, was in the city to-day consulting sportsmen as to the necessity of enforcing the game laws of Ontario. The WHIG's exposure of the infractions of the law has stirred the commission, and it is bound to make marks of all offenders in this the greatest sporting section of Ontario. Mr. Smith says wardens will be appointed at various places, and the game laws will be made live measures to stop lawlessness. He said to a reporter: "The law allows two months in which to make complaints. If anyone knows of infractions of the law and will write me giving proof possessed by them, I will at once attend and prosecute."

The Opera House Last Night.

Dan McCarthy and his talented company presented for the first time here, his new piece, "The Rambler From Clare." The dialogue was well sustained and the company bright add smart and free from music hall gags. The scenery, pretty, and the play well staged, the farm yard scene being very natural. The author takes the leading character, as "Tony Sullivan," and was well supported by a talented company, including, amongst others, Miss Lou Ripley, Miss Mabel Saunders, Miss Jennie Courtis, Miss Ida Donnelle, Miss Bordell, Miss Kittie Roberts, E. Hume, Mr. Tandey, Chas. Saunders, Phil McCarthy, Nagle Barry and Jas. Flanigan. To-night "True Irish Hearts" will be given.

The Coal Question.

With reference to an item in last night's WHIG regarding the prices of coal, the difference some dealers make between city contracts and individual supplies, James Swift stated to a reporter that the man who made such a bargain as to supply coal for $5 35 a ton "puts his foot in it." Coal at present, by the green ton, costs $5 15 and not $4 50; add to this 25c. freight, 15c. for unloading, 30c. for screening and 25c. for carriage, and the total for a ton reaches $5.54. Mr. Swift says that in May coal was much cheaper and a dealer who contracted for $5 35 must have been figuring on his purchases of that time. Joseph Higgins, agent for the Reading coal company, which firm controls the combine, was in the city yesterday, and told Mr. Swift that in his mind there was not the slightest doubt but that there would be another advance in coal of 25c. this fall.

Taken For Clergymen.

There are two citizens who very much resemble priests, and when they are away from home receive considerable consideration because of their position. They are Anthony McGuire and Ald. J. J. Behan. A few weeks ago Mr. McGuire was in Michigan, visiting friends and stopped at a $4 a day hotel. When he was about to leave he asked for his bill. He noticed that he was only charged $2 per diem. He asked the reason and the clerk very blandly said: "Oh, we only charge the clergy half price." Ald. Behan was travelling on a railway between Detroit and Windsor three years ago. He had in his trunk several important vials which he hoped the customs officer would not inspect. He left his trunk open and covered up his treasures. When the customs officer came along he looked sharply at Mr. Behan, made a slight bow saying, "All right, your reverence."

There was no programme for the magistrate at the police court this morning.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

The Murder of Hagerty.

WEST DULUTH, Sept. 16. — (To the Editor): I see by a telegram sent to the Herald that "Mike" Hagerty's mother has been found in Kingston, a Mrs. Parsons. The name of the murdered man was John. I have known him five years. He told very little about his relations but as near as I can remember he said his father's name was Dennis. Some one came from Kingston last summer and told him of his father and mother and sister Hattie who got married shortly before, also of his brother, keeping a hotel. He told me all about it but not knowing the persons or locality it went in one ear and out the other. He asked for me when he was shot but the poor fellow was dead before I got there or I would have known all about him and his folks. There are many Kingston people here but none of them could place him or his folks. He boarded at our place and was the only boarder we could keep. He was more like a brother to me than a stranger and my mother thought as much of him as if he was one of her own boys. It was a terrible shock to every one in the house. He was very popular in town and he had the largest funeral ever seen in West Duluth. He was not drinking when the affair happened and had only just left the house and met the other man who was shot; John interfered to save him when he met his sad fate. If the woman whom you found was his mother she can get any information she wants by writing to Annie H. Cullen or myself. If she is his mother tell her that he was prepared for death and had all the rites of his church. It may be a consolation to her.—JOHN E. CULLEN.

Fully Identified.

The identity of John Haggerty, murdered in Duluth, has been fully established. His mother received a letter, yesterday, from Annie Cullen, Duluth, to whom the unfortunate man was to have been married in a short time. Her description of the man is so complete that no doubts are entertained as to his identity.

Elginburg Events.

ELGINBURG, Sept. 20.—The thoroughly scriptural, and therefore rational sermons being delivered by Rev. S. Shibley are highly relished by large congregations. By the way, Elginburg has a peculiar liking for commonsense sermons. Their taste has been cultivated that way. C. Ewing has tired of keeping boarding hens, and has left "Factory Cottage" for his own "Sweet Home. "A sadder and wiser man." During the storm, Sunday night, the lightning struck a corner of George Porter's barn, making a splintered track to the ground; finally at last being to liver up a well-free which happened to be in the way. It is fortunate the damage is not more serious, as we understand the insurance had expired a day or two previous. Don't allow your insurance to expire even a day or two before renewing. J. L. Pope and J. Dougherty have returned from the Toronto fair and pronounce it a great one, excelling even our own central. They were delighted with the "acres" of machinery and agricultural implements.

W. Hobbs' passengers may again enter his stage with quiet nerves as the broken axle has been well and truly welded in the shop of J. L. Pope. William had some difficulty in finding a smith who would undertake so large a weld. He should have known
