CITY AND VICINITY.

FRIDAY.—Strong easterly to northerly winds, cloudy to snowy weather, stationary or slightly higher temperature.

Go to Provost's for nice and well made clothing. The latest patterns in Scotch tweeds to select from. Remember we guarantee a first-class fit.

Boys underwear from 50c up. Men's heavy ribbed shirts, all wool, 50c or $1.50 the suit, and special bargains in wool hosiery and kid mitts at Hardy & Murray's.

OVERCOAT STOLEN.—Several days ago an overcoat was stolen from the second hand store of P. Lamoreaux. The police were notified and the coat recovered by Officer J. Nesbitt. He hopes to find the thief.

THE MODEL SCHOOL.—The Chairman of the School Board to-day received a cheque for $130 from the Government, the annual grant to the Model. The receipts of this school for the season were $400. There were twenty-one teachers in training.

RECEIVED THE INSURANCE.—Capt. Dunnet, one of the owners of the Henry Folger, wrecked at Salmon Point, received to-day the amount for which the vessel was insured, $20,000. The $100 he paid to have the insurance extended was the best investment he ever made.

THE SAME NAME.—This morning the only drunk before the Court was George Maher. He was fined $1 and costs. While being sentenced some one in a far off county was looking up a rope in order to hang the individual who murdered a family of his name.

NEW DRESS CAMP.—Grand Patriarch W. D. Gordon has promised the Oddfellows of Hamilton to be there about the 1st February to organize a new degree camp. There is as yet none established in Ontario. It is understood that the new camp for Hamilton will be No. 1, although the Londoners are striving hard for that honor.

BIG ORDERS.—The Rathbuns have effected a contract to furnish the Canada Southern RR. with from 120,000 to 200,000 railway ties. The same firm have also recently received orders for a large number of doors for South Africa and Kingston, Jamaica. Including those engaged in logging operations there must be at present 1,600 men on the pay roll.

ARRIVAL OF GRAIN.—One who knows whereof he speaks asserts that not one-half of the grain harvested in this section of country has been brought to market. The receipts now are light. Prices are advancing and barley will probably go up to 70 or 75c. before the end of February. In Kingston opportunities have kept the price high. For this the farmers should be thankful.

HORSE STOLEN.—Last evening Mr. William Boyden drove to the market square, leaving his horse there. While his owner was absent some person drove the animal away and trace of it has not been found. The horse was brown in color, and about 16 hands high. The cutter had a round back. It is thought that the thief went towards Gananoque. Telegrams have been sent in different directions, asking the police to be on the look out for him.

LATER.—The horse of Wm. Boyden was found this afternoon at Barriefield whither it had been driven yesterday.

OLD CHRISTMAS.

To-morrow will be the feast of the Epiphany or the manifestation of Christ to the Gentiles. The festival is in commemoration of the visit of the three wise men of the East, who were guided to Bethlehem by the miraculous star, and their offering to the infant Saviour of gold, frankincense and myrrh. It is observed both in the Anglican and Roman Catholic Churches. It is a days parliamental and bank holiday in the Province of Quebec. The day is also known as Old Christmas, and used to be observed with great festivities. Service will be held in St. Mary's Cathedral at the same hour as on Sunday; in St. George's Cathedral at 11 o'clock.

E. Stone Wiggins now predicts that a storm far above the average will occur on the 9th of February.

The express from the West to-day wanted two hours behind time. The delay was caused by the storm.

The temperature to-day ranged from 4° to 6° below zero. The lowest point reached last night was 8° below zero.

Thomas Howard was arrested to-day in an uptown hotel charged with stealing an overcoat from P. Lamoreaux.

W. C. Caldwell has again been nominated as the standard bearer of the Reformers for North Lanark for the Local House.

It is feared that the Long Folger will not be powerful enough for the Murray Bay winter service. She was ice-bound at River Oneila from Saturday until Thursday morning.

A gang of wreckers have at last succeeded in removing the cargo of the wrecked schooner D. M. Foster, ashore in Oswego harbor. A portion of it was not much damaged.

Two parties called at this office to endorse the complaint of Sam regarding the rent of Post Office boxes. The free delivery, too, is rather slow. The staff of carriers is probably not large enough.

We do not desire any apologies from our contemporary for the blunders it committed in the late municipal election. The candidates whose defeat it brought about may desire an explanation.

The Globe says that an incident occurred in connection with the selection of Secretaries for the Convention. Among the names submitted to the meeting was that of Master George Brown, son of the late Senator Brown. The relationship was no sooner mentioned than the hall resounded with shouts of "Brown, Brown!" "We want to see him," etc. The late Senator's son, on coming to the front, was the recipient of a perfect ovation. It was a pleasing and touching tribute to the memory of the departed leader.

RETURNED FROM TORONTO.

Some of the Kingston delegates to the Liberal Convention have returned and pronounce the meeting the greatest of the kind that has ever been held in the Province. One said the occasion was such as he will not soon forget. He says he found the train crowded with eastern men, that seats were at a premium, and that many had to stand most of the way to Toronto.

At Belleville the train was divided, two cars being added to the first section, but things remained as they were in the second, as the first train was started before the stranded passengers knew anything about the change, and so were compelled to hold the fort as they were during the entire trip. They were, of course, tired, but they became more so before they found comfortable lodgement. The train did not reach the Queen City until 2 o'clock, and it was after 3 o'clock before many found sleeping quarters. The Convention, in attendance and results, was a complete success, and if there was doubt before as to the success of the Liberals in the next election such no longer exists.

Yesterday morning Mr. C. F. Gildersleeve made a short address. The demonstration to the leaders of the party was the greatest ever seen in Canada.

ACCIDENTS FROM DYNAMITE.

Yesterday afternoon about 2 o'clock Th. Tomkins and Archibald Bain were engaged in "tamping" a blast on the Syndicate railroad, Sharbot Lake. The dynamite was struck by mistake. It exploded with terrible force. The rock and sand flew in all directions, carrying with it disaster to the men. Bain was thrown over a ledge eight feet high. His little finger was blown off, his hand split down the centre, and his face filled with sand and splinters of rock. Tomkins fared worse, for he received the full effects of the discharge in his face. Both eyes were injured. Dr. Coutlee was hurriedly summoned. He amputated the finger of Bain and dressed his hand. Tomkins' eyes were examined. The doctor thinks one can be saved; the sight of the other will be lost. Bain was brought to the city and is now confined to the General Hospital. He hails from Perth.

TEACHERS' SALARIES.

The Ladies Have a Complaint—An Unjust Discrimination—An Inter View and its Results.

To-day the holidays concluded, and on Monday the children will again flock to the schools for instruction. Last evening a member of this staff had a conversation with a lady teacher on the salary question. She began by protesting against the meagreness of the salaries paid to her sex in this city. The ladies felt the matter keenly, knowing that the instruction given by them was fully as good as that of the gentlemen employed as instructors, by the Board. Why should ladies not receive the same remuneration as men? was a query that seemed to be unanswerable. If they were inferior in mental ability, or had not as good a training, then there would be some plea for the great difference in wages, but when it was admitted on all hands that their qualifications were equal, in certain cases superior, to those of the men, why should they be

PUT OFF WITH HALF PAY?

"I give you an instance," she remarked. "On Monday three persons begin to teach in this city. Two are ladies, one a gentleman. The ladies receive $160 per annum, the gentleman $375. In this instance both the ladies hold certificates superior to that of the gentleman, yet they are compelled to work for $155 per year less. Shame upon men who would make such an unwarrantable discrimination! People say it costs more for men to live than women. What has that to do with the matter? When a man is hired in any business house his salary is not graded according to the number of his family or dependents, but according to his ability and industry. Such should be the way the teachers should be dealt with. It costs ladies just as much to get instruction and to pass examinations as men, and we must submit to the same standard. We are prepared to cope with the men in examinations and we can sometimes beat them, but when it comes to a question of salary we are always placed at the foot of the list. Ability is not taken into account."

ACTION IS DEMANDED.

The scribe remarked that the argument was good, but it would be difficult to bring about a change.

"Well by action is the only way in which reforms can be made, and the sooner it begins the better. The ladies feel that they have been treated unfairly and have asked the Board for an increase. It is still undecided. The ratepayers will not murmur if it is given."

EFFECT OF COMPARISONS.

The question will receive investigation. Our lady friend presents the matter in good shape and no one can dispute her premises. Women are paid very poor salaries, not as much as their abilities call for. Take the last arrangement of salaries and one will be astonished on making calculations that six men draw salaries amounting to $8,175, while twenty-four ladies only obtain $6,200. Taking the five highest salaries of the men and comparing them with those of the ladies holding the same grade of certificates and the comparison is still more apparent:

I. Wood	$600	Miss Holmes	$400
W. H. Godwin	600	" Crawford	350
T. H. McGuire	600	" Livingston	350
J. W. Campbell	500	" Woodard	350
J. H. Bell	375	" Shiels	350
	$2,675		$1,800

Is this apportionment just? We do not favour any decrease in the pay of the men—they are low enough—but the ladies should have increases.

MRS. RODENSTEIN AGAIN.

Yesterday we had it from one of those engaged in the search for Mrs. Rodenstein that she had been traced as far as Niagara Falls, but that all efforts to learn of her wanderings after that had been unavailing. Late correspondence indicates that she has not reached the Falls. On the Monday after her disappearance from Kingston she was escorted by the proprietor of the Walker House, Toronto, to the train and set out for New York. She does not appear to have proceeded far, having left home without the means which she possessed to meet the expenses of travelling. It is stated by the police authorities of Hamilton that on Christmas morning she retired from the train at Minden, and is believed to be stopping at some farm house or hotel in that vicinity, but her friends are anxious about her and grieve that communication cannot be quickly had with her. We believe that in addition to the descriptions of her photographs have been sent out in the hope that these may lead to her identification by those who are enquiring for her in the West.

KEEPING JUNK SHOPS.

This morning Benjamin Barney was before the Police Court, charged with refusing to take out a license for a junk shop. The defendant claimed that he did not own a junk shop. He took the dictionary definition of the word as the law makers had not made the matter plain. He said he was prepared to pay license provided he received proper protection. He was a poor man, labouring for his daily food, and it was unjust to ask him to have a license when a wealthy firm like Chown & Cunningham could buy second-hand stoves and old iron without being specially taxed. If he purchased the iron that went to them he would have to be licensed, but when they made the bargain the city collected no dues. Evidence was produced showing that Barney kept a second hand store and was a dealer in old clothes, bones, iron, &c. The Magistrate reserved his decision.

ESTABLISHING HIS IDENTITY.

To-day the case of Mrs. Griffin, who asks for letters of administration for the disposal of her son's share in Pat Donnelly's estate, came up before Judge Price. An affidavit was put in by one Griffin, of New York, declaring his rights to the property and declaring that his name is William Henry. The case was enlarged for two weeks to permit of the New Yorker appearing here and establishing his identity. His arrival will be awaited with interest.

"SPENCER'S VAPOURINGS."

The Effect of Them in Washington—Attorney-General Brewster Gives an Opinion.

Several weeks ago ex-Senator Spencer of Alabama, and lately one of the Government Commissioners of the Union Pacific RR., arrived here for the purpose of evading a summons as a witness in the Star Route cases, now undergoing trial for the second time. The ex-Senator is a typical American. He was formerly a resident of Jefferson County, N.Y., having been born near Watertown. Some years ago he went West and speculated, and is now very wealthy. He has large interests in silver mines in Nevada. He has a brother practising medicine in Watertown now. When Spencer arrived here there were various enquiries in regard to his whereabouts, but he kept shady. Several days ago, thinking it desirable that he should unbosom himself before going to Europe, he sent a two column report to the New York Herald. Mr. Spencer then went West for a few days. The were that he had been irregularly summoned to appear as a witness in the cases, that when he did appear in Washington he lodged in a room alongside of Mr. Bliss, the Government chief counsel, in the same hotel; that he repeatedly saw Mr. Bliss; that he met and had some conference with a gentleman then and now a member of the Cabinet; and that, though anxious to be called and get away from Washington, never was called, and was after many days compelled to leave in order to attend to his own concerns in Nevada. At Council Bluffs he wrote to a friend in Washington, stating that he regarded the manner in which he was subpoenaed as an outrage, and that the whole transaction was a breach of good faith, he (Spencer) having informed the Postmaster General that he would give him certain ideas provided that, under no circumstances, Spencer's name would be connected with the matter. A promise was given by Mr. James and also by General Garfield. The former then went to work to investigate the Star-Route service. Up to the day that Gen. Garfield was shot all the information that has been developed in the recent trial had been in possession of the Post Office Department, and a great deal more, too. In the letter which Spencer said he wrote from Council Bluffs he said: "Now I am to be dragged away from my business, and kept for months to tell—what? That I saw Dorsey pay Brady money? I never saw anything of the kind done, and will so swear if called upon."

The Ex-Senator continues: "One thing is certain I do not intend to dance attendance upon the valliant Colonel, even if he has the power of the United States Government at his back. The manner of prosecution is without a parallel in history. The history of the Star Route cases I know as well as any man. The Government has saved $4,000,000 and I am going to find out how much has been squandered by the ignorant or corrupt prosecution."

TALKING WITH BREWSTER.

The published interview raised a breeze in the States and the other day Attorney-General Brewster was asked if he had read it. "Yes," he replied, "and," striking the table heavily with his hand, he added, "it is a tissue of lies from beginning to end. If Spencer is an innocent man, if he has been slandered and outraged as he professes, why doesn't he come here and face his accusers, instead of rushing off to Canada and vapouring in this ridiculous fashion? He dare not. Instead of courting an investigation he avoids one by taking the first steamer for Europe, where he brazenly says he will make a deposition. He knows well enough his deposition would not be worth the paper it was written on. Why, sir, if Spencer will come to Washington and prove to the satisfaction of any fair minded man that Col. Bliss' statements about him are untrue, I will have Bliss kicked out of his office the next minute and indicted for perjury at the same time.

"Cannot the authorities take steps to prevent his departure, or, failing in that, use force to cause his return?"

"No. We can do nothing, except he appears here in court, where he would have to undergo that scorching cross-examination he dare not face. I hope from the bottom of my heart I have heard the last of him, unless it be in a court of justice."

Judge Carpenter, one of Dorsey's counsel thinks a

BOMBSHELL HAS BEEN THROWN IN THE CAMP

of the prosecution. The Government has not been in earnest in its zeal for appearance on the witness stand. His statement that those who are really guilty if any are guilty, have escaped prosecution, is practically admitted by Bliss, when he said that other frauds had been committed by which the Government had lost over $4,000,000 a year. The Dorsey contracts only covered an annual payment of $275,000. Why should these smallest contractors be pursued, while such men as Saulsbury, with his $1,800,000 contract, are shunted off among the moral stipendiaries of the country? The prosecution not expect these things to be kept back forever.

"You think, then, that Spencer's statement will help the defence?"

"Help the defence?" exclaimed the Judge, "why, it explodes a mine under the Government that will leave nothing of it but ashes and smoke."

OLD COUNTRY NOTES.

The new plans for the Channel tunnel have been issued, and meet the approval of the military critics. They bring the entrance and approach to the tunnel three miles inland, within the range of the defences of the Dover garrison.

A National Fish Culture Association has been successfully formed in London. The Marquis of Exeter, who has naturalized the American black bass in his own ponds at Burleigh, is the President, and the movement is supported strongly by Prof. Huxley and a large and influential body.

The sale by the Duke of Marlborough and Hamilton of their libraries have been so successful that other noble book owners are about to hand them to auctioneers. The Marquis of Townshend is the latest to turn his literary inheritance into money. Many of the rarest imprints are purchased on orders from American collectors.

Even rewards of $25,500 seem to be of little weight in Ireland in the detection of murderers. It has always been an article of Irish faith that blood money entails a curse from which there is no escape, and informers are learning that the globe has no hiding place for them. News is just received from Australia that Lanty Morrit, whom the Government sent out three years ago, after he had given evidence in the case of the murder of a Justice of the Peace at Castlerea, has been taken care of there by a secret society. He was shot dead while crossing a farm. Nothing has come, so far, of the Phœnix Park or other rewards recently offered in Dublin. The belief is expressed, however, that the murderers of Lord Mountmorres will shortly be brought to justice.

MICHAEL O'ROURKE'S WIFE.

His Execution To-day and How it Affects Her Life—Abused, Beaten and Deserted.

To-day the wife of Michael O'Rourke is a free woman. A great burden has been lifted from her mind, a fear that haunted her for years has been removed. She still resides in Kingston and a statement of her life with the murderer has been published. His family lived near Clark's Mills, on a cut off the Napanee and Kingston road. His father was a sort of horse doctor. Some years ago he removed to the West. Michael was apparently, a very nice person, of impressing address and manners. The young woman who become his wife lived as a domestic with a family near Parrott's Bay. On one occasion she went home for a few days, and there met O'Rourke, who won her affection. After a lengthened courtship they were married. She went with him to his father's, but she had not lived there a week before she learned, to her sorrow, that Michael possessed an ungovernable temper. She often became the object of his passion. Amid tears she has told how he abused her, how

HER BODY WAS BRUISED

by his boots. Some time after the marriage a difficulty occurred between him and a person named Hart. A trial followed. On the way to Napanee the wife was terribly frightened by O'Rourke swearing that he would take her life unless she swore to the effect that Hart had abused her and even drawn a revolver upon her. Through fear the wife did as she was told, but subsequently, confessed to perjury, and, on her own admissions, was sent to the Penitentiary for several years. O'Rourke was also sent to the same penal institution. Much sympathy was felt for her because hitherto she had borne a reputation of the highest character. When O'Rourke went to prison he swore he would be revenged upon her. Since then she has been afraid that he would carry out his threat. On her release from prison she remained in Kingston, and with friends, and has proven amiable, very industrious, and endeavored by every means to

ATONE FOR THE PAST.

Her constant fear was that her husband would turn up and harm her, and in consequence she has not been inclined to leave the house at night. Some years ago she thought she saw her husband and another man enter the building in which she lived. The stranger entered into conversation with her, and while thus engaged she saw a face at the window which she declared was Michael O'Rourke's. She fled, and heard no more of him until the murder was announced. She believed that he was her husband, and on receipt of a photograph found that her supposition was well founded. She wrote to him several times recently, urging him to become repentant and seek mercy at the hands of God. Just about the time she heard of the murder she was preparing to remove to the States, there to remain long enough to secure a divorce. This action is now not necessary. She went to work to-day, but appeared to be very nervous. Although his treatment of her killed her love she remembered the past, and this was sufficient to make her feel depressed. Her life has certainly been a clouded one.

I have no hesitation in recommending it in any case of indigestion, constipation, heartburn, or troubles arising from a disordered stomach."
