58TH YEAR---NO. 77. KINGSTON, ONT., THURSDAY EVENING, APRIL 2, 1891. TWO CENTS.

IT IS GRATIFYING

To the Friends and Policy Holders of the

TRAVELERS'

INSURANCE COMPANY

To learn that, while maintaining its place during 1890 as the leading Accident Assurance Co. by issuing over 100,000 policies and paying in claims nearly one million dollars, it also wrote $13,563,000 of life insurance.

These figures mean that the Travelers wrote almost as much life insurance as the four leading Canadian Life Insurance Companies, together and gives it the right to be classed as a leading Life Insurance Company as well as the Leading Accident Insurance Company of the World.

The Lake Trade.

Toronto Globe.

Capt. Gaskin, Kingston, says the outlook this spring for the lake trade was very blue. Owing to the reports last fall of frost in the North-West, not much wheat was stored, but it was kept moving eastward in care. Therefore, there is very little now to come down by vessel. They did not expect to do much until after next harvest. The order in council, reducing the canal tolls, differs this year from last, inasmuch as it prevents grain from first going to Ogdensburg and then being shipped either to the New England seaboard or Montreal, as they might choose, and receiving the rebate at Montreal. Capt. Gaskin had no hesitation in saying that he favored reciprocity with the States in coasting, but being a Macdonaldite he does not favor reciprocity in some other matters.

SUBJECTS OF INTEREST.

CONSIDERING THE ADDRESS OF PROF. WATSON, OF QUEEN'S.

An Impression That a Writer Drew From the Lecture—What is the Whole of Christianity—The Address Was Largely Humanitarian in Its Character And Not the Living Christianity.

KINGSTON, April 2.—(To the Editor): The papers on Monday last gave us reports of the address given by Prof. Watson last Sunday in Convocation hall, on the subject of "Christianity in relation to every day life." Besides the report was a communication extolling the same and telling us that "The world is in need of such, and not until such words are more frequently spoken and more widely spread will the power of the gospel of christianity be felt."

I was not present at the lecture, but since the learned lecturer, with the consent or by the advice of his friends, has presented us with the address and with such a flattering eulogy of its subject matter, it was with the object and purpose that it should be read and if possible understood.

I must confess, however, that through my native obtuseness or other mental defect I have been utterly unable to imagine what object the learned lecturer had set before himself in the preparation and delivery of the said address; even after reading it over and over again. Is it the address of a nominally christian professor in a christian college in a christian centre of population to a number of christian young men and presumably in defence of the christian faith, of christianity itself. It was delivered too upon the evening of that queen of festivals, Easter day, the annual commemoration of the great central fact upon which the faith and necessarily the practice of all christians rests, viz: The resurrection from the dead of Jesus Christ the Son of God. But what are we to think of the character of such an address delivered on such a day which passes over and utterly ignores the grand fact which that day commemorates. This character, or rather, want of christian character of the address unfavorably impressed me each time I read it. Indeed it left me under the very unpleasant idea that the learned lecturer either doubted or was prepared to deny the fact of our Lord's resurrection from the tomb. If I do the gentleman an injustice here, I sincerely beg his pardon and hope he will take an early opportunity of correcting the unpleasant impression, which has become prevalent of late, as to his acceptance or non-acceptance of the great facts upon which christianity is based.

As to the statement of the English man of science, "That if he were about to introduce a new religion into the British islands he did not think that christianity would be that religion;" this the lecturer calls a "confession of faith." I would term it a confession of non-faith—of infidelity. Christianity, as it is presented to us in the New Testament, is composed of facts, not fancies—of infallible truths—and the influence which they have in purifying, elevating and ennobling the lives and characters of each individually and of humanity as a whole. None of these facts and truths has the lecturer seen fit to allude to in it; not once has he referred to the facts of the supra-natural conception and birth of the Lord Jesus, to the divine nature of His person, or mission as the Mediator, as testified to by His wonderful works, to His crucifixion, death and burial, His mighty resurrection and glorious ascension or to the outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon the little band of Christians on the day of Pentecost. Yet these very facts and the principles founded thereon form the foundation, framework and superstructure, in fact the whole of Christianity. On the contrary, the Christianity he presents to us might have the name changed to Judaism, Brahmaism or Mohammedanism, and its platitudes would answer equally well in the mouth of one of their rabbis, pundits or muftis, in praise of their several religions, as for Christianity, which he so tamely upholds. Faint praise is often more objectionable than downright hearty condemnation.

Far as I am capable of judging, the "christianity" of the learned lecturer is nothing more nor less than that humanitarianism which is equally strongly and much more practically taught in every Oddfellows, Foresters and Good Templars lodge room.

The learned lecturer informs us that "the false assumption that christianity is a religion only of the other world has arisen from a confusion of one aspect of it with the whole." The gentleman will pardon me if I ask, just here, who has made this false assumption? Certainly by none who have possessed the right to describe, define or declare what christianity was and is.

When St. Ambrose, the amiable, the mild and modest, withstood the emperor Theodosius and forbade him entering the doors of the cathedral of Milan while his hands were yet figuratively reeking with the blood of the citizens of Thessalonica, he thereby declared the right of christianity to take cognizance of and correct the abuses of civil and political life. The whole penetential discipline of the church by which the evil doer was put to open shame "that his soul might be saved in the day of the Lord" declares the intimate relation it maintains with each as individuals, and with the whole as a community. And when the God-Man said "Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them," shows the intimate nature of the tie which binds each to all and all to each.

In writing what I have I may say that it has not been done in a captious spirit, nor for the sake of making a personal attack upon the learned lecturer, but simply to point out to your readers and the gentleman himself that the christianity he preaches is not the christianity founded upon and upheld by the great facts I have referred to, and which, as as whole, form the gospel of Jesus Christ the Son of God.—MOT.

Letters Gone Astray.

PLEVNA, April 1. — (To the Editor): Noticing in your valuable paper of the "defective postal service" of Canada and the United States, I beg to say that I have in one case alone, sent from here eight letters addressed to V. E. Fuller, Escanaba, Michigan, and only two, out of the eight, have been received. Four or five letters to other people of the same place have not reached their destination. Then of letters, sent to me, not one half have been received. Is it not time that something was done to give people a trustworthy postal service? How is business to be carried on between the two countries if our letters are forever going astray? I for one am a great loser, in this instance losses which can never be made right again. What is the trouble? There is a nigger in the fence somewhere and should be hunted out.—ED. F. COXWELL, prospector and miner's agent.

A Deserter From "A" Battery.

Gunner Arnold, of "A" battery, deserted Tuesday night, leaving a brass new shiform with C. L. Bass, Princess street, wrapped up in heavy paper, to be called for. Mr. Bass noticed the bright buttons, yesterday, and, surmising that they belonged to a deserter, telephoned to the battery, when a picket was sent up for the clothing. The authorities think that Arnold is not far away and that he will be arrested in a few days.

A Fire Last Night.

A fire occurred near the outer G.T.R. station at Gananoque about midnight last evening. A house owned by J. Toland was entirely destroyed. Part of his furniture was lost. When the fire broke out first it was supposed that it was put out and the furniture was replaced in the building. This was a mistake for very soon afterwards the flames broke out afresh and burned up the property.

The reception committee of the city council intend asking for a grant of money to be used in advertising the natural advantages of the city.

A New Appointment.

H. G. Lyttle, late agent of the C.P.R., has been appointed agent at Mason Junction, Wis., for the Minnesota, St. Paul & Omaha RR. and D. S.S. & A. RR.

What May be Expected.

A gentleman, who is first class authority, stated last evening that the G.T.R. workshops would be removed from Belleville and Brockville to Kingston within the course of two years, provided a suitable bonus was voted by the citizens.

To be Trained in Germany.

Miss Armstrong, daughter of D. F. Armstrong, will play violin selections at a concert to be held in Deseronto on April 23rd. It is the intention of her parents to send her to Leipsic, Germany to complete her musical education in one of the best conservatories there.

May Get Other Places.

During the interview between the conservative delegation (which went to Ottawa yesterday) and Sir John Macdonald, the question of the reinstatement of two suspended clerks from the post office, it is said, was discussed. It is probable the young men will be given other positions in the civil service.

A Phonograph on Exhibit.

An Edison phonograph was on exhibition last evening in the British American hotel and many citizens listened with delight to the selections of band and vocal music herrd through the tubes as realistically as though close at hand. The wonderful instrument is in charge of W. F. Lipsett. He remains here for a week.

Accepted the Call.

Rev. Alexander MacGillivray, of Brockville, brother of the pastor of Chalmers' church, has accepted the call to Bonar Presbyterian church, Toronto. He was moved to tears as he accepted the call, believing it was his Master's will. He had never encouraged the people in Toronto to press the call. He goes west in May.

He Died Yesterday

Yesterday Dr. W. H. Henderson was summoned to Gananoque to attend a young man, H. Rogers, suffering from inflammation of the lungs. The doctor left here last night but before he could get to the patient he was dead. He was a Forester and a member of several other societies. He was a druggist, and very popular with all classes of society. His death is greatly lamented.

A Committee in Session

A committee of the provincial synod is now in session in St. George's hall, its object being the preparation of a report on "marriage and divorce" to be submitted to the synod at its next meeting. The members of the committee are; Right Rev. Bishop Kingdon, of Fredricton, N.B., chairman; Rev. Provost Body, Toronto; Ven Archdeacon Roe, Lennoxville, Que.; Rev. Canon Partridge, Halifax and Charles Jenkins, Petrolia. The committee will probably sit for two or three days.

Real Estate Exchanges.

Real estate agents say the demand for land and houses is increasing. One agent expects to make twenty sales of property this week. Two stone dwellings on Barrie street, owned by Mr. Newlands, were sold yesterday for $3,750. A row of rough-cast houses on Princess street, owned by the same gentleman, were put up but not sold. The offers were $500 short of the reserved bid. Two brick houses on Montreal street, owned by J. McLeod, were sold for $4,500, and three frame houses on Alfred street were disposed of for $5,000.

A Break in the Dam.

On Friday a hole was noticed in the Hog's Back dam on the Rideau river, but people who saw it did not believe serious results would follow. On Saturday morning their was a hole in the dam big enough for a canoe to pass through. Engineer Wise set fifty men at work to repair it and soon they had the water under control. The people in New Edinburgh felt very uneasy until they heard the break was stopped. This place is located only a short distance below the dam and once before the people were disturbed by water which came down on their property in floods.

The Stranger Took the Outfit.

On Friday last John Hughes, of Dacre, Bailiff of the Fifth Division Court, when on his way to Springtown passed a stranger walking on the road. Mr. Hughes spoke to him and the stranger said he would ride with him a piece and got into the cutter. After a short time the stranger offered to drive, which Mr. Hughes declined to permit, but asked him to hold the lines while he filled his pipe. While Mr. Hughes was engaged in filling his pipe the stranger gave him a sudden shove upsetting him out of the sleigh and drove rapidly away. Mr. Hughes followed as fast as he could but could not overtake him. He then went to Renfrew to obtain assistance of a constable in his search. He has not yet recovered the animals.

A Boy Knocked Over.

At ten o'clock this morning the horse, attached to James Tierney's delivery wagon, became frightened and ran away along Ontario street. At the corner of Brock and Ontario streets the animal turned and the wagon slewing round struck a lamp post and became detached, at the same time throwing half a dozen of ale into the street. The horse proceeded on its destructive career unhampered by any weight, and at the corner of King and Brock took to the boardwalk, giving the large plate glass window of Henry Wade a narrow shave and knocking down the little six-year old son of Captain Saunders, who sustained a severe bruise on his leg near the knee. The animal was finally stopped in a short time without further damage being done.

Police Court—Thursday.

Robert Armstrong, drunk, was sent up for three months. George Murphy, a young tramp, who has travelled from Philadelphia to this city via Montreal, without money, was remanded for one week for vagrancy. Andrew Cameron, drunk, was given ten days in gaol. Henry Bemar was given a rest for three months for the same offence. The cases of abusive language against Ellen Goodyear were adjourned for a week, and those of assault and malicious injury to property against Hannah McGowan adjourned till Monday. Henry McKenna pleaded guilty to stealing a ham from Saunders' butcher shop, but asked for clemency on the ground of drunkenness. P. C. Timmerman stated that "he saw McKenna going into the butcher shop without any meat, and he was not sooner in than he was out again with the ham, and so the arrest followed." McKenna was sent up for two months.

That Bridge Project.

An Albany, N. Y., exchange says: "Another proposition to bridge the St. Lawrence came from Frank M. Jones, of Monroe. His company wants ten years in which to complete a structure from Cape Vincent to or near Kingston, crossing Wolfe Island. In this case, also, the capital stock is made half a million, with privilege of increasing to two millions, work to be begun by the 1st of July, 1896, and to be completed on or before the same day, 1901. One theory about the Wolfe Island line is that it is a connection between the Grand Trunk and the Ontario and Western, the former route west for the Ontario, from Oswego to Suspension Bridge, having been taken up by the New York Central. By building a line from Cape Vincent to Oswego, a western outlet would be secured to the Ontario and a New York outlet for the Grand Trunk. Another theory is that the New York Central wants to get into Kingston by way of Wolfe Island, and still another is, that the Jones's scheme is purely speculative to get a charter for the market."
