A FAVOUR GRANTED.

The Council at a special meeting last evening granted exemption from taxation to the Montreal Transportation Company and the Kingston and Montreal Forwarding Company for ten years. The former is to receive the use of the land on which it is doing its shipbuilding if such can be arranged with the Government or the Kingston & Pembroke RR. Company. This consideration is not a great one, but, added to a leaning towards the city, and a regard for vested rights, it is such as gratifies the desires of the amalgamated corporations. Exemption on principle is not a good thing. There is a danger of Councils drifting to extremes in their competition for the favour of enterprising men. The time is coming, in even yet hand, when the Legislature will require to somewhat stiffen the prohibition against partiality shown in the matter of collecting or remitting taxes. But there are occasions on which it is not well to argue for an inflexible application of principle. Such an occasion is the present, and such an act of expediency is that which the Council by a large majority approved of last night. The city loses a tax of $500 or $6.10 per annum, that of two Companies, but gains indirectly by operations which give employment to many and which put in circulation annually a large sum of money.

A FRESH OUTBREAK.

Some days ago it was intimated that harmony did not prevail at the Medical College, that the agreement between the students and Faculty was not being literally carried out. It seems that at least two of the Professors have not been giving double lectures. One of them, on account of poor health, and because he had only one lady interested in the subject taught by him, was once excused by the male students, but they are not inclined to overlook what they term continued breaches of faith on his part and that of another gentleman. They say they have remonstrated but in vain, and that they will now appeal to the gentlemen who acted as mediators before the Christmas holidays. There was a meeting of the protestants this morning, at which the situation was discussed. The opinion has prevailed that the students cannot now be admitted to other colleges without certificate from the Royal College, and that on this account the Faculty would be less inclined to submit. We are informed, however, that the understanding with other colleges ceases if it be proven that there has been a violation of pledges, that if the students can substantiate their position they will secure admission to at least one institution elsewhere. Mediation, at any rate, is to be resorted to, and we hope it will terminate in the restoration of peace and contentment. 'Tis a pity that there has been a revival of the difficulty.

POLITICS IN QUEBEC.

No Liberal whose motives are purely patriotic can countenance the coalition which some are agitating for in Quebec. It cannot possibly better the fortunes of the party which recognizes Hon. Mr Joly as its leader, and every effort tending to a temporary union has been emphatically condemned by that venerable politician, Hon. Mr. Mercier's position is not very apparent, nor are we aware that it has been defined, but he seems to be the agitator for coalition and on the ground that the best men of all shades of politics should, if possible, combine to correct defects in Provincial legislation and give stamina to financial reformatory schemes. We have no desire to imitate other critics and call this foolish, the hopeless idea of a not too hopeful party, but we regard coalition as for the present circumstances as unwise and impolitic. The Times will not seek the assistance of any Liberal if it can be dispensed with, and Mr. Mercier and those acting with him cannot work long in harmony with men whose opinions and principles and practices are so diametrically opposed to each other. It is unfortunate that the Liberals should have been disunited now, when the opponents are in a distressed condition. Mr. Mercier and his friends should be patient and watchful. Sooner or later they will be wanted to help in administering the affairs of the Province, to formulate a policy progressive yet economical, and they should be free to act and ready to serve. In coalition they can get no credit for what they do. The Conservatives have ruled recklessly and become involved in many difficulties. Let them alone and in time the piggie will value them at their true worth.

A TIMELY DISCUSSION.

The dispute over the funeral of the late Dr. Pusey is interesting at this time because it brings into prominence, features which have deeply concerned those engaged in the late religious controversy. It seems that the Vicar of St. Paul's, Leicester, gave notice that the Holy Communion would be celebrated for the repose of the soul of the departed clergyman. It called forth a protest from some in the congregation. They sent a long communication to the Bishop of Peterboro, pronouncing Mr. Mason a member of the Church of Rome rather than of the Church of England, and demanding an investigation into his practices and teaching. His Lordship made a reply in the course of which he said: "There is a doctrine respecting the state of departed souls, and there are prayers for them, founded on that doctrine, which are distinctly Roman—namely, the doctrine that the souls of the faithful departed pass through the cleansing fires of purgatory, and that remission of these pains may be obtained for them by masses and prayers offered in their behalf by the faithful on earth. This our Church distinctly condemns in her Articles, and this Mr. Mason expressly assures me he neither holds nor has ever taught. On the other hand there is a doctrine as to the state of the faithful departed, and there are prayers for them founded on that doctrine, which are not Roman but primitive, and which our Church has never condemned. The belief was undoubtedly general in the early Church that the souls of the faithful, though free from suffering, were capable, while awaiting their final consummation and bliss, of a progress in holiness and happiness, and that prayers for such progress might therefore lawfully be made in their behalf by the Church on earth. Accordingly, prayers for the 'rest and refreshment' of the departed abound in the early liturgies of the Church, and especially in connection with the celebration of the Holy Communion. To say, therefore, that such prayers imply a belief in Roman doctrine, and that a clergyman who invites his congregation to offer them must, therefore, be a member of the Church of Rome, is not only unjust and uncharitable as regards him, but, alas, as regards the controversy with Rome, extremely rash and unwise."

ROYAL CANADIAN COMPANY.

Preparing for the Opposition Line—New Company and the Local Service Steamers.

The Richelieu & Ontario Navigation Company with its ally, the Grand Trunk, has set to work, says the Star, to defeat the aims of the promoters of the Royal Canadian Steamship Company. To effect this negotiations are being made for the harmonious working of the St. Lawrence Steamboat Company and the sole Vanderbilt roads connected with it. The Richelieu & Ontario and Grand Trunk people think that if these arrangements are effected they will have the trade of the south shore of the river and the lakes as much under their hands as that of the north side, and that the new Company will find itself pretty well hemmed up at the outset of its career. Several meetings have already been held in relation to the scheme at the Grand Trunk offices, between Mr. Seneral, Mr. Wainwright, Mr. Smith, of the Rome and Watertown Railroad, and Mr. Love, of the St. Lawrence Steamboat Company. The St. Lawrence Navigation Company (Saguenay route), will also likely be included in the amalgamation for the sake of its line between Quebec and the Saguenay. The management of the Canadian Pacific, with the other promoters of the Royal Canadian Company, are not, however, idle in the meantime, and arrangements are being made for securing the harmonious working of the market and local service steamers, run in opposition to the R. & O. Company, with the new line from Hamilton to Tadousac. As the proprietors of these small concerns along the river have experienced something of the overbearing influence of the Richelieu Company, they, it is expected, will be only too glad of the opportunity of allying themselves with such a strong organization as the Royal Canadian Steamship Company promises to be.

LOCAL SALT WELLS.

The Editor, British Whig.

SIR,—Seeing a published statement that salt water had been found by drilling on Amherst Island reminds me of what I have repeatedly heard my father say some sixty years ago, namely, that during the war of 1812, when all communication with the American side was cut off, and salt became as precious as the "apple of the eye," a "farmer living near Bath," from a spring on his farm, made a barrel of salt and sold it in Kingston. I do not recollect the farmer's name, but I have no doubt that this was so. Salt springs (or salt licks, as they were called) were not uncommon in the country back of Kingston. I knew of one about half a mile from the little hamlet called Elginburg, about six miles from the city. More than one deer met its fate whilst licking the briny water of this spring. When a boy I heard of several springs of the same nature in the "back townships," but as the country has been cleared of timber it is probable that they have now become dried up and cannot be traced.—Yours, &c.,

S. B. MEARNS.

Prescott, Jan. 17, 1883.

AMUSING SCENE.

Yesterday in Toronto, as a vote in the Legislature occurred relative to the printing of reports, an amusing scene occurred. Mr. Metcalfe arrived in the Chamber after the doors had been closed, and on standing up to vote was greeted with loud cries of "Order!" from the Government benches. His vote was taken exception to and disallowed on the ground that he was not present when the division was taken. The Opposition objected to the vote of Mr. Rayside for the same cause, but as he was inside the Chamber though not in his place when the doors were closed, his vote was counted.

IN THE LEGISLATURE.

In the Legislature yesterday Mr. Metcalfe presented the petition of the Council of Kingston for certain amendments to the Municipal and Assessment Acts. He gave notice that on Friday he would enquire of the Ministry whether it is the intention of the Government to erect a Normal School at Kingston on the ground set apart for that purpose by Dominion Government, on Union Street, in this city. If so, how soon?

DEBARRED FROM BENEFITS.

Rev. Pere le Claire, Roman Catholic Chaplain of St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary, has been debarred by the Dominion Government from superannuation benefits. The refusal has paved the way for the withdrawal of similar privileges from Rev. Mr. Cartwright, Protestant Chaplain of Kingston Penitentiary, whose contributions to the fund have been released.

Kyes to the Front.

Too much cannot be said of the everfaithful wife and mother, constantly watching and caring for her dear ones, never neglecting a single duty in their behalf. When they are assailed by disease and the system should have a thorough cleansing, the stomach and bowels regulated, blood purified, malarial poison exterminated, she must know that Kidney Kyes are the only sure remedy. They are the best and surest medicine in the world, and only cost fifty cents. Sold by J. Gen. King.

INTERMEDIATE STATE.

Points upon which Men Differ—Doctrines of three Churches—Reasonable Conclusions.

The Editor, British Whig.

DEAR SIR,—I have watched with keen interest the discussion carried on in your columns respecting the state of the departed.

I. All who have taken part in the discussion appear to agree in the following points, viz.:

1. That there is an intermediate state between death and the resurrection.

2. That the perfect consummation of bliss can be attained only after the resurrection of the body and the final day of doom.

3. That the soul during the intermediate state is not asleep or torpid, but is alive and conscious.

On these points the doctrines of the Anglican, the Roman, and the Presbyterian (which may be taken to represent the other Protestant) Churches appear to be at one.

There is probably also little or no divergence between these three standards of doctrine as to

4. The place and condition of but souls. All no doubt agree that "in Hades" they await "in torment" the moment when, re-united to their bodies, they shall hear the stern sentence of the inflexible Judge, "Depart from Me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire prepared for the devil and his angels."

II. It is only respecting the place and condition of the faithful departed that the doctrines appear to diverge.

1. The Anglican Church in her Burial Office simply affirms that "the souls of the faithful, after they are delivered from the burden of the flesh," "live with God," "rest in Christ," and "are in joy and felicity." In the Fifth Article of the Apostles Creed she applies the name Hell (i.e., Hades) to the intermediate state, and assumes (though she nowhere dogmatically affirms) that Paradise, into which our Lord's soul entered with that of the penitent robber on the day of their crucifixion, is a part of Hades.

2. The Roman Church, in the Catechism of the Council of Trent, teaches: "There is a purgatorial fire, in which the souls of the righteous are tormented for a certain time, and expiated, in order that an entrance may be open to them into their eternal home, where nothing defiled can enter."

3. The Presbyterian Church, in her Confession of Faith, teaches: "The souls of the righteous, being then" (i.e., at death) "made perfect in holiness, are received into the highest heavens, where they behold the face of God, waiting for the full redemption of their bodies." Then, after speaking of the souls of the wicked being cast into hell, she adds: "Besides these two places for souls departed from their bodies, the Scripture acknowledgeth none."

Hence we see that the Anglican Church is much less dogmatic on this matter than either the Roman or the Presbyterian Churches. The Roman Church dogmatically affirms that "the souls of the pious need to be "expiated" after death, and that they "are tormented for a certain time" "in a Purgatorial fire." The Presbyterian Church states positively that "the souls of the righteous" are at death "made perfect in holiness," and "are received into the highest heavens," and that besides two places which she has named, viz., "the highest heavens" and "hell" (i.e., I suppose, Hades), "the scripture acknowledgeth none" "for souls separated from their bodies."

Now the discussion has brought out the curious fact that there is not the slightest Scriptural warrant for the dogmatic utterances either of the Catechism of the Council of Trent or of the Westminster Confession of Faith. Your readers being my witnesses, the advocates on either side have certainly failed to adduce one title of such Scriptural authority. I do not blame them, for "ex nihilo nihil fit." Holy Scripture is utterly silent as to the moment of time when "the spirits of just men" are "made perfect in holiness," and denies rather than affirms "that the souls of the righteous" when "separated from their bodies are received into the highest heavens." For our Lord expressly says, "No man hath ascended up to Heaven" (John iii., 13), and after His resurrection, "I am not yet ascended to My Father" (John xx., 17), though His soul for some forty hours had been separated from His body, during which it had been "in Paradise." And again, St. Peter says, "David is not ascended into the Heavens" (Acts ii., 34). Again, the soul of the beggar Lazarus, when he died, "was carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom," a place separated by an impassable gulf from the part of Hades in which the soul of the rich man lay, but yet apparently forming a part of the same Unseen World, i.e. Hades (Luke xvi., 22-26.

So likewise there is not one word in Scripture to countenance the idea that "the souls of the pious" need to be "expiated" after death, or that they "are tormented for a certain time in a Purgatorial fire."

On the other hand, nothing can be more certain than that "the souls of the righteous, after they are delivered from burden of the flesh," "live with God," "rest in Christ," and "are in joy and felicity." As even the Roman Church holds that souls, after they have escaped from Purgatory, are in joy and felicity, I need not occupy our space to cite passages to prove what no one will deny.

III. The Church of England affirms positively only that which is held "always, everywhere, and by all," and is therefore truly Catholic. Her dogmas are such only as can "be proved by most certain warrants of Holy Scripture."

She teaches Baptismal Regeneration because Our Lord says, "Verily, verily, I say unto thee, except a man be born of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter into the Kingdom of God"—(John iii.-5.)

While she repudiates Transubstantiation as repugnant, both to scripture and reason, she teaches the Real Presence because Our Lord says, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, except ye eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink His blood, ye have no life in you."—(John vi.-53.)

She teaches the Apostolic Succession or rather the continuity of the Church, because He says, "As my Father hath sent Me, even so send I you," (John xx. 21), and "Lo I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."—(Matthew, xxviii. 20.)

She teaches the power and authority of the Church to bind and absolve, because He says, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whatsoever ye shall bind on earth shall be bound in Heaven; and whatsoever ye shall loose on earth shall be loosed in Heaven."—(Matt. xviii.-18.)

On the subject of Prayers for the Dead, she makes no dogmatic utterances. But she joins the faithful departed in her prayers for the living, because

"One family, we dwell in Him,
One Church, above, beneath,
Though now divided by the stream,
The narrow stream of death"

and because our Lord says, "All live unto Him." (Luke xx. 38)

As to her exclusiveness, it is only that commanded by our Lord when He says, "Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine, no more can ye, except ye abide in Me. I am the Vine, ye are the branches. . . . . If a man abide not in Me, he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered." (John xv. 4-6.) He will in to exclude none, but to include all, for which reason she dogmatizes on no subject except such as can "be proved by most certain warrants of Holy Scripture." If any are excluded, it is by their own act.—Yours truly,

DOGMATICUS.

Beware of Imitations

Since Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has become celebrated, a number of unprincipled persons have been endeavoring to palm off Electron and Eclectric Oil for the genuine Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Beware of these similar named articles. If their originators had any faith in the healing properties of their own medicines they would, like honest men, give them a name of their own, and not try to sell them on the reputation of another; but as they know their preparations have no merit, they resort to the most unprincipled means of selling them by getting a name as near as possible to Eclectric. We therefore ask the public when purchasing to see that the name Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is on the front of the wrapper, and the signature of Northrop & Lyman, the proprietors for Canada, on the back.

London, Jan. 18.—The scheme formulated by the Egyptian Government, approved by Dufferin and transmitted to the Foreign Office, proposes that the Khedive shall have a Council of twelve responsible ministers. That a Legislature Council of fourteen members shall be formed, half of whom shall be nominated by Khedive and half chosen by a system of double election such method for which abundant precedents exist in the American constitution and others. An elective assembly of forty-four members is also proposed to occasionally discuss special subjects. The latter will not participate in Legislation but assist Legislation by giving voices to chosen hitherto inarticulate, the initiative of the legislation rests wholly with the Council of ministers, but its project must be submitted to the Legislative Council before becoming law. In the event of irreconcilable difficulties between the two bodies, a decision will probably be left to the Khedive.
