A Hope For Kingston.

At the opening of the Supreme Grand Orange Lodge at Cornwall, yesterday, the Grand Master said: "My correspondence has been very large, and has been of the most satisfactory character, with the exception of that referring to the troubles which exist in the city of Kingston. I trust that the brethren of that historic city will, however, speedily fall into line, and that in the future as in the past they will be in the van in promoting our interests." Kindly reference was made to the late Rev. A. Dawson and Dr. McCammon.

MONTREAL CONFERENCE.

SESSIONS INCREASING IN INTEREST—SOME HOT DEBATES.

The Standing of Local Preachers—Not Admitted as Members of the Conference—Various Important Appointments—Approaching the End—Fighting Into the Government.

Conference resumed at 2 o'clock. Rev. J. W. Chapman led in prayer.

Revs. W. I. Shaw, T. G. Williams and J. W. Sparling were appointed to prepare rules for the guidance of billets for conference.

The superannuated ministers continued in their relation are: Revs. S. E. Maedsley, A. Drennan, G. H. Davis, J. Borland, Jas. Brock, Wm. Short, F. B. Knowlton, S. Wright, H. Shaler, N. H. Howard, H. Lane, Wm. Brown, D. A. Brown, D. Smith, R. Mark, M.D., W. Scott, T. W. Constable, M. McDonald, T. Rennie, W. English.

Revs. C. A. Hanson and James O'Hara were restored to the active work.

The cases of G. Stenning, J. H. Andrews, Jos. Earl, J. Elliott, J. C. Cornell, C. A. Jones, J. H. Fowler, M.A., were referred to the Committee on Church Relations.

The supernumerary ministers are: John Hiscock, T. O. Adkins, Luther Houghton, H. Irvine, Francis Hunt, Samuel Jackson, John Robinson, James B. Wing. The case of Jacob Freshman was referred to the Committee on Church Relations.

Rev. A. Lee Holmes was left without a station for one year.

Rev. H. Garrett, has retired from the itinerant work.

None were deposed from the ministry.

Rev. D. G. Bruce was granted a letter of removal.

STANDING OF LOCAL PREACHERS.

A motion was made constituting ordained local preachers members of this conference, giving them a recognition which they never had before. It was held by some that as they were ordained they were amenable to the conference. The most remarkable feature of the discussion was the position of the former Methodist Episcopal Church ministers. The local preachers were Methodist Episcopal and were ordained by them, at a time of course when there was much more need of them then now, and yet the clergy of the late M. E. Church said they were never recognized as members of the conference of that church. The Methodist Church as it now exists does not ordain local preachers, and the thought was expressed that it would be well when the order ceased to be. The debate grew quite warm, and lasted for some time, and resulted in the decision that ordained local preachers were to remain as they were formerly, members of the Quarterly Board and amenable to it, but not members of the Annual Conference.

EMPLOYMENT OF COLPORTEURS.

The question of employing colporteurs in connection with the French work, was discussed. It was pointed out that a hundred families per month or 1,200 families annually could be reached in this way, and it was largely through them that the gospel could be circulated throughout Lower Canada. Dr. Douglass made an eloquent speech in favour of the proposition, and the resolution favoring it was adopted.

The matter was then referred to a special committee.

SCOTT ACT AMENDMENTS.

Rev. B. B. Klefer, of Niagara, general agent of the Dominion Temperance Alliance, was introduced and made a neat and pleasing speech. He announced that which was very unpopularly regarded, that there was a fear that the amendments made by the Senate to the Scott Act would be approved and adopted by the House of Commons. He urged the conference, and each member of it, to do all that in them lay to prevent the consummation of such a thing.

The report of the committee on the state of the work was read by Rev. Mr. Porter. It recommended strongly, and in explicit terms, that the ministers of the conference withhold their support from candidates for public positions and honors who did not have a proper regard for the sanctity of the Sabbath and did not favour total prohibition. The report was received.

It was moved and carried that the conference direct the members of the conference to preach once a year upon the subject of Christian beneficence.—Carried.

THE MONTREAL MISSION.

The memorial committee presented a report recommending the granting of $500 towards the establishment of the mission referred to in the communication from the Montreal district meeting. Rev. A. B. Chambers moved an amendment to the effect that the amount be increased to $1,000. This amendment was carried.

Wednesday Morning's Session.

Conference met at 9 o'clock; Rev. S. S. Phillips, led in prayer.

Rev. W. W. Madge and Rev. R. C. Horner were left without an appointment for a year.

Lachute was placed on the list of missions.

Leave was granted to Rev. D. V. Lucas to be employed by the Quebec branch of the Dominion Temperance Alliance, his position to the Superannuated Fund not being prejudiced by his appointment.

The following were appointed a committee to prepare a scheme for the employment of colporteurs in the French work: Rev. Messrs. Galbraith, Beaudry, Pitcher, Bond and Chambers.

It was moved by Rev. W. Phillips, seconded by Rev. Mr. Hansford, that in the case of Rev. S. Quinn the record reads, that having travelled four years, and having completed his studies and probationary term, his ordination has been deferred to permit of his attending college.—Carried.

VARIOUS APPOINTMENTS MADE.

The following are the lay members of the Conference Missionary Committee: Montreal District, W. H. Rosevear, Kingston, Dr. Lavell; Brockville, Jas. Russel; Matilda, J. M. Barr; Perth: John Jamieson, M.P.P.; Pembroke, S. E. Mitchell; Ottawa, C. W. Jenkins; Quebec, W. H. Lambley; Stanstead, Otis Thurloff; Waterloo, Israel England.

W. H. Lambley was elected a member of the Central Mission Board; Rev. T. G. Williams was elected clerical representative to the same board.

It was decided that in future the counting of ballots should be done by letters to save time. Revs. D. C. Sanderson, S. D. Chown, E. Degreichy and S. Olivant were so appointed.

Vioulenette, Dickinson's Landing, Osnabruck Centre and Dunbar were formed into a mission.

The statistical committee reported that the increase of members during the year was 1,441. These were above all returns tabulated regarding the churches contracting union.

PRESENTATION TO THE POSTMASTER.

A pleasant incident occurred about 10.30 o'clock. Rev. John Gibson, of Wolfe Island, who acted as postmaster of the conference, was called to the platform. The president held a package, which he said he was deputed to give him. In this day of dynamite and infernal machines he did not know if it contained anything dangerous. At this moment the package fell to the floor and there were cheers. The chink of silver occurred. Mr. Gibson thanked the conference for the present.

OKA INDIAN GRIEVANCES.

The conference this year seems to have run against the government in several matters. In regard to the Oka Indians the recommendation of Rev. W. Scott, to secure their removal to another reserve, Gibson, Muskoka, the memorial committee agreed that there was not sufficient data to warrant any action. Rev. Mr. Scott then hastily arose, attacked the finding, and moved a committee to consider the matter and report to the mission board. Dr. Douglass opposed the suggestion vigorously, and discussed the rights of the Indians of Oka. He opposed their removal to any other part of the country, pathetically pointing out the emotions which filled the breasts of the Indians regarding the traditions of the past and the graves of their ancestors. He urged delay, for there was hope that soon the independent liberal-minded men would go to the defence of the red men. They had spent $20,000 in securing the burial of Guibord in a Catholic cemetery. Possibly they would spend a similar amount to wrest the lands of the Indians from a terrible despotism. He attacked the government for its dilatoriness in not having a test case taken to the Privy Council. He declared that the Indians did not want to leave their homes, and they should not so act as to appear afraid of the seminaries in Quebec.

Rev. W. Scott charged that the remarks of Dr. Douglass were fallacious. He said there were Indians willing to leave Oka, and the government would give them lands in Muskoka.

One gentleman pointed out that in doing this the government admitted the Indians' claims to Oka property.

Rev. A. B. Chambers made a few remarks, and declared that there was nothing but rock, interminable rock, everlasting rock on the new reserve. It was said that if an Indian died, not enough ground could be found to bury him, while visitors to that land found grasshoppers with tears in their eyes because they could find no grass or shrubs to live upon. These remarks caused great applause.

Rev. A. Hardie protested against the action of the government in the past, and it was largely due to the mealy-mouthed action of the conference. They should be firm and stern. Large grants of land had been given to the Catholics in 1837, in Quebec, and in 1870 in Red River for suppressing rebellion. If they did not look out the heirarchy would get more lands in the North-West for quelling another rebellion. The action of the memorial committee was sustained.

CONFERENCE MEETING.

Vigorous Speeches by the Clergy—More About Scott Act Amendments.

A most enthusiastic temperance meeting took place last evening in Sydenham Street Methodist Church. Rev. S. Card occupied the chair. Rev. D. Winters led in prayer and supplicated for the misguided legislator at Ottawa, who were trying to legislate against temperance. He also prayed for a drunken woman, whom he saw on the streets on Monday. The chairman had yet to hear one argument in favor of strong drink. He referred to the Anti-Scott meetings and remarked that there was one essential feature always absent—prayer. He did not think their was a man living who dare pray in public that the whiskey traffic be perpetuated. The only argument in favour of the traffic was that it put money into the pockets of those engaged in it.

Rev. William Pyke said people were continually asking the temperance people to tell them something new. Just when the liquor traffic gives the people something new and better the temperance people would consider the advisability of giving something new, but so long as the liquor traffic continues to tell the old old story of havoc just so long will the temperance people make

ITS OLD, OLD CHARGES.

The speaker then touched upon the subject of revenue and vested rights, and, by illustration, showed that all the laws of the country interfered with the freedom of men to a certain extent. He referred to the evils of intemperance in a stirring manner. He could point to a hotel keeper who lived not far from Sydenham street church who lost three of his family by whiskey, and yet the community had given a majority against the Scott Act. He pictured a bar-room, a place where the most impure and foul conversation took place. He defied an angel to live in a bar-room and remain pure in its atmosphere.

HE NEVER TASTED LIQUOR.

Rev. Mr. Chisholm, an old temperance orator, began by saying that, proving his position and presenting his credentials, he had yet to take his first glass of liquor. In 1850, when young, he stood at his father's grave and swore eternal hatred to rum. His father did not die from drink, but a man whose brain was fired with ardent spirits deprived him of his life. Then again, he was a temperance man because he was a Christian. He congratulated Kingston upon the moral victory it had achieved in the Scott Act contest. Whe he read that the Scott Act was to be tried in this city he thought it would be defeated by a large majority, as the strength of the liquor traffic was centred in cities. He rejoiced that the Act had only been defeated by a small majority. It was a moral victory for the temperance party. The temperance question was more important in his estimation than the building of the C. P. railway. In an argumentative way he discussed the license system and dwelt on the rights of the temperance people in the matter. He was opposed to the license law, for it was wrong in principle. The Senate might amend the Scott Act and the Commons dodge the vote, but the time was assuredly coming when this land would be free from intemperance. The legislation of the county had done much towards furthering the temperance cause. They gave the Dunkin Act, followed by the Scott Act, and he expected to live to see the day when total prohibition would be secured to the people.

LAST OF THE EVENING.

Rev. Dr. Lucas made an address, saying strong language was required; they were talking for eternity. He advised the people of Kingston not to despair, but to fight on to reorganize and they would ultimately win. He was inclined to think that the Scott Act amendments would pass the House. If they did then a third party should be formed and only total prohibitionists would be sent to parliament.

Rev. B. B. Keefer, of Hamilton, was the last speaker. He had just arrived from Ottawa and his remarks were in reference to the action of the House touching the Scott Act amendments. The anti-party were doing all they could to have the amendments pass. He urged the aid of temperance people to defeat their schemes. It was then moved by Rev. Mr. Jackson and seconded by Rev. Mr. Chisholm:

"That this meeting, being thoroughly and sadly convinced of the greatness of the evils associated with and growing out of the liquor traffic, and encouraged by the rapid growth of the principles of entire prohibition, solemnly and earnestly pledge itself to agitate in favor of the complete emancipation of our people from this tempting and blighting curse."

Senator Edmunds has sailed for England. He is to testify before the committee on privileges of the House of Lords in a civil suit which affects the title of an old peerage in England, the income of which is $80,00 a year.

FELICITATIONS, FRIEND!

THE CITY EDITOR OF THE "WHIG" AND HIS MANY SURPRISES.

An Event Which Inspires His Friends to Mark Their Love for Him—The Business and Representative Men in Session—Mr. Elliott's Associates and Sentiments—A Season of Good Wishes.

The parlor of the Royal Hotel was filled last evening with leading citizens, business men and representatives of the city council. They had assembled to give what they termed "a send-off" to J. G. Elliott, city editor of the WHIG, who intends this evening to join the noble army of—well, George Mills calls them "martyrs," but others call them "benedicts." The occasion was one of interest. The cordiality of feeling manifested clearly demonstrated with what esteem Mr. Elliott is held by the public. Mr. John McKay, jr., was invited to preside. After a few introductory remarks John A. McMahon, barrister,

READ THE FOLLOWING ADDRESS:

"We are delighted to hear that you are about to take a new departure, one whose importance we cannot too highly estimate. We have not been altogether surprised by the occurrence of this incident. It seems to have been your destiny, and towards it we saw you hastening, for, as you know,

"Often do the spirits
Of great events stride on before the events,
And in to-day already walks to-morrow."

"Your departure is one which meets our entire approval, and we hope it will be fruitful of all the happiness which its approach must have led you to anticipate.

"Matrimony is the objective point in the career of every honorable young man. You follow in the footsteps of the great and good in all ages. You are expected to become an exemplar in this matter, and you will become such and rise higher in our favor and in public popularity if the benedictions of your many friends possess their usual merit.

"Henceforth we shall see less of you, we shall miss you from our walks and talks, but we shall have the consolation of knowing that your society is devoted to one so worthy of your regard and affection. Accept of our gift as a reminder of "Auld Lang Syne," and believe us to be ever yours fraternally,

(Signed) "THE BOYS OF KINGSTON."

Applause greeted the reading of the address. The gift was a magnificent one, consisting of a china dinner and tea service, of beautiful design and numbering over one hundred pieces, besides a full set of silver cutlery.

MR. ELLIOTT'S REPLY WAS BRIEF.

Though fully capable, hitherto, of giving expression to what he desired, on the present occasion his lips refused to give utterance to the feelings of his heart. He accepted their gift, so magnificent in its character, and said he would ever treasure it as the momento of a happy past. The memories of six years crowded upon him. He recalled nothing but kindness and good will from his friends. He had coveted their esteem and if he had in any way helped to make life pleasant he was amply repaid by their friendship. As a journalist he had endeavoured to do his duty faithfully and fearlessly, and this gathering demonstrated that they thought none the less of him for that. He heartily thanked them for their gift.

AN EVENING HAPPILY SPENT.

The evening was spent in songs and speeches, which there numerous. Alds. Bermingham and Carson, Messrs. J. P. Gildersleeve, Dr. Curtis, Capt. Galloway, George Mills, C. Livingston, Jas. Crawford, F. Conway, J. McKay, (Business College), J. M. Smith and others made remarks complimentary of "Joe," who seemed to have a warm place in their hearts. He was wished a great deal of happiness. The gathering dispersed about 10 o'clock. The present given was valued at $75.

SURPRISES AT THE "WHIG."

Mr. Elliott Given Evidence of the Esteem He is Held in by Associates.

At 1 o'clock to-day Mr. Elliott was called out of the editorial rooms to the composing room, and, as the employees encircled about him he became aware of their designs. Mr. S. Reid, chief of this department, requested his attention while he read the following address:

To Mr. Joseph Elliott:

SIR—We, the employees of the WHIG composing room, cannot let the present opportunity pass without expressing our united wishes of prosperity and happiness to you for the future. Having learned of your changing from single life to married life, we desire to congratulate you upon this event, and trust that yourself and lady may look back with pleasure to this memorable event.

We also beg of you to accept this ink stand and pen as a mere token of the respect that the employees of the composing room have for you, having always found you courteous and gentlemanly towards us, and hope that in years to come it may be as a reminder to the many pleasant associations with us.

(Signed), SAMUEL REID, Foreman.

JOHN SCANLAN,	HENRY CRAIG,
JOS. THOMPSON,	JOHN J. BYRNS,
DAVID WILSON.

Kingston, June 3d, 1885.

The ink-stand and pen were tendered to Mr. Elliott by Mr. John Scanlan, and he accepted them with a heart full of gratitude. The ink-stand is a beautiful thing, silver mounted, and having upon its base those words:

"Presented to J. G. Elliott by the employees of the WHIG composing room, June 3rd, 1885.

The pen-holder and pen are gold, and a fitting ornament for the stand.

As Mr. Elliott returned to the editorial rooms he was met by the staff and again addressed as follows Mr. Carter being the spokesman:

DEAR FRIEND,—

"There is a tide in the affairs of men,
Which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune."

Having caught the tide at the full you are about to embark upon a voyage which, we hope, will lead to fortune.

The life of a journalist is generally full enough of excitement to satisfy the cravings of an ordinary mortal. Each day, as regularly as it dawns and disappears, brings its whirl of incidents, sometimes in a bewildering rush, and some there are who find in their occupation all the consolation and care for which they have a heart. There are intervals, however, when the press man, if so disposed, is permitted to contemplate the things which pertain to his personal happiness.

A change is about to come over the spirit of your dream, but it is the change which occurs to all who properly fulfil the mission of life. No congratulations can be more sincere than ours, and none can be more thoughtful of your success than your associates on the staff of the BRITISH WHIG.

It is not necessary to say or do much to show that you carry with you into your domestic relations our combined regard; and your fidelity to us is a guarantee of your devotion to her whom you have chosen for your helpmeet and for whom we also entertain the highest esteem.

Accept of our gift. It will be a reminder of us while you are not with us.

And now that all the rest is said,
We wish you, wherever you go
All peace and joy with her you wed,
All good that comes to men below.

We wish you here, beneath the sun,
The purest skies of any clime,
A long love voyage and happy one
Across the broad, deep sea of time.

And past the world of time and tide,
Beyond the sunset and the west,
We wish you—on the other side,
As here we wish you—all things best.

R. W. MEEK,
T. C. CARTER,
J. OFFORD,
W. MEEK,

The desk is a handsome one, and no one can value such an article more than a writer for the daily press.

A REPLY FROM THE HEART.

Mr. Elliott saw in all these proceedings an evidence of the affection in which he is held by his associates. To all he addressed these lines, the sentiments of his heart:

"This has, indeed, been a day of surprise, but nothing affects me more than to be the recipient at your hands of these most valuable gifts. I accept them gratefully, especially coming from those with whom I have long worked. I see in them an evidence of regard, which will help to more firmly cement the ties which bind me to you and to the old WHIG. It is a matter of pleasure to me to hear you say you approve of my course. With journalistic consent, and with the benedictions of the boys of Kingston, I am sure that I shall be attended with blessing. In future I trust to serve the paper more efficiently, your kind words being an incentive to me to labour more earnestly to make this journal such a success as our hearts desire. The desk will remind me that faithfulness to duty will bring prosperity, and the pen and ink-stand will, I trust, inspire thoughts which will be appreciated and approved of. To you all I express grateful thanks for your presents, and I trust I shall ever continue to merit your favour and regard."
